EMERSON REPORTS CAMPAIGN SURPLUS FOR REPUBLICANS

Contest Conducted Without Deficit Under Budget System Ordered by Coolidge.

$80,000 DONATED TO FUND

Approximately $4,000,000 Collected at a Cost of Only $7,000, Says Committeeman.

CREDIT GIVEN TO PRESIDENT

Cash on Hand to Be Used to Keep Alive an Organization to Get Cash in 1928.

The Republican National Committee came through the national campaign, which ended last Tuesday, with the election of President Calvin Coolidge without a deficit. In fact, when all outstanding bills are paid and the last contributions received, the committee may have a small surplus, which will be applied to keeping alive an organization for the collection of contributions four years hence.

This will be the substance of a report which Guy Emerson, Chairman, and J. C. Clarke, Executive Secretary of the National Contributors' Committee of the National Committee, which had charge of the collection of contributions to the Republican cause, will make in a few days to William M. Butler, National Chairman. The Republican National Campaign Committee set several records in its handling of campaign funds, according to Mr. Emerson, who is Vice President of the Bankers' Trust Company, and with Mr. Clarke volunteered his services to help run the financial end of the campaign.

All told, more than 80,000 contributors from all over the country gave about $4,000,000 to the expenses of the campaign and it was run on such efficient lines that this sum was collected at a cost of about $7,000. According to Mr. Emerson, this is the largest number of contributions ever made to a Presidential campaign, and it is the first time that a National Campaign Committee has wound up its affairs without a deficit. Four years ago the Republican National Committee shouldered a deficit of more than $1,000,000, and it took nearly four years to wipe it out.

Primary Credit to Coolidge.

On election night the Finance Committee wound up its affairs with practically all bills paid. According to the local officers here, the main headquarters in Chicago was conducted on exactly the same basis. William V. Hodges, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, is at present in the West, but is expected in New York within a month, and will then make an official report on the financial status of the committee. Full credit for the unusual work done is given by the local officials to Chairman Butler and Treasurer Hodges.

In explaining the methods used, both Mr. Emerson and Mr. Clarke give primary credit to President Coolidge, who laid down in his speech of acceptance last August just how he wanted the campaign conducted. The President insisted upon economy and said that he saw no reason why a budget system should not be practiced in a campaign as it is in government. In fact, the President thought that the budget system which he advocated for the National Administration should be tested out by applying its principles to his campaign. In his speech of acceptance, which the committee followed implicitly, the President said:

"Economy should be practiced scrupulously in the conduct of a national campaign. I know it is difficult to distinguish between real service to the people and mere wastefulness. Costs have increased by doubling of the electorate, rendering close calculation impossible.

Suggests the Budget System.

"Nevertheless, I can perceive no reason why the budget system should not be beneficial in a campaign, as it has proved to be in government. It is to be tested by our committee.

"There should be no relaxing of resolute endeavors to keep our elections clean, honest and free from taint of any kind. Only the closest scrutiny of both the sources of contributions and the character of expenditures can accomplish this laudable purpose. For the first time this has been provided for the coming campaign through the appointment of a competent Senate committee vested with ample authority. The Republican National Chairman has already volunteered to file sworn reports of both income and outgo, in full detail, at such regular intervals as the committee may deem serviceable and practicable.

"The statutes provide for publication of the names of contributors and of amounts contributed. But a deficit at the end of a campaign in part defeats this. The budget will cure that defect. So far as the Republican Party is concerned, I have made an absolute requirement that our committee shall live within its means. I hope it will have a surplus on election day, but it must not have a deficit.

"I would make clearly and definitely one other requirement, that no individual, or group of individuals, may expect any governmental favors in return for party assistance. Whatever any one gives must be given for the common good, or not at all. Contributions can be received on no other basis."

Workers in the Treasurer's office at Republican headquarters, 2 West Forty-sixth Street, said they were satisfied that the President's instructions had been substantially carried out. Chairman Emerson said all branches of his

Ireland Proclaims Amnesty For All Civil War Offenses

DUBLIN, Nov. 7 (Associated Press). — President Cosgrave announced in the Dail Eireann today the granting of amnesty for political offenses committed between Dec. 6, 1921, and May 12, 1923.

The announcement means a general amnesty for acts committed during the civil war period, either in connection with the rebellion against the Free State Government and the preceding Provisional Government, or in suppressing the rebellion.

The President's statement described it as in the interest of peace and order now established that no further proceedings should be taken in connection with such acts.

The Minister of Justice, Mr. O'Higgins, replying to Deputy Johnson, Laborite, said the cases of persons already convicted of such offenses would be reconsidered.

LODGE'S PHYSICIANS NOW HOLD OUT HOPE

IS CONSCIOUS AT TIMES

Recognizes Persons in the Sickroom and Is Able to Take Nourishment.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Dr. John H. Cunningham late tonight told newspaper men that he expected to see a marked change for the better in Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's condition in the morning.

Dr. Cunningham said: "With the amount of nourishment he has taken, I expect to see a marked change for the better in the morning. His pulse is running about 100 and is of good quality. During these spells of consciousness he is able to recognize persons in the room.

"I have seen men as sick as he is recover. If he recovers he has a chance to enjoy as good health as any man of his years might expect."

After lying for nearly forty-eight hours in a state of coma Senator Lodge regained consciousness today.

The bulletin issued at 6:15 P. M. said:

Senator Lodge's physical condition remains grave. Since noon he has taken more nourishment and periods of consciousness have been more sustained.

At 10:30 tonight Dr. Cunningham issued a further bulletin on the condition of Senator Lodge as follows:

No improvement shown; no loss of ground during day.

Upon arousing from his long period of unconsciousness today the Senator drew a watch from Dr. Cunningham's pocket and looked at it. Later he was able to speak a few words to those at his bedside.

His physicians today commented upon the vitality which has enabled Senator Lodge, in his seventy-fifth year, to continue his fight for life throughout the two-day period in which little hope was held out for him and during which, at times, death was expected momentarily.

A bulletin issued soon after noon said:

Senator Lodge's condition remains grave. He is having short periods of consciousness. He has taken a little nourishment for the first time since he suffered the stroke Wednesday (Nov. 5).

The morning bulletin issued at 8:30 o'clock said:

While still unconscious, Senator Lodge's vitality has not perceptibly changed during the last twenty-four hours.

Ever since the grave phase of the Senator's illness was made public persistent rumors of his death have been spread throughout the country. Such reports have caused flags to be placed at halfstaff in several New England towns before investigation proved them without foundation.

So near death was Senator Lodge believed to be yesterday that many former and present servants in the Lodge home at Nahant were summoned to the bedside by relatives. Members of the family who have been in almost constant attendance at the hospital are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lodge, son and daughter-in-law; Mrs. C. C. Williams, a daughter; Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. and John D. Lodge, grandsons, and Mrs. W. Gordon Means, granddaughter.

Senator Lodge had rallied rapidly after two operations this year, one in July and the second on Oct. 20. The stroke on Wednesday came entirely without warning at a time when Senator Lodge was almost ready for discharge from the hospital. It involved a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain, Dr. Cunningham explained, being similar in nature to the shocks suffered in many cases by persons of the Senator's age.

UPTOWN 'DEADLINE' SET BY THE POLICE AS CRIMES INCREASE

New Zone Takes in Area From Fourth to Sixtieth St. and Third to Seventh Ave.

EXTRA MEN TO BE ON GUARD

Auto Squad to Patrol Shopping and Theatrical Centres—Policeman Every Two Blocks.

SAKS STORE WINDOW ROBBED

Two Messengers Held Up and Bandits Escape With $1,292—Other Lesser Holdups.

Following an outbreak of hold-ups, window-breaking and other crimes of violence, regarded by the police as due to the approach of Winter weather, Chief Inspector William J. Lahey announced yesterday the establishment of a new "deadline," beyond which known criminals may not pass without being arrested. The zone surrounded by the new deadline includes the hotel, shopping and theatrical districts, and runs from Fourth Street to Sixtieth Street, between Third Avenue and Seventh Avenue. It supplements the old deadline established by Inspector Thomas Byrnes, who years ago drew an imaginary line along the south side of Fulton Street to protect the Wall Street district, the Maiden Lane jewelry section and the lower Broadway brokers and business men.

Chief Inspector Lahey also made public the police arrangements for protecting the shopkeepers, shoppers and the rest of the public inside of the two deadlines. He issued special orders to the members of the Police Department providing for the assignment of extra detectives and uniformed policemen to guard both of the deadline zones day and night, beginning at 6 o'clock next Monday morning and continuing until after the Christmas and New Year holidays. The orders are much more comprehensive and become effective two weeks earlier than such orders in past years.

"Crime Wave" Starts Early.

The police say that the "crime wave" which occurs every Winter before the Christmas season appears to have set in earlier than usual this year. Besides a number of daring hold-ups recently there has been a series of bold robberies by gangs smashing windows of Fifth Avenue shops during the early morning hours. The latest of these occurred yesterday, when thieves broke a show window of the new Saks-Fifth Avenue store, and escaped with $5,300 worth of furs. In lower Manhattan two gunmen held up and robbed messengers of the Fidelity Warehouse Company and Lawrence, Son & Gerrish, in front of the United States bonded warehouse at South Street and Market Slip, of a payroll of $1,292.62. There were several other hold-ups and robberies during the day.

Chief Inspector Lahey's new deadline order calls for a uniformed policeman to be stationed every two blocks on Fifth Avenue, Broadway and Seventh Avenue from Fourth to Sixtieth Street. The Fifth Avenue and Broadway detective squads will be increased by between 50 and 100 detectives taken from other parts of the city, and by 100 uniformed policemen, who will be transferred to plain clothes duty in the protected zone for the duration of the emergency. Detectives will patrol Fifth Avenue and side streets in fast automobiles day and night, in order to be in readiness for taking up immediate pursuit of robbers escaping from the scene of a hold-up in an automobile.

Special Squads Assigned.

The Pickpocket Squad will be increased and its members will mingle with the shopping crowds in the Fifth Avenue district from now until New Year's. Members of six special squads—bomb, radical, safe, loft, truck and auto—will be assigned to special duty in the area, so that one member of each of these squads, with a specialized knowledge of a particular kind of criminal, will be on duty day and night on each of the principal thoroughfares.

The Truck Squad will concentrate on the North River piers in order to guard the shipments of valuable goods from Europe in anticipation of the holiday season.

Guaranty Trust Sues Rum-Running Baronet And Stops Use of Name in His Enterprise

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Guaranty Trust Company of New York applied today to Justice Eve in Chancery Court for an injunction to restrain Sir Broderick Hartwell, Baronet, from issuing in connection with his liquor running ventures a circular in which there was a photographic reproduction of one of its drafts.

The circular invited subscriptions toward Sir Broderick's seventh enterprise for shipping liquor to the United States, and, in order to illustrate how he was paid for his goods, a draft which he had received for his fifth shipment was reproduced.

Counsel for the Guaranty Trust Company explained that its New York office had been asked by a customer, who had an account with it, to give him in the ordinary course of business a draft on London in favor of Sir Broderick Hartwell, and that it had done so. The company, it was explained, was in a peculiar position. It held deposits for the American Government, and one of the Government's law officers was on its board. It thus could not tolerate the broadcasting of the suggestion that it was knowingly or otherwise connected with the illicit liquor trade.

The Judge asked if the Guaranty Trust Company considered the circular a libel and its counsel replied:

"Yes. That we are actively participating in illicit trade."

Counsel for Sir Broderick Hartwell represented that his client did not intend to repeat the circular, and had never wished to represent the trust company as a purchaser. He could not see how the circular could be libel. His client wished to act perfectly properly.

"Yes," said the Judge, "that they were purchasing this grocery or whatever it was which was sent out."

"Whatever it was, it was sent out to the Atlantic seaboard," said Sir Broderick's counsel.

"And there were many hungry, thirsty souls awaiting it," the Judge observed.

Sir Broderick's counsel gave a perpetual undertaking that no further copies of the circular should be issued and the proceedings were terminated without the Court making another order.

Hylan Spends an Hour in Subway Jam; Finds Rush Period Conditions 'Deplorable'

Mayor Hylan yesterday began a personal investigation of subway rush hour conditions. After an hour of what he described as "close contact" with homeward-bound residents of Brooklyn in the Nevins Street (Brooklyn) station of the Interborough subway yesterday evening, he denounced conditions there as "deplorable," and declared that the members of the State Transit Commission were "derelict in their duty in allowing taxpayers to be herded together like sheep."

Following numerous complaints of overcrowding on the Brooklyn-bound platform of the station between the hours of 5 and 7 in the evening, the Mayor decided to study conditions for himself and to keep a record of what he saw. He arrived at 5:30 o'clock and left at 6:30.

According to a record which the Mayor kept in person, three of every four trains that came into Nevins Street were marked "Atlantic Avenue," where a majority of the passengers boarded already crowded trains bound to Utica Avenue, New Lots Avenue, Pennsylvania Avenue, Flatbush Avenue and other points. He suggested as a remedy that the Transit Commission should compel the I. R. T. to send some, or even half, of the trains now marked "Atlantic Avenue" through to the ends of the various lines instead of "sending them back to Manhattan empty."

In a statement to newspaper men who accompanied him, Mayor Hylan said: "The Nevins Street station is the most deplorable point in the service of the I. R. T. Despite complaints to Commissioners O'Ryan, Harkness and McAneny, these men have done nothing to improve this condition. You can see for yourselves that the I. R. T. could easily continue these Atlantic Avenue trains through, instead of sending them back empty. The Commissioners will be derelict in their duty unless they see that this is done.

"The people here are driven out and herded together like so many sheep. The Transit Commissioners have evaded their duty as long as they can. It is their purpose to allow the line to make larger profits in order to sell more of its watered stock. I shall continue to investigate and will spend many hours during the next few weeks looking into the service given by both the I. R. T. and the B. M. T."

Mayor Hylan will broadcast from the Municipal Radio Station tonight at 7:45 o'clock. He will talk on "The Reorganization of the B. M. T." It was announced in the City Hall that he would ask several questions, among them being: "Who got the turkey in the B. M. T. reorganization?"

SAVE MANY VILLAGES IN 14-MILE FIRE PERIL

MARINES PROTECT ARSENAL

Dense Smoke Hinders Watchers as Wind Fans New Flames—Big Jersey Fire Controlled.

Forest fires continued to rage in New York and New Jersey yesterday. The sky of New York City was overcast and in parts of New Jersey the smoke was reported so dense that the Fire Wardens on hilltops, tanks and towers could no longer see the country they were watching to detect new blazes.

Fire was still burning over an area fourteen miles long from West Point to Haverstraw on the west bank of the Hudson, but it had been turned back from the towns it had threatened.

On a blackened hillside near Haverstraw was found the burned body of an unidentified man, evidently a hunter who had been trapped between fires.

Early yesterday morning the police of Bear Mountain Park gave a warning to the 250 inhabitants of Doodletown that their village on the top of Mount Temp was in great danger. The forest here runs uphill to the edge of the town and the fire was sweeping upward at a rate which made it appear inevitable that it would reach the summit and burn the town. Shortly after midnight the whole mountain seemed to be burning. Residents of the town carried their belongings to wagons and moved them to plowed fields in preparation for the worst.

Wind Shifts; Town Saved.

The parched countryside did not wait for the actual arrival of the fire. The wind carried sparks ahead of it which set multitudes of small blazes which, soon spread out and joined in a solid front which was sending out millions of sparks to repeat the performance.

Early in the morning, however, the wind shifted and stopped the progress of the fire up Mount Temp. A heavy dew set in just before sun-up and many of the small blazes in grass and brush went out of their own accord. The townspeople, State police and other volunteers were quick to take advantage of this. They encircled Doodletown with backfires, and before night had interposed a broad burned zone between the main fire and the village. The wind had again shifted so as to threaten the town, but there was no danger that it could jump the back-fire belt.

As on Mount Temp, the dryness of the country everywhere caused new fires to start from sparks. In many places the dry spell has been the longest on record. All records for drought have been broken in New York City by the dry spell which yesterday had reached its thirtieth consecutive day. In many parts of New Jersey the dry spell has lasted longer than that.

The dryness was such that the fire from Doodlebery Mountain yesterday threatened to cross to Iona Island, where the naval arsenal is situated. This fire was beaten out by marines. Iona Island is not an island at this season of the year, but is connected with land by a dried-up marsh full of grass, cattails and rushes. Sparks landed among these and in the morning several fires were hugging the ground and traveling fast toward the island proper. A few detachments of marines checked them quickly by backfires.

Sea Clash With Hunters.

Serious clashes between hunters and State authorities in New Jersey are threatened on Monday, as in some parts of the State hunters are threatening to go gunning on Monday, when the game season opens, in spite of the proclamation of the State Game Commission against shooting until a heavy rain has lessened the danger.

Hunters owning preserves near Hammonton, N. J., are reported to be preparing to shoot on their own property, and members of clubs have the same intention. They deny that in hunting on their own property they become a source of danger and they deny also that there is any legal force in the proclamation against hunting. The weakness of the proclamation is that there is no legal machinery for enforcing it and no penalty for its violation. There is an agitation, however, to induce the State Game Commission of New Jersey to announce that it will seek legislation forfeiting the right of any violator of the

FORM $500,000,000 BAKERIES MERGER

George C. Barber of United Corporation Will Be Chairman of New Concern's Board.

6,000,000 SHARES CAPITAL

2,000,000 Preferred, 2,000,000 Class A and 2,000,000 Class B Shares.

Rumors of a gigantic merger in the baking business that have been current for nearly two months were partially verified yesterday by the announcement of the incorporation in Maryland of the Continental Baking Corporation, with a capitalization of at least $500,000,000, making the new corporation the largest ever set up in the baking business and one of the largest in any field of industry.

The announcement of the incorporation was made yesterday by George G. Barber of the United Bakeries Corporation, 513 Fifth Avenue, who is listed as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the new concern. In his statement no reference was made to the identity of the companies to be combined. When he was questioned by reporters on this point he said nothing could be said at this time, but that within a few days announcements would be made covering all details. It is understood, however, that many important baking companies in this and other cities will figure in the merger. The United Bakeries Company, which Mr. Barber represents, is one of the newest and largest baking companies in the field. It has a sales volume of $40,000,000 annually, and its earnings this year, according to recent estimates, will be about $4,000,000 net.

6,000,000 Shares Authorized.

According to the statement issued yesterday, the new Continental Baking Corporation is capitalized at 2,000,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative dividend preferred stock, with a par value of $100 a share; 2,000,000 shares of non-cumulative dividend Class A common stock without nominal or par value, and 2,000,000 shares of Class B common stock without nominal or par value.

The fact that Class A stock is preferred over Class B stock to the extent of $8 per share per year gives it an indicated value of $100 per share, taken with the statement made that the present program of the new concern should reflect an earning of $11 per share on the Class A stock. The further statement that under the same condition an earning of $8 per share on the Class B stock is expected would give the Class B stock an indicated value of about $50 per share.

The authorized issue of 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock at $100 par value per share would furnish a capitalization of $200,000,000; the addition of 2,000,000 shares of Class A common stock at $100 would give an indicated further capitalization of $200,000,000, while the 2,000,000 shares of common stock of Class B taken at $50 per share would increase the capitalization by $50,000,000. This makes the total of authorized and indicated capitalization of $500,000,000.

Future of the Baking Business.

Mr. Barber's statement was as follows:

"Continental Baking Corporation has been incorporated in Maryland. It is capitalized at 2,000,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative dividend preferred stock, per value $100 per share; 2,000,000 shares of non-cumulative dividend Class "A" common stock without nominal or par value, and 2,000,000 shares Class "B" common stock without nominal or par value. The preferred stock is callable at 110 and non-voting. Class "A" common stock is preferred as to dividend over Class "B" common stock to the extent of $8 per share per annum and thereafter will participate share and share alike with Class "B" common stock. This stock will be issued as needed for the purchase of new and additional bakeries. Application for the listing of all three classes of stock on the New York Stock Exchange will be made at the proper time.

"The business of baking bread and cake looms brightly on the horizon of business enterprise. It is classed high in the scale of industries in the United States, and yet the baking business is in its infancy. It is fundamental and should be attractive, because about 50 per cent. of all the baked goods consumed in the United States is still baked in the home by the housewife. This presents opportunities for increased business. It is a cash business and should suffer no inventory losses. It will grow in proportion as it serves

BOY MISSING 10 DAYS KILLED BY COMRADE AND BODY HIDDEN

Confession by Playmates Reveals Death by Rifle Shot of Lad Searched for by Airplanes.

AFRAID TO TELL OF IT

AGREED TO HIDE TRAGEDY

Four boys, between the ages of 8 and 13 years, cleared up the mysterious disappearance of 13-year-old Ernest Schwer Jr., when they confessed last evening to detectives that on the afternoon of Oct. 28 last the missing boy accidentally had been shot and killed with a rifle owned by one of them when they were hunting muskrats on an ash dump about two and a half miles from the home of the slain boy's parents at 8,929 129th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens.

They said that the rifle, owned by Arthur Meigan, 13 years old, of 8,930 129th Street, Richmond Hill, had been left on a rock at the top of a hill known as Hayestown dump, about a quarter of a mile southwest of Maple Grove Cemetery, near Kew Gardens, and that when one of them accidentally struck it the rifle went off and the bullet plowed through the right temple of the victim of the shooting.

Young Meigan and his brother Harold, 8 years old, Adam Rotundo, 12 years old, of 12,620 127th Street, Richmond Hill, and Charles Kirchfield, 9 years old, of 8,932 129th Street, then led Captain John Gallagher, head of the Queens Detective Division, and Captain Herbert Graham and Detective Sergeants Herbert and Mieran of the Richmond Hill Station to the brambles at the foot of Hayestown dump, where the body of the boy was found at the spot the boys had hidden it.

The disappearance of the boy had aroused considerable excitement among residents of Richmond Hill. In the ten days that elapsed since he told his mother, the wife of Ernest Schwer, a city fireman, that he was going with other boys to find a place to plant muskrat traps in Cowhill swamp, two miles from the scene of the tragedy, when he got them, there had been daily visits to the swamp by adults and hundreds of children who attended Public School 54 in Richmond Hill, in which the boy also was a pupil, to aid the police in their quest.

Airplane Searched in Vain.

The fact that there are quicksand beds in the swamp led the authorities to believe that the boy might have stepped into one of them and had been enveloped. On Thursday last two airplanes from Mitchel Field circled over the swamp for hours, while more than a thousand persons looked on from neighboring hills, taking photographs in the hope that the police through them would locate the body of the boy.

During all the activities in the quest for Ernest the four boys were spectators, with the exception of young Kirchfield, giving suggestions to detectives regarding the place in which the body of their missing chum might be found. When the authorities at Mitchel Field reported to Captain Gallagher yesterday afternoon that the photographs did not show anything in the quagmire resembling the body of the missing boy, Gallagher and Captain Graham and the detectives decided that they would go to the school and question the four boys.

Eventually young Meigan began to sob and asked that he be permitted to visit his home and ask his mother a question.

The detectives then took him and young Rotundo in an automobile to the Meigan home. There Arthur ran to the arms of his mother, and hysterically crying, asked her if she "would be sued" if he were to admit that Ernest Schwer accidently had been shot in his presence.

Mrs. Meigan urged her son to tell the detectives all that he knew about the matter, explaining that it made no difference what action might result in the courts.

At 11 P. M. Mr. Wolff finished his questioning of the four boys and said that they had admitted that Ernest was killed accidentally by the rifle going off when Arthur Meigan struck it gainst a stump.

He said that as a result of the revised stories of the boys and the admission of

Buy Portugal's Leading Paper To Aid Workers and Industry

LISBON, Nov. 7.—An important industrial and commercial group has acquired the proprietorship of the Seculo, a newspaper of the widest circulation in Portugal. The transaction is said to be a sequel to the recent conflict with the Government in the campaign to revamp the tax on bottled goods.

Pereira Daresa, director of the Lisbon Chamber of Commerce, who was recently arrested for sedition and resistance to the law, yesterday told the Shopkeepers' Association that the Seculo would henceforth adopt a national policy by defending the interests of the working classes, commerce, industry and agriculture.

STOCK SALES SMASH RECORDS OF 5 YEARS

Total of 2,336,160 Shares of 506 Separate Issues Traded In on the Exchange.

RAILROADS LEAD ADVANCE

Election Sequel Adds Hundreds of Millions to Market Value of Securities.

Records for the last five years were smashed yesterday when enthusiastic trading resulted in the turn-over on the New York Stock Exchange of 2,336,160 shares of 506 separate issues. Since the famous liquidation market of Nov. 12, 1919, when stocks declined 3 to 10 points in a day, and one motor company led the way with a net drop of 68 points for the day, there has not been such a volume of business on the Stock Exchange as that handled yesterday. The high record of separate issues traded in is 517, on Dec. 20, 1923.

Following two days of record business based upon the outcome of the election, orders from out of the city began to pour into the financial district yesterday. Many large interests that had been holding money for investment purposes also played a conspicuous part in the day's activities.

For the first half hour the market moved along at a normal pace. Then as the orders continued to increase, the machinery of almost every Stock Exchange house went into high speed and continued to function at that rate until the close of the market. Those who moved away from the ticker for even a few minutes returned to find that exceptional advances had been made in many of the shares during their absence.

At times during the day, due to the press of business, the new high speed ticker service of the Exchange was ten or fifteen minutes behind the market, and it was more than fifteen minutes after the big gong on the floor of the Exchange had sounded the close of the market that the ticker ceased to turn out its record of the day's transaction.

Railway Shares in Lead.

Led by the railway shares, the remainder of the list advanced to points close to the high record for the year. THE TIMES average for twenty-five railroad shares showed an advance of 1.9 points during the day, while the average for twenty-five industrial shares increased .67 of a point, and the average for fifty representative stocks was 1.28. At the close of the day the average of the entire market was 97.13, within striking distance of the 97.17 record for the year made on Aug. 20.

Yesterday's market was in marked contrast to that of Nov. 12, 1919. Then the prices of the stocks were tumbling at such a rate that more and more were thrown on the board. Yesterday the advance, especially in the railway shares, was so general that there was literally a scramble to place buying orders.

A combination of factors, in which the political situation was the most important, influenced the market yesterday. Railway executives and the financial district were in agreement that within recent years the political outlook for the railroads had never been as good as at present. Most of the political opponents of the railroads have either been swept out of power or so badly hampered, as the result of the election, that the possibility of their interfering with the management or the present laws is remote.

Coupled with this factor was the remarkable earnings which the railroads have reported in the last few months. Although they reported net operating income of $116,000,000 for September, the largest for any month since July, 1918, predictions were freely made in the financial district that the earnings for October would run as high as

COOLIDGE OPPOSES AN EXTRA SESSION TO ACT ON TAXES

Favors Revision of Schedules in Short Session if Congress Will Agree to It.

CONSULTS PARTY LEADERS

He Will Not Announce Legislative Program Just Yet, but May Urge Relief for Farmers.

SUPPLY BILLS UNDER WAY

Chairman Madden, in Drafting Them, Plans to Prune Department Costs to the Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Tax revision holds the centre of the stage. President Coolidge desires to get reduction in taxes as quickly as possible and if assured of support in Congress will fight for action in the coming session.

Some leaders who opposed the Mellon proposals are against taking up tax matters because of a precedent that nothing beyond appropriation bills can be enacted in the short session, but the conservative leaders are urging speedy action on taxation in view of the expected Treasury surplus of $300,000,000.

The President has no present intention of calling an extra session of Congress on or after March 4, and will not for the present announce any definite legislative program, according to a White House spokesman. Mr. Coolidge is carefully considering the tax situation and it was announced today that he had not reached any definite decision as to when he shall recommend tax reduction. A spokesman for the President said that Mr. Coolidge did not know whether it was wise in a short session to undertake to do anything about tax legislation. It was said that the President's off-hand impression was that he could not obtain proper tax reductions in a short session.

It was said that Mr. Coolidge might get encouragement from members of the House and Senate that would induce him to urge immediate tax revision, and that, on the other hand, he might wait until the assembling of the Sixty-ninth Congress in December, 1925.

Secretary Mellon for Relief.

Secretary Mellon is reported as favorable to immediate relief from tax burdens, although he has not reached a conclusion as to when surtax reduction should be sought. He is reported as favoring some relief at the short session because of the probably large surplus.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a member of the Finance Committee, who is regarded as a spokesman for Secretary Mellon, believes that tax reduction should be taken up without delay, and that an effort should be made in the short session to reduce the high surtax.

"The vote on last Tuesday is a command to the coming session of Congress to take up tax revision immediately," Senator Reed said today. "I think Congress owes it to the people to reduce the surtaxes 25 per cent, and I am satisfied that this could be passed in the session opening next month. The verdict of this election will influence members who last Winter opposed this legislation to support it now.

"The publicity of income taxes was a fine thing. It showed very clearly that those who might have paid high surtaxes avoided doing so by investing in tax-exempt securities."

Senator Smoot, Chairman of the Finance Committee, is not in favor of an extra session for tax reduction unless it can be assured in advance that the reductions will be worth while. It would be poor tactics, Senate leaders believe, to attempt a scaling of the levies only to find that little could be accomplished along this line. For that reason Senator Smoot and other Republicans of the Finance Committee will sound out the Senate during the coming session and ascertain just what could be done at an extra session.

May Readjust All Schedules.

When tax reduction is taken up by Congress it is probable that plans will be made to have a readjustment of the entire schedule, not alone the surtaxes, but the lower rates. During the last session, when the fight was made against the Mellon bill, Democrats and radicals combined in accusing the Republicans of trying to favor the wealthy at the expense of the poor, and it was this argument that carried such weight in the defeat of the Mellon program. Even in a Republican-controlled Congress such as the Sixty-ninth will be it would probably be a very difficult task to carry out merely a readjustment of the surtaxes. The influence of the West and Middle West would be thrown against such a proposal, and it is very doubtful if the Republicans could avert a break in their own ranks on such a plan.

Besides, so leaders think, the Republicans would be placed in a disadvantageous position in view of the Congressional elections of 1926. Democrats would do everything possible to make a campaign issue of the charge that the Republicans had helped only the rich.

Think Publicity Is Barred.

Unless the courts have decided the matter in the meantime, the Congress that deals with tax revision will also try to clear up the matter of allowing the newspapers to print the amounts of income tax paid. Senator Smoot and Senator Curtis said today that there was never any intention of permitting the newspapers to publish the names and amounts, adding that this subject was discussed in the conference between the Senate and the House on the revenue bill.

Both these Senators held that section 4,167 of the old law still prohibits the

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Two men were killed and six injured in an accident late last night on the Paris-Havre express train, operated in connection with the Havre-Southampton passenger boat service. One of the dead men is an Englishman, A. F. M. Martin, a resident of Paris, and the other is a Frenchman.

Among the injured is Walter Duranty, New York TIMES staff correspondent in Moscow. Mr. Duranty had been on sick leave in France during the past two months and was on his way to England to visit his family before returning to his post.

The train on which he was traveling jumped the track in the middle of a long tunnel, probably due to a broken rail. Five cars, including the restaurant car, were thrown violently across the up-track and smashed to pieces. Within a minute of the disaster a freight train, coming in the opposite direction, crashed into the wreck, destroying two cars. The compartment in which Mr. Duranty rode was smashed to matchwood when the train was derailed, and he was dragged some distance along the line. He suffered two compound fractures in the left leg and slight injuries to head and hands.

In the midst of the tunnel, which is more than a mile and a half long, the work of caring for the injured and salvaging the wreck was extremely difficult.

All that was possible was done for the injured who were taken to Havre. Mr. Duranty, who had been suffering recently from heart weakness, bore the operation of setting his leg well, and tonight it is reported that he is resting satisfactorily.

printing of these facts, and that the only prescription of the new law was that the names and amounts should be made public in the Collectors' offices. Despite the fact that these lists would be available to any one and be public records, Senator Smoot insisted that it would be against the law for a newspaper to have them copied and to print them.

Legislation for the relief of the farmers will probably be one of the principal matters before the short session.

Begins Work on Supply Bills.

Work has been begun by Representative Madden, Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, on the supply bills to be passed at the forthcoming session. Authorized expenditures this year will approximate $3,500,000,000, as compared with nearly $4,000,000,000 at the last session. It is the purpose of Mr. Madden to offer an amendment to one of the appropriation bills authorizing a refund to income tax payers whenever the Treasury surplus is in excess of $26,000,000. He informed the President of his purpose yesterday. But so far as can be learned Mr. Coolidge made no comment on the project. Mr. Madden and his associates plan to prune estimates to the bone at this session.

Under a special order adopted in June, just before Congress adjourned, the Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board gets the right of way in the House. It will come up for consideration early in December. Test votes taken on the measure foreshadow its defeat, although it passed the Senate by a substantial majority. It is also the purpose of the Democrats and Progressives to attempt to pass a bill providing for a reduction in freight rates.

House leaders are disposed to limit the work of this session to the routine supply bills and a few other measures that may be regarded as important. Bills proposing the passage of a corrupt practices act to be applied to political expenditures may be offered, and there is a likelihood that another attempt will be made to pass the bill that failed in the last session authorizing an appropriation of $150,000,000 for additions to the navy.

Control of House Assured.

Meanwhile Administration leaders are watching closely the results of the Congressional elections to determine if they will have working majorities in the new Congress. An unofficial tabulation compiled today by William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House, indicates that the Republicans will have a plurality over the Democrats in the House of 64, and that the Republican majority over the combined opposition of Democrats, Progressives, Farmer-Labor and Socialists will be 29.

Republicans—247.
Democrats—183.
Farmer-Labor—3.
Socialists—2.

Of the 247 Republican members of the House apparently elected, seven classified as La Follettites or Progressives. A coalition of these Progressives with the Democrats, Farmer-Labor and Socialists gives a total of 203, as against 232 regular Republicans.

The Progressive-Labor-Farmer-Socialist bloc with whom the Republican leadership will have to cope in the next House includes:

Progressives—Representatives Cooper, Voigt, Kvale, Schafer, Lambert, Beck, Browne, Schneider, Frear and Peavey of Wisconsin; Clague and Keller of Minnesota; Sinclair of North Dakota; Reid and King of Illinois.

Former Governor Robert D. Carey of Wyoming.

Ralph P. Merritt, President of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, Fresno, Cal.

Steck May Ask the Senate to Pass on the Iowa Election.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Senator Brookhart's lead over Daniel F. Steck, Democrat, in the close contest for the former's Senate seat was decreased from 1,116 to 1,025 this afternoon by corrections made by county auditors in half a dozen counties in the official count. The largest losses for Senator Brookhart were in Lee and Jackson Counties, where Mr. Steck gained 87 votes. The revised totals are: Brookhart, 447,530; Steck, 446,505.

The Senate may decide whether Senator Brookhart or Mr. Steck will occupy the seat. Preparations were being made by Democratic leaders and the Secretary of State for a possible contest. Clyde L. Herring, Democratic National Committeeman, had advised the State Executive Council that a recount could be requested and that all precautions necessary to an accurate review of the election by the Senate should be taken.

Senator Brookhart said that he did not expect a reversal of the unofficial result either by the official canvass, which begins Monday, or by a possible recount in the Senate.

"My information from nearly all parts of the State," the Senator said, "is that my majority will increase when the canvass is made. I think it will be a good deal bigger than the unofficial returns indicate."

The latitude of the Senate in such issues and the possibility that it might not be bound to follow the letter of the Iowa election laws are causing much speculation among politicians. Some of them were of the opinion that numerous ballots thrown out because of faulty identification marks might be accepted by the Senate on the ground that the intent of the voter was clear.

DRY CAMPAIGN COST $4,855.

Senator Robinson Won Re-election to the Senate Without Expense.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The Prohibition National Committee reported to the Clerk of the House today that during the recent campaign it had disbursements of $4,855 and contributions of $4,707.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate, reported to the Secretary of the Senate that he had no receipts and no expenditures in his campaign for re-election.

James Malone of Kansas, who was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Senate, reported contributions of $322 and expenditures of $1,880.

Arthur J. Brown, who for a time was the Independent Republican candidate for the Senate in Iowa, but withdrew, reported no contributions. He expended $6.35 for postage.

Woman to Cast Washington's Votes

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Hazard Cosgrove, widow of Washington's former Governor, will be chosen to take the State's seven electoral votes to Washington, D. C., and cast them for President Coolidge, it was learned today, when the winning electors assembled at their capitol. She will be the first woman in the history of the State to be selected for this honor.

REPUBLICANS TALK OF ALBANY PROGRAM

Conference Next Month Will Map Out a Legislative Program.

MAY PRESENT A DRY BILL

Measure Would Embarass Smith, If Passed, but Is Expected to Have Slim Chance.

A conference of Republican leaders and lawmakers will be held next month to map out a legislative program for the party.

While the return of Governor Smith to his present office by an impressive plurality in the year of a Republican landslide should have had a sobering effect on the party pilots and convinced them of the need to proceed warily, there is already much to indicate that the repeated attempts to "put the Governor in a hole" will be continued.

Already there is talk of introducing a State Prohibition Enforcement bill, as a substitute for the Mullan-Gage law which was repealed with the Governor's approval during the first year of his present Administration.

There is nothing in the Republican State platform to commit the party to any new enforcement legislation. Colonel Roosevelt, the Republican nominee for Governor, during the campaign went beyond the platform of his party and pledged himself to recommend the enactment of a drastic Prohibition Enforcement bill, but his defeat discharged the party of any obligation that pledge might have involved.

Slim Chances for Measure.

The chances of prohibition legislation of this character winning approval by the Governor are not regarded as promising, and it would seem that introduction of a substitute for the Mullan-Gage law could be for no purpose except to cause the Governor embarrassment.

The Republican leaders figure that during his next two years at Albany Governor Smith will lay the foundation for a new Presidential boom to culminate in the Democratic National Convention four years hence. Under the circumstances it is likely that he would be willing to go out of his way not to offend dry sentiment in the South and in the West and that in the future his attitude would be one of strict neutrality when approached on the subject of prohibition and prohibition enforcement.

By passing a new State prohibition statute which they will have the power to do with control of both legislative branches, the Republicans hope to place the Governor in a position where by vetoing it he will alienate support which might be helpful to him in his quest for the Presidency and by approving it he would grievously offend the "wets" who have been a strong factor in his support.

Republican plans, however, may go to pieces, for even with the loss of the Senate, which has been Democratic during his present term of office, the Governor will continue to hold the whip hand at the Capitol, through his veto power.

The Governor's Strength.

This may enable the Governor to bring recalcitrant Republicans in line on some questions at issue between him and the Legislature. The Democratic lawmakers next year, with the new home rule amendment in operation, will have little legislation of local importance to nurse along while Republicans from rural communities whose home rule does not obtain will have the usual large grist of bills which, while only local in scope, mean a lot ot the localities represented by their sponsors, who must go before their constituents every year at election time and whose re-election frequently depends on what success they have had in getting such measures passed and approved by the Governor.

The only means of retaliation at the command of the Republican Legislature will be the power vested in the Senate of confirming or disapproving appointments made by the Governor. By a too liberal exercise of this, the Republicans would be taking extreme chances for the appointments made by Governor Smith are most likely to find wide approval with the public, which, at the Assembly elections next year, might visit its disapproval on a Republican Legislature attempting to hobble the Democratic Chief Executive.

These elections promise to be of unusual importance and already there looms the probability of an aggressive fight by the Democrats, led by Governor Smith, for control of the 1926 Assembly. To the Legislature of that year will fall the task of making a reapportionment of the Senate and Assembly districts, based on the census which will be taken next year by the incoming Republican Secretary of State, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp.

With the Republicans in control of both branches of the Legislature they would be in a position to carve out Senate districts in this city made to order for Republican candidates in some sections where the Democratic candidates for the State Senate now have easy going. Of course, the Governor exercises veto power over reapportionment bills as over other legislative measures, but in the end he would be compelled to sign some bill even though it might not be to his liking.

With a Democratic Assembly and some measure of give and take in the framing of the reapportionment bill there would be less chance of discrimination that would militate against the Democrats and, incidentally, might be only another step in the whittling down of the representation of New York City in the lawmaking body, which has been in progress for a generation, as a result of the Republicans framing most of the reapportionment legislation during that period.

Governor Smith, accompanied by members of his family, left for Albany last night. His campaign headquarters at the Biltmore were closed up yesterday. He will remain at the capital for some days and then will go away for a rest, possibly to French Lick Springs in Indiana.

FIGHT GOES ON, SAYS NORRIS

But Senator Admits Progressives Face Almost Hopeless Task.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 7.—The fight of the Republican Progressives in the Senate is to continue, according to Senator G. W. Norris of Nebraska, one of their leaders, but he thinks the task will be almost hopeless in the face of the recent election.

Senator Norris was in Omaha today to undergo an operation on his left eye.

"The group of Progressives in Senate and House has been weakened both in numbers and influence by the election," said the Senator. "We may lose, but will keep on fighting to the very last."

Mr. Norris expressed surprise at the poor showing made by La Follette throughout the nation.

"I thought he would at least run second," says Mr. Norris. "I thought the contest would be between Coolidge and La Follette."

CONTESTS BURTON'S VOTE.

Coyle, Progressive Candidate for Congress, Cites 40 "Fraud" Acts.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—Charges that gross and repeated election frauds occurred throughout the Twenty-second District of Ohio are contained in a formal protest mailed to the clerk of the House of Representatives tonight by Albert F. Coyle, defeated Independent-Progressive candidate for Congress, contesting the election of Representative Theodore E. Burton, a Republican.

Proof of forty acts of fraud are in the possession of himself and Robert M. Campbell, his campaign manager, Mr. Coyle said.

On the unofficial count Mr. Burton had a majority of more than 20,000 in this county. He also had a majority in Lake and Geauga counties.

THRONG GREETS SMITH AT HIS ALBANY HOME

Governor Is Escorted to Executive Mansion by 5,000 Persons and a Band.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 7.—When Governor Smith stepped from the New York Central train here at 7:31 tonight a band and more than 5,000 persons greeted him enthusiastically and marched with him to the Executive Mansion. The Governor was fairly carried through the waiting room of the Union Station, while fifty policemen tried to make way for him.

Once outside the station he got into Mayor Hackett's automobile and followed the band up State Street to Eagle Street and to the Executive Mansion. The crowd was so great outside the mansion gates that the Governor was forced to stop and address the throng.

The police made a lane and the Governor was enabled to reach the steps of the mansion, where he again addressed the crowd.

"I have been spending the last two weeks in New York," he said, "and I am glad to get back home. I expect to stay here for the next two years, and while I may be lonesome because I shall not have the politicians around me, yet I know I shall have all you people, and I may not be so very lonesome after all. If the politicians can get along without me I certainly can get along without them."

WILBUR REFUSES OIL CASE PAPERS

Hughes Backs Up Action Explained as Designed to Keep Navy Secrets.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 7.—A communication from Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, stating that he was not at liberty to furnish the court certain confidential papers subpoenaed by the defense, was introduced in evidence today by the defense in closing its case in the Government's suit to cancel leases and contracts held by the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company in the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve.

The communication was an answer to a subpoena served on the Secretary to produce certain records and secret plans of the Navy Department to be used in evidence in the suit. Secretary Wilbur's letter, in part, said:

"All aforesaid papers, being found among the official files and records of the Department of the Navy, are of a confidential nature, containing matters of importance to the nation, the disclosure of which would, in his (Wilbur's) opinion, be injurious to the public interest and would prove prejudicial to the Government."

A concurring opinion from Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, also was presented, which, in part, stated:

"I concur in the view of the Secretary of the Navy that the disclosure of the contents of the papers would be incompatible with the public interest."

A letter from E. L. Doheny, head of the Pan-American interests, to President Coolidge, dated March 8, 1924, was previously presented by defense counsel. The letter stated his plan to continue construction of the Pearl Harbor Hawaiian fuel oil storage base, "irrespective of whether, during the pendency of the suit, which I understand is to be brought to test the legality of the contracts, the officers of the United States do or do not issue to the company vouchers for the work done." Mr. Doheny further stated that "the company has undertaken to do this upon my personal guarantee that it will be saved from any possible loss due to the continuance of this work."

In this communication Mr. Doheny stated that the reason for his company undertaking this work at this time without profit was because "I personally had been apprised of the necessity for this naval fuel oil supply station in connection with the navy's plan for defense of our west coast, and I had promised that our company would submit a bid to do the work and take its pay in crude oil."

According to Mr. Doheny's letter the original project at Pearl Harbor for the storage of 1,500,000 barrels of fuel oil has been completed and that is for the tanks. The additional project, comprising nearly 3,000,000 barrels, is nearing completion.

"To stop work on it," the letter stated, "would cause irreparable loss and leave the navy with an uncompleted plant of no benefit whatever to it, instead of perhaps the finest fuel station in the world."

Following completion of the defense case Government counsel announced that two witnesses in rebuttal would be called.

MORGENTHAU GIVES DENIAL.

Calls Chicago Tribune Story of His Resignation False.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, who recently announced his retirement as Chairman of the League of Nations Greek Refugee Settlement Commission, denied yesterday that his resignation had been caused by the embezzlement of the Greek refugee funds by a man named Kaufman, as reported in a Vienna cable dispatch to The Chicago Tribune. The following statement by Mr. Morgenthau was made public by the Jewish Telegraph Agency:

"The statements of The Chicago Tribune concerning my resignation as being due to the activities of a certain Mr. Kaufman, who, as alleged, embezzled funds of the League of Nations Greek Refugee Settlement Commission, is nothing but a tissue of lies."

"Kaufman is a Russian who had nothing to do with the work of the League's Greek Refugee Settlement Commission. He never handled a red cent of the refugee fund. In fact, I never met him. The money Kaufman used was probably the funds of the Italian order, Knights of Malta, which had nothing to do with the commission of which I was the head and from which I have resigned. My resignation cannot be ascribed in any way to the activities of any one. I resigned in September. I am not aware of any criticism on the part of the Greek press other than favorable to the commission.

"I have finished my job successfully. I have accomplished my two purposes—I have obtained financial support from the Governments to the extent of £10,000,000 and I have organized the work of recolonization of Greek refugees. It is now the task of younger men to take care of the administration work. My three associates, John Campbell of Great Britain and two Greeks, are still working. No one has been appointed as my successor."

NEW MEXICO STILL IN DOUBT

But Coolidge Continues to Lead Davis by 39,630 Votes to 38,041.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 7.—President Coolidge continued to hold a slight lead today as returns trickled in from Tuesday's election. Tabulations from 604 of the State's 715 precincts gave: Coolidge, 39,630; Davis, 38,041; La Follette, 5,827.

MRS. FERGUSON AIMS AT REAL AUTHORITY

She Will Be Governor, 'Just Like a Man,' Says Future Executive of Texas.

READY TO ACCEPT ADVICE

Says She Will Listen to Her Husband, as Well as to "Any One Interested in the State."

TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The advice of her husband will be taken by Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson, Governor-elect of Texas, "just as I will take the advice of any citizen of Texas interested in the welfare of the State," she said at her home here.

Her happiness unconfined, unflurried by the round of gayeties and congratulatory celebrations of which she has been the centre, yet cognizant of the responsibility that will be hers for two years, Mrs. Ferguson is looking forward to her inauguration day.

"I expect to be Governor, just as any man," Mrs. Ferguson said.

With Mrs. Ferguson will go to Austin her daughter, Dorrace, and her husband.

"I guess Dorrace will be the 'first lady of the State' and will be supervisor of the mansion and Jim will be an interested spectator," Mrs. Ferguson said.

There will be no material change in the family routine, she said. There will be entertaining, but Dorrace will be hostess.

"I know there is a responsibility to be shouldered," said the Governor-elect, "for I recall how hard Jim worked when he was Governor, and the office has its cares and trials, but I am not worried. I expect to take the advice of my husband, just as I will take the advice of any citizen of Texas interested in the welfare of the State. No one should be so foolish as to believe that one could tackle such a task alone."

Mrs. Ferguson hurdled another fallacy about herself when she declared that she does not do all the cooking for the family and does not intend to do it while she is Governor.

"Yes, I believe Jim has been vindicated by the election," she said, with reference to her husband's impeachment from the Governor's office, "or, rather, I believe that he has been vindicated of the wrong that they have tried to accuse him of."

Mrs. Ferguson has a large number of applications for State positions, she said, including every office at her command.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 7.—Complete returns from 108 counties tabulated up to 6 P. M. today show the following totals for Governor:

Dr. George C. Butte (R.), 143,063; Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson (D.), 179,533.

DAVIS THANKS HELPERS AT FAREWELL MEETING

Confers With Party Leaders on Plans to Make Up $200,000 Campaign Fund Deficit.

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, paid a visit yesterday to his campaign headquarters at the Hotel Belmont. It was a session of leave-taking at which Mr. Davis bid farewell to the host of workers, shaking hands with most of them and telling them how much he appreciated what they had done for him during the campaign. Mr. Davis wrote a letter of appreciation to John Nevins, his personal publicity man and adviser.

At a conference between Mr. Davis, Democratic National Chairman Clem L. Shaver and Jesse H. Jones, Director of Finance, ways and means of taking care of the deficit in the campaign fund, amounting to approximately $200,000, were discussed.

It is probable that the plan will follow that of other Presidential years, by calling on the Democratic organizations in the several States to make up the amount on a pro-rata basis. No decision was reached and the subject will come up again next week, when Mr. Davis expects to spend several days at his headquarters, prior to going away for a long rest.

SAYS 'STUNT CHURCHES' DO NOT HELP FARMERS

Pastor Warns the Country Life Association Against 'Salesmen of Religion.'

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Religious prophets are replaced by promoters and the salesman of religion takes the place of the minister when "stunt, circus or trick churches" supersede the old-fashioned country church, the Rev. C. M. McConnell of Chicago told the student section of the seventh national conference of the American Country Life Association at its opening session here tonight.

Speaking on the subject, "The Present Rural Condition—What Can the Church Do to Meet It?" the Rev. Mr. McConnell declared that the task of the Church was to interpret issues confronting it.

"There is still a place for a denominational church in the country community, but not room enough for competing denominations," he asserted. "The Church is a human, vital, living thing, made up of men, women and children. It has no place in the country community unless it provides the basis for fellowship and good-will.

"At the price of certain traditional theological beliefs, freedom of choice in forms of amusement, as well as preference in worship, fellowship must be bought. We have enough indifferences in the country without adding church rivalry to the list. We see no hope in the church in the country simply adding members to its list for the sake of annual Conference reports, or even for the worthy object of benevolences.

"If the church in the country is merely to perpetuate itself and exploit the farmer for the sake of worldwide organization or the maintenance of a creed, however good, we can do without it.

"Before the country church as an organization can render much help to the farmer some readjustments will have to be made. On the whole, we cannot say that the church has contributed much to the peace and good-fellowship of country communities.

"There are some country churches in which the universal elements are emphasized. There are, on the other hand, some churches which may be called stunt, circus or trick churches. Some new and startling thing is done and the impression is made that in order to be successful some new or distinct program must be put on. The promoter then replaces the prophet and the salesman of religion takes the place of the minister—by their stunts ye shall know them, becomes the new standard.

"What we of this way need to bear in mind the task of the Church is to interpret the issues."

Oregon Repeals Income Tax Law.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 7.—Oregon's income tax law, passed by the Legislature of 1923 and ratified by a small majority at a referendum, was repealed by an initiative measure at the election this week. With some scattering precincts not yet reported, the vote stood: 117,688 for repeal, 109,711 against repeal. The law was modeled after the Federal income tax law.

CONFUSION IN CHINA HINDERS OPIUM PARLEY

Minister Sze Tells Conference He Has Urged Peking to Enforce Ban on Poppy.

GENEVA, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The difficulty of drafting a general plan to curb opium-smoking in the Far East while the production of opium continues heavy in China was the subject of discussion among the powers having Far Eastern possessions during the session today of the International Opium Conference. It was contended that so much opium is smuggled out of China into other Far Eastern countries that any plans the powers themselves might frame would be made ineffective by contraband activities.

S. Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister to the United States, addressed the conference, admitting there was considerable illicit cultivation of opium in China, but saying this was due to the ambition of militarists, "who encourage local production of poppy as a means of raising revenue to purchase arms."

Happily, he added, the internal political situation had improved, and an important conference of provincial leaders would open soon at Peking to discuss administrative reforms. He had sent a message to Peking urging that prompt attention be given to the adoption of measures for the suppression of opium cultivation, which was altogether contrary to Chinese law.

Mr. Sze pleaded for world sympathy for China in her present plight, recalling Benjamin Franklin's message home from Europe that good and bad things done to individuals and States make a profound and lasting impression.

China's annual production of opium was estimated at between 8,000 and 15,000 tons. The leading delegates said tonight they would endeavor to draft a plan restricting the use of opium to the Far Eastern countries, but they insisted that it would never work until China stopped growing the product and an end was brought to its illicit exportation.

RAIL UNIONS WILL PRESS FIGHT ON LABOR BOARD

Will Meet in Cleveland to Discuss Howell-Barkley Bill to Abolish It.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Chief executives and representatives of twenty railroad brotherhoods and affiliated organizations will meet here tomorrow morning "to discuss the Howell-Barkley bill and decide our future course of action." The bill seeks to abolish the Railroad Labor Board. It will be the first bill on the calendar when Congress reconvenes.

Warren S. Stone, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who, on Oct. 24, issued the call for the meeting, today said he had received acceptances from practically all of the twenty organizations. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, wrote to Mr. Stone that he would send a representative.

The chief executives of the brotherhoods and affiliated organizations strongly favor the adoption of the Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board and to set up in its place legislation providing for arbitration in line with the old Newlands act. The bill would create a national board of mediation and conciliation, composed only of public members, and plans boards of adjustment, composed of railroad managers and employes only, to handle grievances and to interpret rules.

Brotherhood leaders say the bill is offered as a substitute for the labor provisions of the Transportation act.

ARGENTINE VIEW OF POLL.

La Nacion Sees Labor Rebuked and Extremism Repudiated.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 7.—Commenting the results of the American election, La Nacion, which published two full pages of cabled reports on the returns, today emphasized the outcome as a defeat for the American Federation of Labor upon its giving for the first time its support to a political party.

The editorial expresses the opinion that in thus departing from its former policy the federation finds itself in a disadvantageous position, as formerly it was able to obtain the approval of labor legislation from both the Democrats and Republicans.

"But now," the newspaper declares, "the federation cannot say that the labor measures passed will be its own, since they will be dictated by Congress and a President whom it frankly opposed."

The editorial adds that the defeat of La Follette "makes it clear that an immense majority of the people of the United States continues frankly opposed to the extremism of the Left, whose genuine representative is the Government of Moscow—its flesh, blood and bones of the Third International."

TILSON SENATE CANDIDATE.

Connecticut Representative Seeks Election to Brandegee's Place.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—John Q. Tilson of this city, Representative for the Third Congressional District, who for the last fourteen years has been representing Connecticut in the lower house of Congress, announced his candidacy for the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Brandegee.

The special election will be held on Dec. 16.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 7.—Among those suggested for the Democratic nomination for Senator to succeed Senator Brandegee are Representative F. R. Kenyon, O'Sullivan of Derby, Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, Hamilton Holt of Woodstock and Don C. Seitz of Greenwich.

For the Republican nomination a hard fight is expected between Representative Tilson and Representative Schuyler F. Merritt of Stamford, who has the backing of the Roraback State organization.

3D PARTY TO FORM FIXED ORGANIZATION

Arthur Garfield Hays Says Results in New York "Seem Nothing Less Than Amazing."

The Progressive Party of New York will proceed without delay to form a permanent organization, it was announced yesterday at the La Follette-Wheeler headquarters, 25 West Forty-third Street. A conference of members of the State and City Campaign Committees, together with other active leaders in the campaign, has been called for Nov. 15 at the Civic Club to discuss plans. This meeting will be preliminary to a larger gathering for the same purpose, to be held probably in Cooper Union.

"At a meeting of the Campaign Committee," said State Chairman Arthur Garfield Hays, "it was voted to continue temporary headquarters at 25 West Forty-third Street and to take permanent headquarters later. It was also decided to develop the organization of the Progressive Party throughout the State, in cooperation with the Conference for Progressive Political Action and all other groups which helped to bring out the 481,000 La Follette votes in this State. It was unanimously agreed that there was nothing but encouragement to be drawn from the results in New York State, in which one out of every seven voters signified a desire to form a new party, with a Progressive program.

"In view of the misrepresentation made of the La Follette platform, the tremendous pressure brought to bear upon employes by their employers, the total absence of any organization when the campaign was started and the State campaign fund of less than $26,000, the results seem nothing less than amazing, particularly as there were towns and villages in which we could not hold a meeting or form a local organization. We have only to contrast the result of this first election of ours with the result of the first Progressive campaign in 1912, when the Republican Party engaged to see how much cause we have for encouragement.

"I cannot say enough in praise of the devotion and enthusiasm of our local workers, not one of whom was paid, under and many of whom, people of small means, paid the expenses of meetings and organization out of their own pockets. A movement which has in it such fervor and devotion to principle cannot be downed. It is bound to go on with increasing numbers and vigor.

"Permanent headquarters will be obtained and an efficient permanent staff installed to carry on the work of organizing every town and every village in the State for the next election."

It was announced at the headquarters of Representative F. H. LaGuardia that a reorganization of the Progressive ticket has resulted in the former Young Men's Progressive Club being revived as a permanent institution in Harlem. A reorganization meeting under the old charter will be held at Roosevelt Hall, 343 East 115th Street, next Monday evening. Representative LaGuardia will preside. The Joint Twentieth Congressional District Campaign Committee will celebrate the election of LaGuardia next Sunday at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue.

"Against organized stupidity and organized plunder even the gods contend in vain.

"The election of Coolidge and Dawes upsets one's faith in democracy.

"To be stewed in oil for four years, the doom pronounced by the American people upon themselves, makes the punishment fit the crime.

"You alone, marshaling the forces of righteousness relentlessly against the hosts of Morgan in the two houses of Congress, can stop the thieves whose names are writ in oil from substituting a beast for the American eagle.

"If Sodom and Gomorrah were worth saving for the sake of ten righteous men, our country is worth saving for the millions who cast their votes for the Progressive ticket.

"I, for one, am proud to enlist under your banner, following the dauntless leadership that always lost the day and always won the morrow."

DEFEATED CANDIDATE COMMITS SUICIDE

J. E. Crockett of Shelbyville Grieves Over Failure to Become Illinois State Attorney.

Special to The New York Times.

PANA, Ill., Nov. 7.—John E. Crockett, aged 49, Democratic candidate for State's Attorney of Shelby County, who met defeat in Tuesday's election, ended his life in his office at Shelbyville last night by taking aspirin. He left a note to his wife expressing regret for his act.

Despondency over his failure to win and financial reverses are ascribed as the causes. Mr. Crockett had served Shelbyville as Mayor and the county as Master in Chancery. He was City Attorney at the time of his death.

Coolidge Clinches North Dakota

FARGO, N. D., Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Virtually complete returns today on Tuesday's Presidential balloting gave North Dakota's five electoral votes to President Coolidge. In the State race the Non-Partisan League, which has been the chief supporter of Senator La Follette, emerged generally victorious. It elected a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Insurance Commissioner and all three Railroad Commissioners. The anti-League faction elected an Auditor, Attorney General and Commissioner of Labor and Agriculture.

REPUBLICANS HAVE CAMPAIGN SURPLUS

organization had been conducted on the budget basis which the President had demanded and that the committee had lived within their budget requirements.

Money Used Without Waste.

"Throughout this campaign," said Mr. Emerson, "the same scrupulous regard has been given to using the public's money without waste as it would be in a business organization. The money was handled by expert accountants and trained bank clerks. The books were balanced each night. All bills received and approved were paid on the day of receipt. The offices have been laid out on an economical basis. All the furniture is second-hand and rented. There are no carpets on the floors. As the campaign ends we have no left-over supplies of material. We are several thousand dollars under the budget laid out for our operations in this office last July.

"We proceeded on the theory that there was no reason why money should be wasted in a political campaign. It is true that the work is done mostly by volunteers. But it is easy to get efficient volunteers for political work as it is for any other kind of work. And this [illegible] efficient [illegible] by expert [illegible] the committee [illegible] work, which is their main object, and frees them from worry which comes from an inefficient and badly managed office.

"We are much gratified that a knowledge that efficiency was being applied to this organization has appealed to the voters of this country. Over 90,000 individual men and women have sent in contributions to this fund. The average contribution will be not far from $50. As far as we know this is the largest number of persons who have ever contributed to a national campaign anywhere. We hope the foundations have been laid for an even larger public response four years from now. Such a response would make large contributions unnecessary.

Conducted Like a Bank.

"The men who have given loyal volunteer service to this campaign return to their respective desks with the satisfaction which comes not only from the successful result of the election, but also from the fact that all their bills are paid and everything in the headquarters in orderly and efficient shape."

Mr. Emerson explained that it was decided at the beginning that if the campaign was to be run along business lines it should be conducted just like a banking institution.

"We were always ready for an investigating committee to step in and look our books over," he said. "In fact we required the Borah Committee as our bank examiners and there was no behind-the-door financing. Every office kept its own budget system and there were frequent reports to Chairman Butler. Because of our business system we were able to run the campaign with very few people. Practically the same force we started in with was kept until the end. Even our force was cut down as soon as the election ended and the only workers for now are a few who are making out their reports."

SAYS LEGION STANDS FOR NATIONAL DRAFT

Commander Drain Tells Coolidge Veterans Believe in a World Court as a Peace Body.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Coolidge made public today a letter from James A. Drain, National Commander of the American Legion, who assured him that "your sentiments" as to the observance of Armistice Day are the sentiments of the Legion. The letter was in reply to a communication from the President, who suggested that the Legion emphasize the need of peace in its Armistice Day celebration.

The Legion desires peace, its Commander wrote, and "strives for peace," as its opportunities for acquainting itself with "the alternative of peace have been exceptional."

Mr. Drain said the Legion "is doing what it can to advance the day when armaments may be reduced, and hopes that its labors may help to hasten the time when a convention of the powers will be called to reduce all military establishments. But until that day does come the Legion will insist that the United States take steps of its own to put war and the prospect of war more remote."

"To this end," he continued, "the Legion has long advocated, and will press for enactment at the coming session of Congress what is popularly known as the universal draft bill, which would place on all citizens an equal obligation in war by utilization through the Government of man power to fight, man power to work, factory power to produce and money power to finance. This is a peace measure because it places the burdens of war equally upon all citizens. It is a preparedness measure because it provides the nation with the means for defending itself with a maximum of efficiency and minimum of cost.

"The Legion believes there will never be lasting peace until we have justice between nations, and that this means the erection of some form of competent world court. It will put forth all efforts to attain this.

"Until an international concord is attained for the reduction of armaments and the adjudication of controversies on the principles of justice, the United States must maintain a navy the equal of any in the world, a small but competent army capable of quick expansion, adequate air forces, a national guard, and adequate reserve forces for air, land and sea duty. Further, aeronautical industry must be kept currently informed and prepared in peace time for its emergency obligations.

"The Legion will emphasize on Armistice Day the substance of your words that 'humanity has more reason for unity than for discord.'"

SAYS COOLIDGE WANTS NATION 'DRY AS KANSAS'

The Rev. Dr. Wilson, Temperance Leader, Tells of White House Talk.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Dr. Clarence True Wilson of Washington, D. C., Chairman of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Welfare of the Methodist Episcopal Church, believes prohibition will become "a reality," according to an interview published in The Chicago Daily News today. Dr. Wilson spent an hour with President Coolidge a week ago.

"I came away from the White House thoroughly convinced that President Coolidge, while proceeding cautiously in accord with his usual practice, is determined that prohibition shall become a "reality," Dr. Wilson said, according to The Daily News, "and I am willing to predict that the vigorous action he contemplates, with the energetic support of a dry Congress, which he is practically sure of receiving, will make the United States as a whole as dry as Kansas ever was in the days when the rest of the nation was dripping wet.

"President Coolidge is an ardent dry, and now that he is Chief Executive of the nation in his own right, he will not be slow in taking action. . . .

"President Coolidge has now felt it his privilege to seek material alteration of the Government policy in the matter of prohibition enforcement as long as he was finishing the unexpleted Administration of President Harding, whose ideas he has sought faithfully to carry out. Now he can go forth in his own right.

"Law-abiding people need have no fear of President Coolidge's personal stand on prohibition. He is unequivocally a 'driest of the dry.' It should be remembered that as Governor of Massachusetts he vetoed the first 'light wine and beer' bill passed by any State Legislature. His statement accompanying the veto sizzled with denunciation of any State attempting to circumvent the intent of the Eighteenth Amendment or to fail to cooperate in its enforcement."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—No comment was made at the White House today on the published statement by the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson relative to the President's attitude on prohibition enforcement, but it was pointed out that the President's position for strict enforcement and observance of the law had been carefully stated in his message to Congress a year ago.

Available officials at the White House, however, could not recall the visit of Dr. Wilson. At the same time, officials reiterated that the President could but consider as a violation of the proprieties any public discussion of questions discussed in the President's offices.

FOKKER ARRIVES TO BUILD AIRCRAFT

JERSEY PLANT GETS WORK

Other Notables on the Mauretania Include Sir Andrew Caird and Sir Willoughby Dickinson.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from England and France on the Cunarder Mauretania was H. G. Fokker, the Dutch airplane manufacturer, who talked briefly to the reporters about his business plans and was very optimistic over the outlook for commercial aviation. He said that the United States Government had contracted with him to construct 100 planes for military purposes at the Fokker plant, known as the Atlantic Aircraft Company, at Hasbrouck, N. J.

Mr. Fokker said that he was manufacturing 500 airplanes a year in his plant in Holland, the majority of the machines going to the Latin republics in the Western Hemisphere. England and France, he added, are manufacturing airplanes for commercial and military purposes.

"About 10 per cent. of the planes built in Europe now," Mr. Fokker continued, "are used for commercial purposes and the remaining 90 per cent. go to the armies and navies. Japan is also making her own airplanes under the direction of German engineers. We are supplying Spain, Ital

RULES AGAINST KLAN IN WALKER LAW CASE

Buffalo Supreme Court Judge Holds State Can Force Registration of Members.

HOODED ORDER CONDEMNED

IMMEDIATE APPEAL SOUGHT

Postponement of Trial of District Kleagle, Wounded in Affray, Will Be Asked.

BUFFALO, Nov. 7.—Supreme Court Justice Pooley, in a decision handed down this morning, upheld the constitutionality of the Walker law aimed at the Ku Klux Klan and requiring registration with the Secretary of State of the membership rolls of incorporated secret fraternal organizations.

The Walker law prohibits the existence of secret, oath-bound associations except those named in the benevolent orders law and labor organizations, and compels all other secret associations to file with the Secretary of State a copy of its constitution and by-laws, its roster of membership and the minutes of all meetings at which action is taken to promote or defeat legislation or to support or to defeat a candidate for political office.

Steps for an immediate appeal from the decision were made by Julius A. Grass, Klan counsel. Mr. Grass prepared his notice of appeal which will be filed tomorrow morning. It is planned to argue the case next month. He said the Klan would carry the case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

Justice Pooley made the decision, following the serving of a writ of habeas corpus by a Klan official after hearing evidence in John Doe proceedings brought against the Ku Klux Klan by Henry W. Killeen in behalf of Charles Desmond, candidate for the Assembly in the Second Erie District, who was defeated Tuesday by Henry W. Hutt.

During the proceedings an alleged membership roster of the Klan in Western New York, turned over to the police by Mayor Schwab of Buffalo with the announcement that he had received it from persons unknown to him, was admitted in evidence. The roster subsequently was opened for public inspection.

Application will be made in City Court tomorrow to stay the proceeding against George C. Bryant, District Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, until the higher courts have passed on the appeal from today's decision. He is charged with violation of the Walker law.

Bryant, who was seriously wounded in a pistol battle in Kensington between Thomas H. Austin, alleged Klan investigator, and William C. Obertean, a police secret service operative with membership in the Klan, was arrested after his release from the hospital. The specific charge against Bryant was that he had attended a Klan meeting just before the shooting with the knowledge that the Klan had not complied with the law. It was understood that this was to be made a test case.

Austin and Obertean were killed and the evidence indicated that they had shot each other.

Justice Pooley's decision said in part:

"This legislation apparently is aimed at the organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, although it is not specifically named. All the briefs submitted, as well as the oral arguments, assume the applicability, and the Court may indulge in the assumption.

"The statute is assailed on the ground that it is class legislation wrongfully restricting the liberty of certain citizens in an unreasonable and arbitrary manner.

"It cannot be questioned that the Legislature has the power to enact laws applicable to particular classes, under the police power of the State, having regard to the public safety, the protection of public morals, and the general welfare of the people.

"It may be assumed that the Legislature informed itself of conditions bearing upon the proposed legislation. These conditions probably are not such as would enable the court to take the judicial notice of them, but the Legislature could well have learned the facts of the Klan. It is a matter of common knowledge that this organization functions largely at night, its members disguised by hoods and gowns and doing things calculated to strike terror into the minds of the people.

"It is claimed that they are organized against certain of the citizens by reason of race or religion. This, of course, cannot be tolerated under our form of Government. If what is claimed of it is true it strikes at fundamental principles of our Government, principles that have been recognized as the foundation of our liberties. If they are true the State has the power to eradicate them and is not required to await active violations before enacting legislation. * * *

"The State is bound to maintain order within its boundaries, promote the general welfare, protect its citizens in their personal and property rights. In so doing the Legislature frequently has been called upon to enact what is denominated class legislation and has been upheld by the courts."

Judge Maul of the City Court tonight said that he would in ten days dispose of the John Doe proceedings. His decision as to whether or not to issue warrants has been withheld pending the Supreme Court decision.

PHILADELPHIA PLANS FAIR.

Celebration of Independence Anniversary to Cost $5,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Dates for the observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence were announced today by the directors of the Sesquicentennial Association, who have adopted a tentative construction program to cost about $5,000,000. The celebration is to begin June 14 and end Sept. 17, 1926.

The construction program includes an administration building, beautification of the parkway between Logan Square and the Art Gallery, and extensive improvements to the Commercial Museum, Horticultural Hall and other buildings. The giant stadium to be built by the city at a cost of $2,000,000 is not included in the program.

It is planned to request the Federal Government and various States to construct a "Temple of American Fame" and buildings for State exhibits. Foreign Governments will not be invited to send exhibits, the directors said.

The entertainment program will include dramatization of historic events at Independence Hall and other places, exhibitions of art, literature, industry, agriculture, horticulture, dairy and live stock, military and naval, and a continuous program of athletic events, pageantry and children's carnivals.

FRANCE WELCOMES BALDWIN'S CABINET

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Premier Baldwin's choice of Austen Chamberlain as Foreign Secretary has been received in France with great satisfaction. Mr. Chamberlain is known as a resolute partisan of the Entente with France while at the same time an eager worker for reconciliation with Germany.

There was considerable anxiety here lest Lord Curzon should resume his old position, and Mr. Baldwin is congratulated for avoiding that issue. For Lord Curzon's knowledge and skill in foreign affairs the French have the greatest respect, but there has been some resentment over the tone of some of his correspondence with France.

Mr. Chamberlain's presence at the head of the Foreign Office is taken to indicate that Franco-British relations will continue to develop an atmosphere of sincere cordiality. The Journal des Debats says that his appointment is cordially welcome in France, for which he has always shown the sincerest friendship.

The nomination of Winston Churchill as Chancellor of the Exchequer has caused some surprise here. At a time when so many interallied financial arrangements are imminent Mr. Churchill's task will be a most difficult one, it is believed here, and that it has yet to be shown whether he has the qualities of a real negotiator. It is said he certainly can be counted on to defend with clarity and vigor the interests of his own country. Toward France he is known to have a warm regard, but it is said he is likely to prove a hard bargainer in any negotiations on the debt and other questions. His inclusion in the Cabinet is interpreted here as an indication that Mr. Baldwin does not intend his Government to be reactionary conservative, but progressive and liberal.

SOVIET 'AT HOME' IN LONDON

Brilliant Reception Given at the Old Russian Embassy.

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Christian Rakovsky, Soviet Chargé d'Affaires in London, held a brilliant reception tonight at Chesham House, the old home of the Russian Embassy, where dazzling entertainments were given in the Czarist days.

The present occasion was a double celebration, first, of the seventh anniversary of the Russian revolution, and, second, of the Soviet trade delegation's having regained possession of the embassy from the White Russians who had occupied it since the war as headquarters for refugee, relief and Red Cross work.

The red flag today waved over the building and was the principal decoration in the reception rooms, being draped over all the fireplaces. The staffs of the trade delegation and all the Russian officers in London had a holiday and attended the reception, as did also a number of members of the diplomatic corps. No list of invitations, however, had been given out for publication. Virtually all the Foreign Office officials and Premier Baldwin are known to have been invited, but they did not attend.

M'CARL ANSWERS NAVY SUIT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—J. Raymond McCarl, Controller General of the United States, who ordered a deduction of 20 per cent. in the pay of certain naval officers last March because of alleged erroneous payments to them for their alleged dependents, filed today his answer to the suit to test his ruling in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. He not only justifies his action but again questions the jurisdiction of the court.

The test case was brought by Commander John F. Cox, stationed at the Bureau of Ordnance, who was required to pay back to the Government, at the rate of 20 per cent. of his pay allowance, the amount considered to have been erroneously allowed him for his mother, Mrs. Isidora Cox of Spencer, Ind.

Mr. McCarl contends that Mrs. Cox is not dependent upon her son, but has real and personal property valued in excess of $10,000 and has an income of about $750 a year. The deduction of 20 per cent. is a lawful proposition, the court is told, and it is asked to dismiss Commander Cox's petition for a restraining order.

J. J. DAVIS GUEST OF BARRON

Secretary Tells Diners Coolidge Prospect Checked Unemployment.

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, who will sail for South America today, was guest of honor last night at a dinner given by Clarence W. Barron, publisher of The Wall Street Journal, at the Ritz-Carlton. Mr. Davis said that he had noted that unemployment had checked about Sept. 1.

"It happened during a political campaign for the first time in our history because the people were beginning to believe that Calvin Coolidge would be elected," he said. "Since the election industry is already picking up."

Secretary Davis said he believed the American working men had as much common sense as any other portion of the population.

"You can't fool him with 'isms' when he has a house, an automobile and children in school and college," Mr. Davis said. "For the thirty years I have been in the labor movement I have always fought Communism and socialism. As long as we keep America free for individual initiative it will be the greatest country on earth."

FOUND HANGING IN WOODS.

New York Chauffeur Ended Life at Bear Mountain Park.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The body of Joseph Gehri, a New York chauffeur, was found in the woods in Bear Mountain Park early today by watchers on the lookout for forest fires. Gehri apparently had committed suicide by hanging himself with a piece of clothesline. One end of the line was fastened about his neck with a loopknot, the other was thrown over a fork in a tree and made fast to a sapling about ten feet away.

The police believe that he first tied the rope to the sapling, then climbed the tree and after knotting the other end of the rope about his neck jumped. The body was identified by Coroner Victor Shankey of Haverstraw through a tailor's label in the dead man's coat.

CUSHMAN AGAIN SENTENCED

Appellate Division Rules Against Cafe Proprietor.

Robert Cushman, former proprietor of a cabaret at 160 West Fourth Street, who was convicted in Special Sessions on May 4, 1923, of permitting a 15-year-old girl to dance in the place, was sentenced again in that court yesterday to thirty days in the workhouse, following the Appellate Division's refusal to allow him an appeal.

Cushman's lawyer announced that the case probably would be taken to the Court of Appeals, in which event Cushman would be released from the workhouse on bail to await the outcome.

LONDON TIMES HEAD SAYS LABOR ERRED

HOPES FOR GOLD STANDARD

Expects It Will Be Re-established in England Within Eighteen Months.

Sir Campbell Stuart, K. B. E., director of The London Times, arrived yesterday from England on the Cunarder Mauretania, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Ernest Stuart, to pay a visit to Canada and also to the West Indies to inspect the cable facilities from the islands to Great Britain. He said that the return of Mr. Baldwin to power at the head of the Conservative Party was a very good thing and that the portfolio for Foreign Affairs could not have been placed in more capable hands than those of Austen Chamberlain. In an interview at the Hotel Vanderbilt, where he will stay during the coming week, he said:

"It would be a mistake to regard too seriously the statements made by representatives of the Labor Party during the general election on questions of finance and financial policy. It is the case with all parties, and particularly with the Labor Party—for reasons that you will readily understand—that irresponsible statements are made, even by responsible people, as to what they might and might not do under hypothetical circumstances. During our recent election many of our Labor leaders said some very foolish things: hence their failure at the polls.

"Foolish Russian Blunder."

"The absurdities of their Russian treaty negotiations were mainly responsible for their defeat. It is widely believed that had the Labor Government followed the advice of Mr. Snowden, their Chancellor of the Exchequer, they would never have made their astoundingly foolish Russian blunder. But American observers must not think that because Labor has received a setback they are a thoroughly discredited party. The movement is bound to grow in strength, and some day we shall certainly have the Labor Party in power as well as in office.

"Naturally finance is a subject which looms large in the minds of the British public. They know that it is a very delicate piece of mechanism, and that it is very easy to mishandle. Because of the ignorance of financial questions which prevails among Labor men, they are apt to say all sorts of wild things without knowing the import of what they are saying, or being able to measure its effects. Thus in the debates in the last Parliament has frequently been able to pour ridicule upon those Labor projects which in any way involve questions of finance. Some of the more far-seeing of the Labor leaders realize this, and are very anxious to pursue a moderate program. The danger really comes from the noisy, wild men of the party; but unless I misread the situation entirely, the great moderate element of the Labor Party will find means for short-circuiting, in one way or another, the activities of this group. The average British voter is opposed to extremism in all its forms. It is important to realize this in order to understand the tendency of modern British political evolution.

Expect Gold Standard Back.

"There are high hopes in England that we shall be able to return to the gold standard within the next eighteen months, but of course much depends upon what happens in the United States. If America enjoys a further burst of prosperity the rest of the world cannot fail to gain, directly or indirectly, for it would facilitate the return of Europe to the gold standard, which, as you know, is just as important to the United States as it is to Europe. I have noticed that America is taking more interest in foreign securities, particularly European. I hope this will continue, for it is a step in the right direction for America to relieve London of some part of the enormous capital demands which are made upon it.

"It is also a wise and proper use to make of America's gold reserve and credit-creating power to make loans for reproductive purposes, where the embargo on the export of gold from Great Britain will expire at the end of 1925. It is hoped that it will not be necessary to renew it. Many factors, of course, enter into the problem, whether or not it will be safe to dispense with the embargo then; but, as I have said, more depends upon the course of economic conditions in America than upon condition elsewhere. There will certainly be no fresh inflation in Great Britain to postpone the return to a free gold market."

Just before sailing from the other side Sir Campbell Stuart gave a dinner in the Salon des Batailles in the palace of Versailles by special permission of the French Government, at which were present, in addition to Their Royal Highnesses and the Premier of France, descendants of French and English families who have played a part in Canadian history. The Canadian History Society in France was formally inaugurated at the dinner.

SEIZE MEN WITH BOMBS IN A BARCELONA FIGHT

One Policeman Is Killed in Running Street Battle — French Hold Border Plotters.

MADRID, Nov. 7.—There was a serious affray at Barcelona yesterday between the police and a number of armed men who, in groups of three or four, were making their way toward the military barracks.

The police held up two of the men, one of whom was in possession of a hand grenade. The policemen, calling their comrades to their aid, started in pursuit of another group of men. Five of these were arrested, three of whom were found to be carrying grenades and dynamite with fuse attachments.

Half an hour later the police endeavored to arrest two other men whose conduct appeared suspicious. These men fired on the police, killing one and wounding another, and a running fight ensued, during which about 100 shots were exchanged. The police eventually succeeded in arresting both men.

These facts are officially vouched for, and have caused some alarm. What the purpose of the men was is a mystery, and it is impossible to say whether they were merely criminals, such as abound in large Mediterranean ports like Barcelona, or belong to some organization with definite plans and political aspirations.

There also is a rumor, though uncorroborated, that an affray occurred in Biscay, Province of Vera, in which two military police were killed.

PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 7.—Twenty-two Spaniards were arrested today at the border station here, where, according to the belief of the police authorities, they were waiting for a passenger on a Spanish train who later was found by customs officers to be carrying fifteen automatic pistols.

The police released all but six of the Spaniards, and two of those under arrest are said to have confessed that they were en route to Spain to take part in a plot against the Government. One is alleged to have confessed that he was to shoot one of the members of the Spanish Directorate.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Ramsay MacDonald's Labor Cabinet gave up their seats of office to the King at Buckingham Palace today, and Stanley Baldwin's new Ministers received them a few minutes later, kissed the King's hand and took the oath.

The main discussion on the new Cabinet continues to centre around Mr. Churchill's appointment as Chancellor of the Exchequer, to the exclusion of Sir Robert Horne.

Sir Douglas Hogg, the new Attorney General, today confirmed the report that the Chancellorship of the Exchequer was first offered to Neville Chamberlain. "He deliberately refused that office," said Sir Douglas, and has accepted one of lower rank, solely in order that he might devote his great abilities and unrivaled knowledge of municipal affairs to the solution of the housing problem."

Sir Robert Horne, in a speech tonight, said the country could congratulate itself on the Cabinet which had been formed. He compared it with the great cabinets of the past, and paid tribute to the ripe experience and political sagacity of its members.

Referring particularly to the New Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Robert proceeded:

"I should like to wish Mr. Winston Churchill very great success in the office which has been given to him. It is one of the greatest offices in the State. You have now installed in that position a man of brilliant gifts, of quite extraordinary mental capacity, and of assiduity in industry which I think is unsurpassed by any other person with whom I am acquainted. We all wish him that great success in his administration which is necessary to the welfare of our kingdom."

There has been some criticism over the non-inclusion of the Earl of Derby in the new Cabinet. Replying to a question put to him by a Provincial paper, Lord Derby said:

"In the interests of strict accuracy, I wish to say that no post was ever offered to or declined by me."

The dissolution honors list of the Labor Government issued tonight is one of the shortest on record. It contains only five names.

William Graham, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, and Ben Spoor, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury, are made Privy Councilors; Sir Cecil Hurst, legal adviser to the Foreign Office, gets the K. C. M. G. Sir Cecil and M. Fromageot of France were chosen as two jurists appointed by the London Conference last July to decide what clauses, if any, of the Dawes report are extraneous to the Treaty of Versailles. Sir Cecil also played an important part as a member of the British delegation to the recent League Assembly in Geneva, which drafted the protocol for reduction of armaments.

W. H. M. Selby and C. P. Duff, two of Mr. MacDonald's private secretaries, are appointed Companions of the Royal Victorian Order.

Newspapers Advise Baldwin.

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—King George bade farewell today to Ramsay MacDonald and his Ministers and later presided at a second Privy Council meeting in which he invested the new Conservative Ministers with their offices. This included the time-honored ceremony of kissing the King's hand and delivery of the official seals.

The remaining appointments to Mr. Baldwin's Ministry are not likely to be announced officially before next Tuesday. It is generally agreed that, as in the Labor Government, there will be one woman member in the new Administration, and that the choice will fall upon the Duchess of Atholl. In the MacDonald Ministry Miss Margaret Bondfield held the post of Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labor.

Today was a sort of "moving day." After a Privy Council held in the morning for the surrender of the seals of office by the MacDonald Ministry, the retiring officials took leave of the members of their departments. All wrote the customary letters thanking their staffs for loyal assistance. The Prince of Wales was among those who attended Premier MacDonald.

Winston Churchill, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, already has succeeded in making himself the central figure in public estimation and popular attraction. He will move into No. 11 Downing Street when John R. Clynes vacates the house early next week. The residences at 10 and 11 Downing Street are communicating houses, so that Premier Baldwin and Mr. Churchill always will be in intimate association. Mr. MacDonald and his family vacated No. 10 tonight, returning to their Hampstead residence.

Premier Baldwin has gone to Chequers Court to spend the week-end, and tonight there is no political lull, which is likely to continue until next Tuesday.

NEW COLUMBIA TRUSTEE.

Dr. Walter B. James Succeeds Judge Robert S. Lovett.

The election of Dr. Walter B. James as a Life Trustee of Columbia University was announced yesterday by President Nicholas Murray Butler. Dr. James succeeds Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Board of the Union Pacific system, who recently resigned because of ill health.

Dr. James served for three years as Alumni Trustee, being replaced this year upon the expiration of his term by H. Hobart Porter, President of the American Water Works and Electric Company. The Columbia board is now complete.

Dr. James was born in Baltimore May 11,1858, and was graduated from Yale in 1879. He received his M. D. from Columbia in 1883. He became a Columbio LL. D. in 1904 and an M. A. of Yale in 1906. He is now Professor of Clinical Medicine in the Columbia Medical School. He is a member of the New York Academy of Medicine, New York County Medical Society and the Practitioners' Society. His clubs include the Century and the University.

LAYS VOTE TO SENTIMENT.

Prof. McMahon of Columbia Discusses Mrs. Ferguson's Victory.

"The election of Ma Ferguson as Governor of Texas is an example of how women voters are swayed by sentiment or even sentimentality," said Professor Arthur McMahon, head of the Department of Government of Columbia University, when he addressed more than eight hundred persons at the university's Institute of Arts and Sciences last night. The speaker attributed Mrs. Ferguson's election in considerable measure to the fact that she was the wife of a former Governor, and, in such a role, her entrance into politics had therefore a great appeal to the voters of her sex.

Professor McMahon declared that a third party could become strong only after the industrial workers of the East allied in spirit with the Western farmers and the solid South.

SOVIET TAKES OVER OLD EMBASSY IN PARIS

Rakovsky Asks About Secret Chamber, but Is Told There Is No Such Thing.

PARIS, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The Russian Embassy, which for the last seven years has sheltered leaders of the Opposition to the Russian Soviet, now is in the possession of the Soviet Government and the red flag will be flown from its mast-head in a few days, when Leonid Krassin, newly appointed Soviet Russian Ambassador to France, arrives here.

Meantime two French policemen are on guard over the building. They were chosen by Christian Rakovsky, Soviet Russian Chargé d'Affaires at London, who is a Bulgarian by birth.

M. Rakovsky formally received the property from Adjutant Jeannot, who, as a member of General Lavergne's mission to Russia in 1919, spent several months in a Soviet prison. The ceremony of transfer was cool and severely formal.

One of the first questions put by M. Rakovsky to M. Jeannot was:

"Where is the secret walled chamber where important documents are stored away? We know they exist, and we know that they refer to us and to our movement. I want access to them immediately."

M. Jeannot assured the Soviet representative that he knew the Russian Embassy thoroughly, but that he had never heard of any secret walled chamber and had never heard of any documents other than those in the regular archives of the embassy.

M. Jeannot explained that the only carefully guarded treasures of the embassy that he knew of were in the strong room, and he showed M. Rakovsky this room, taking out for his inspection the famous gold table service which was used in the days when the late Alexander Iswolsky, pre-war Russian Ambassador, gave his celebrated dinners. M. Jeannot said the table service was worth 5,000,000 gold francs and that none of it was missing.

M. Rakovsky declares his conviction in an interview published by L'Humanite that Japan and the United States will soon extend recognition to the Russian Soviet Government.

"Negotiations with Japan have already started," he says. "As for the United States, despite the result of the election maintaining the former administration, I am certain that the question of recognition will be raised soon. It must not be forgotten that we have warm friends in the Republican Party."

12,000 RED RECRUITS REVIEWED IN MOSCOW

City Is Ablaze With Red Lights in Celebration of Bolshevist Revolution.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—Twelve thousand Red Army recruits were reviewed today in Red Square with a great military parade. The 12,000 recruits took solemn oath of allegiance to the Soviet.

Premier Rykoff, President Kalenin, Trotsky and leaders of the Communist International reviewed the parade from the top of Lenin's shrine.

The military review was followed by a huge working men's demonstration lasting four hours.

It is estimated that more than half a million took part in the demonstration. Its passing Lenin's tomb occupied full five hours.

The streets are full of holiday makers but perfect order prevails.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Soviet Russia today celebrated the seventh anniversary of the October 1917 revolution with huge street parades, military demonstrations, patriotic exercises and speechmaking. Adoption of the new calendar advanced the date of the revolution to Nov. 7, whereas it actually took place Oct. 25.

Trotsky, Stalin, Rykoff and Kalenin, standing atop of Lenin's mausoleum in Red Square, reviewed a great military parade of 12,000 sturdy peasant recruits who, before the Lenin shrine, took solemn oath to support the Red Army and uphold the principles of the revolution.

Some civilian paraders carried banners caricaturing former Premier MacDonald of Great Britain and Secretary Hughes of the United States and other statesmen, but the parade, on the whole, was the most orderly and peaceful in many years.

Tonight Moscow was a flaming mass of red electric lights and transparencies illuminated with allegorical figures typifying the revolution.

The celebrations will continue for three days. Long articles by revolutionary writers, reviewing the seven years under Soviet rule, are printed by the newspapers.

2,000 MANCHUS MUST QUIT FORBIDDEN CITY

Government Gives Each $10 in Final Payment—Bans on Anfu Men Are Lifted.

PEKING, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—In the wake of the evicted young Emperor and other imperial Manchus nearly 2,000 Manchus of lesser nobility, servants and clansmen were today turned out of the Forbidden City and told that their services were no longer required.

They were the hangers-on of the erstwhile court, which since the founding of the republic has been maintained on a diminished scale.

The older servants were given $10 and the others $8 each as final compensation. As they left the flag of the republic was raised over the former imperial city.

The former Emperor, now Mr. Pu-yi, remains at his father's house, which is surrounded by guards, outsiders not being permitted to enter.

Representatives of several powers who called at the Foreign Office were assured that the change would not endanger the personal safety of the former Emperor or his suite. The step taken merely removed an anomaly which hitherto had been permitted, the callers were told.

PEKING, Nov. 7.—Chang Tso-lin, War Lord of Manchuria, will leave Mukden for Tientsin and Peking tomorrow.

The Government today promulgated a mandate declaring null and void all mandates from the ninth year of the republic to Nov. 2, 1924, relating to the cancellation of ranks and honors and of orders of arrest.

This, in effect, reinstates all Anfu Party officials who were degraded in 1920, and covers Chand Tso-lin, who was stripped of his honors in 1922.

TO MODERNIZE MOSCOW.

Commission Plans an American Style Subway.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—Moscow will soon rival in beauty and civic modernity any European capital, if present plans of the municipal authorities materialize.

Preparations are being made for the construction of a subway on the American plan and the establishment of omnibus systems, taxicab lines, new tramways and other improvements. The present sewerage and canal systems will be entirely remodeled.

FEAR A 'CONTINENTAL BLOC'

To Germany's Interest to Join Britain and America Against France, They Argue.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—"The Continental Bloc" is the latest bogey dangled before the eyes of German voters by anti-Government elements as the Reichstag elections draw nearer. The voters are being warned that recent French overtures to Germany couched in apparently conciliatory language are really a step in a sinister French plan to form a "bloc" on the European Continent wherein France, owing to her great military strength, will be the controlling factor, with Germany, Soviet Russia and smaller Continental countries as pawns to be moved hither and yon across the international chess board in subservience to French ambitions.

Additional proof of this, declare the exponents of the "Continental Bloc" theory, is the recent recognition of Soviet Russia by France. It necessarily follows, they argue, that England must seek to undermine French Continental ambitions. Hence she will eventually ally herself with the United States to form an anti-French bloc. It behooves Germany, they continue, to join up with the English and Americans instead of allowing the French siren song to lure her into being a mere helpless satellite of France.

Lloyd George, the argument runs, enabled France to reach such heights of power that the possible formation by her of such a combination has become a real European menace.

The "Continental Bloc" idea is but one of many hints hereabouts that the reactionary elements in Germany, opposed to the present Republican Government, will make the impossibility of Franco-German cooperation the keynote of their election campaign. Realizing that pro-Government spokesmen will point out to voters that the present Government has marched steadily forward along the road toward reconciliation with France, which has led finally to the present Franco-German commercial negotiations, the reactionaries will seek to counter such statements by showing that attempts at reconciling France and Germany are futile, since France's entire policy is based on keeping Germany powerless—militarily, politically, economically and every other way.

Many stump speakers of the German reaction will din into the ears of the voters that Germany's only salvation lies in recognizing France for what she always was, still is and always will be—Germany's arch enemy—and in ceasing to waste time on vain hopes of friendly Franco-German relations.

Y.W.C.A. WORKERS TELL OF CONDITIONS ABROAD

Say Difficulties Confront American Women in Brazil and the Argentine.

Y. W. C. A. secretaries at home on furlough from South America and Japan met yesterday at the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., 600 Lexington Avenue, to discuss the economic and social conditions of the countries in which they have been stationed.

"Unless you have money enough to meet the emergencies of five or six months, don't start for South America," was the advice of Miss E. R. Chapin, General Secretary at Buenos Aires. Miss Myrtha King said that vocational opportunities for women in Brazil were comparatively few. She said that Rio de Janeiro is no longer the open door of business opportunity for North American girls, and that South American women themselves are filling all available positions.

Miss Carolyn Allen of Yokohoma, who has just returned after spending four years among the factory girls of Japan, said that Western innovations are being adopted in Japanese factories. The average wage for the factory girl in Japan is equivalent to 22 cents a day, according to Miss Allen, who said that the five-hour day was in effect. She said that girls are employed industrially at the average ages of 15 to 21. The first year they work they are not permitted to leave the factory dormitory. In the succeeding years they are allowed to spend holidays, which occur four times a month, outside the factory walls.

Christianity is taking root in Japan and rapidly replacing Buddhism, according to Miss Blanch Best, who has been stationed in Kyoto for four years.

"Naturally Kyoto is one of the slowest cities to accept Christianity and Western civilization," said Miss Best. "The fact that Christianity, even at Kyoto, is taking root is an indication of the rapidity with which it is replacing the Japanese faith. Kyoto is the seat of one of the oldest and strongest Buddhist universities. A Christian university has been established, however, in its shadow."

Business and professional women who will take part in the annual budget campaign of the Y. W. C. A. of the City of New York to raise $300,000 needed for current expenses during 1925 met last night at the Central Branch to discuss the campaign. Miss Jean Reid of the Bankers Trust Company presided. The speakers included Mrs. Alice Foote McDougall, Miss Helen Clarkson Miller and Miss Bertha M. Boody.

BOY MISSING 10 DAYS KILLED BY COMRADE

the manner of the killing made by them he had ordered the police to hold them as juvenile delinquents and arraign them in the Children's Court this morning.

Mr. Wolff said that the boys told him that several days before the killing Adam Rotundo gave Arthur Meigan the money to buy the rifle, after they had seen an advertisement in a magazine. The rifle came by parcel post on Oct. 28. It was in parts and the boys put it together.

Started to Hunt Muskrats.

When they got out of school that afternoon, Mr. Wolff said, the boys went over to the ash dump to shoot muskrats. While they were walking toward Hayestown dump, they told the prosecutor, Ernest Schwer was the first to test the rifle, firing one bullet into the air. The boys, Mr. Wolff said, had agreed as they were leaving for the muskrat hunt that they each would fire two shots from the rifle to initiate it, but after Ernest had fired a shot and had lowered the rifle to relate his sensations to his chums the rifle accidently went off and plowed a furrow in the ground.

They had just reached the top of Hayestown dump, the boys told the prosecutor, when young Kirchfield discovered a hole in a tree, and the boys decided it was the nest of muskrats. The hole was above the head of Arthur Meigan, the tallest boy, and Ernest lifted Kirchfield to the hole. Arthur then asked Ernest to pass him the rifle, which had been laid against a rock near the tree, and after he got it and young Kirchfield had let down to the ground, Arthur stooped over with the rifle to examine the base of the tree for another hole which the muskrats might use as egress to the nest. Kirchfield having reported that he could see nothing in the hollow.

It was then that the trigger of the rifle struck the stump of a tree on the opposite side from where Ernest and the other three boys stood grouped watching Arthur's inspection, and the force sent off the bullet penetrating Ernest's head.

When Ernest fell and blood appeared on his head all four of his companions ran down the hill to a brook, and picking up rusty cans they hurried back and washed off the wound and attempted to force water down Ernest's throat. Then for the first time they realized that Ernest had been killed.

Mr. Wolff said that the boys then admitted to him that they held a conference over the body of their slain companion, at which each of them agreed not to reveal anything about the killing. He said that the boys told him that Kirchfield ran off at this point, leaving his chums with the body.

The Assistant District Attorney said that the boys told him that after young Kirchfield's departure Arthur Meigan dragged the body of Ernest down the hill to the brambles, and finding an old derby hat there, placed it over the face. After this they hurried to their homes and maintained silence about the shooting up to yesterday afternoon.

The prosecutor also learned from the boys that before they started muskrat hunting on the afternoon of the killing Ernest went to his home and donned a pair of trousers, in order to make himself appear old enough to purchase the bullets for the rifle with money obtained from Adam R. Rotundo. The other boys remained concealed with the rifle in a neighboring doorway until his return, and when he had discarded the trousers for his knee pants they started for Hayestown dump. The parents of the boys said that they were not aware that they had purchased the rifle.

JAPAN WILL REVIVE IMMIGRATION QUESTION

Government Does Not Agree With Coolidge That the Incident Is Closed.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—The Japanese Government intends to revive the immigration question soon, hoping that the American officials will now consider it entirely on its own merit and free of politics, inasmuch as the election campaign in the United States is over, according to information obtained in official circles here today.

Although President Coolidge stated that he considered the incident closed, it was said that the Japanese Government never shared this view, and that it has only been awaiting a more opportune time to bring the question forward again. It seems unlikely, however, that any new steps will be taken here before the beginning of next year, as it is felt that the present Congress is not favorable to Japan, and that it would be of little use to present the question again before the old Congress has gone out.

Just what action the Japanese Government contemplates was not revealed, but it appears likely that it intends sending another note to Washington, as had been planned before the return to Japan of Ambassador Hanihara, who advised against it at the time.

The morning newspapers had little comment to offer on the results of the American election. While the general opinion is that the Republican victory blocks all hopes of any possible change in the exclusion policy, Baron Sakatoni, former Minister of Finance and a prominent member of the House of Peers, says in an interview that "because President Coolidge is thoroughly conversant with the question and understands Japan well, the Republican victory should help to solve the controversy in the near future."

The opinion is expressed that with General Dawes as Vice President the United States will be drawn closer to European affairs, since "the economic future of Europe depends upon the execution of the Dawes plan.

DENIES ANY REVOLT IN BRAZILIAN NAVY

Embassy Here Says News Sent Out Is 'Misleading and Exaggerated.'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The Brazilian Embassy announced today that there had been no revolt in the navy of Brazil and that conditions in that country were rapidly improving.

"The news that has been sent to the United States of America and Europe about the situation in Brazil has been very misleading and exaggerated," the statement said, "and it has caused in Brazil great surprise and amusement, especially among the foreign population, who have been eye witnesses of all that has happened."

The Embassy stated that there had been only an isolated movement of insubordination on the battleship Sao Paulo, headed by three or four officers of low grade, who succeeded in persuading part of the crew to mutiny after great resistance on the part of those who remained loyal to the Government. No other leadership followed.

The situation was reported favorable to the Federal and State troops pursuing the rebels in Rio Grande do Sul, the Embassy added.

"From the whole country, where perfect order exists," the Embassy concluded, "and from Congress, resolutions of support for the President of the republic are arriving and the Federal Government, whose prestige and strength are constantly growing, will not fail vigorously to defend order and legality."

GERMAN CHILDREN DROP TIN SOLDIERS

Turn to Less Warlike Toys Since the Armistice and the Disappearance of the Old Pomp.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Tin and lead soldiers are no longer favorite toys of German children. An investigation recently conducted at Nuremberg, and at other centres of German toy trade, shows that since the close of the World War they have been relegated to a secondary role. The reason given for the change is that the drastic reduction of the German army following the German defeat in the war has made a real soldier such a rarity on the streets of post-war Germany that the children are no longer interested in toy imitations of military pomp.

The most popular toys now are automobiles, of which enormous quantities are placed upon the market in preparation for Christmas. Here again the sign of the times is seen, since the most striking post-war manifestations in Germany, as elsewhere, is the tremendous increase in the number of automobiles, which leads children to be as interested in toy imitations of motor vehicles as their elders are in the real thing.

CHALLENGE TO DUEL SENT TO GARIBALDI

Fascist General Resents Protests of Patriot's Grandson on Rome Disorders.

FASCIST ATTACKS CHARGED

Mussolini Declared Responsible—Censor Forbade Telegraphing of Protest.

ROME, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—General Varini, commander of the Tenth Zone of the Fascist Militia, today challenged to a duel General Peppino Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, because of Garibaldi's protest against the alleged attack by the Fascist Militia upon unarmed former soldiers on Tuesday.

The first meeting of their seconds took place this morning.

CHIASSO, Italo-Swiss Frontier, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—In consequence of the Armistice Day disorders in the Piazza Popolo at Rome between Fascisti and members of the Italia Libera, an organization of dissident Fascisti, the Central Committee of the latter organization, as well as General Peppino Garibaldi, has issued manifestations protesting against what they term the unwarranted attack by the Fascisti upon unarmed ex-soldiers, and accusing Premier Mussolini of being personally responsible.

Both manifestoes were stopped by the censor when foreign correspondents in Rome attempted to cable their contents abroad. General Garibaldi's manifesto reads:

"Thousands of combatants, while accomplishing their most sacred duties today (Nov. 4), the anniversary of the victory in Rome, were cowardly assaulted, revolver shots coming from an ambush prepared and carried out by member of the Fascisti militia.

"We heirs to the Garibaldian tradition and representatives of the combatants for all liberties denounce to the people the vile ambush which dishonors the nation. The Red Shirts have always fought on all battlefields for the liberty of the peoples. It is repugnant to our thoughts that today hands of the Government, knowing we were completely unarmed, surpassed in baseness the past tyrannies.

"For what has taken place we consider directly responsable the head of the Government."

General Garibaldi is indignant because the newspapers published his protest in censored form. He declared that, with other ex-soldiers, he would address an energetic protest to the King, asking him to free Italy from turbulent factions and insure to all "that peace which since the end of the war has been vainly invoked."

He concluded: "I trust that the Crown will not refuse to intervene in such a grave moment for the safety of the country."

A Rome dispatch Wednesday night said an official communication had been issued saying that, "except for an outbreak in the Piazza Popolo, during which eleven persons were injured," the celebration in Rome of the sixth anniversary of the Italian armistice with Austria had passed off quietly.

Disturbances at Turin, Naples, Trent and various other cities were declared by the official communication to be "insignificant incidents without any consequence."

A previous dispatch from Rome said that several paragraphs in a story in The Sereno regarding the disturbances had been obliterated, apparently by Government censors. The Prefect of Milan, it was added, had ordered the sequestration of all of Tuesday's edition of The Courier della Serra, The Avanti and The Giustizia for having published "inexact and exaggerated reports" of the incidents in Rome.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Six revolver shots fired harmlessly in the air today in front of the Italian Embassy by Angelo Ferrari, an Italian dancing master, brought the police running to protect the embassy.

Ferrari said he did not intend to hurt any one, but that he wanted to arouse Italians to prevent the impending duel between General Varini and General Peppino Garibaldi.

BLIND BOY LOCKED IN ROOM.

Says His Father Left Him There While He Worked as a Painter.

Acting upon an anonymous complaint, officers of the Children's Society yesterday found Edward Collins, crippled and blind, locked in a room at 63 West Twelfth Street. The boy is 15 years old and was brought from St. Louis to New York by his father, John Collins, a month ago. His mother is dead.

He said his father locked him in the room every day while he worked as a painter, and that sufficient food was always provided. A careful search of the room failed to disclose anything to eat, however, according to an officer of the society. The boy was taken to the society's headquarters.

BIG AUSTRIAN STRIKE FORCES CABINET OUT

Seipel Refuses to Upset Budget Fixed by League to Raise Railway Pay.

ALL TRAIN SERVICE STOPS

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

VIENNA, Nov. 7.—A general strike, beginning at midnight tonight, was proclaimed by the Executive Committee of the railroad employes following the Government's refusal to grant wage increase. Chancellor Seipel in despair decided to resign, declaring all the work of reconstruction in Austria, effected by the League of Nations was facing failure owing to the country's inability to pay high salaries.

At 7 o'clock tonight negotiations between the Government and representatives of the Executive Committee broke off. All rail traffic ceased. It is feared that all mail, telegraph, telephone and other Government services will join in the strike.

Chancellor Seipel's resignation at this juncture, since he is admittedly the best man for the Chancellorship in Austria at the present day, will inevitably lead to political disorders, with possible serious consequences.

Dr. Hainisch, President of the Austrian Republic, at midnight accepted the resignation of Chancellor Seipel and the Cabinet, but requested the Chancellor to continue to direct the State affairs pending the choosing of his successor.

For the last three years Chancellor Seipel has guided the destiny of post-war Austria, gaining foreign sympathy on every side. His most important task was cutting down the number of Government employes, which under the Hapsburg regime had grown to wasteful proportions. In this he was partially successful, some 80,000 employes having been pensioned off on most liberal terms.

Balancing Austria's budget had not been easy and at Geneva, while negotiating with the League of Nations officials Chancellor Seipel was limited strictly to a total expenditure of eight trillion paper crowns.

The railroad employes at present are demanding a wage increase which in the aggregate will upset the entire budget. Chancellor Seipel declared the Government was unable to accept this responsibility. The Ministers were unanimous in their decision to resign.

It is probable that the Socialist party will intervene. The formation of a Christian Socialist Government is possible. In case the parties are irreconcilable, however, the President of the Vienna police, Schober, will be charged with forming a Cabinet.

Rail traffic in all parts of the country stopped promptly at midnight. The employes are well organized and have been biding their time for a long while.

REDS ABANDON DISPLAY AT OUR PARIS EMBASSY

Forego Sacco-Venzetti Demonstration as Police Mobilize to Prevent It.

PARIS, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The Communists and anarchists failed to carry out their plans to make a demonstration before the American Embassy as a token of sympathy with Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who are under conviction for murder in Massachusetts.

In anticipation of possible disorders, the police had made all preparations. They kept a small army of riot quellers in the background, and there were only two policemen and two detectives visible in front of the Embassy; but pairs of bicycle policemen pedalled by frequently and squads were ready nearby as reinforcements had their services been required.

In the feantime, the Communists held a meeting at their headquarters. Later their leaders asserted that there was never an intention of making a demonstration before the Embassy, although it was admitted that a meeting of protest against the recent court ruling in the Sacco-Vanzetti case was held last night.

POINCARE HELPED LEHAR.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Franz Lehar of "Merry Widow" fame probably is the first operetta composer to have a book written about him during his lifetime. A biography of Lehar has just been published in Germany, describing his rise form a mere fiddler to the most famous living composer of comic operas.

Among the many interesting yarns told by Ernst Decsey, author of the Lehar biography, is one concerning a suit brought against the librettist of "The Merry Widow" by the heirs of the famous French librettists Meilhac and Halvéy, who alleged that "The Merry Widow" was a plagiary. The Viennese librettists entrusted their case to a French attorney, who won it for them with flying colors.

But interesting as this story is in itself, the most striking point about it is the identity of the French attorney who won the case for Lehar's librettists. His name is Raymond Poincaré.

proclamation to obtain a hunting license in the future.

Public sentiment throughout New Jersey is sternly opposed to hunting while the present condition prevails. The men out fighting fires number tens of thousands. The fire-fighters have become so numerous and have their intelligence system so well organized that it is possible now, in much of the brush and forest country, to bring a large force together on short notice, and the fresh blazes of the last few days have been speedily subdued.

The great fire which has been raging in Atlantic County, N. J., was subdued yesterday after four days and nights of fighting by hundreds of farmers and men from Estesville, Mitspah, Mulmay, Dorothy and other towns which were threatened. Two farm houses and several outbuildings were burned. Game wardens who traversed hundreds of miles over which this fire swept reported that everything was black and desolate, but that the fire was out except for slow burning of thousands of stumps from which smoke rose in sufficient volume to obscure the sun. The wardens reported that they found thousands of rabbits, quail, pheasants and other game smothered and burned to death in this section, which is rich in game.

Dense Smoke Hinders Fighters.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A heavy pall of smoke which has hung over the Northern Adirondack Mountain section for the last forty-eight hours, apparently from forest fires in Southern New York, has seriously hampered the work of fire observers in the mountains about this village. The smoke has reduced visibility from the towers to such an extent as virtually to end observation, adding to the difficulties of what is considered in this vicinity as a critical situation.

District Forest Ranger James H. Hopkins and his men extinguished two small fires yesterday, one between Bloomingdale and Franklin Falls and the other near Black Mountain at Jay. The Bloomingdale fire is believed to have been started by hunters.

Despite every effort to clear the woods of hunters there are still men out, according to Inspector Ray L. Burmaster, in charge of the Northern Adirondacks.

While many brooks still are flowing, scores of wells and cisterns are dry and the woods still are tinder dry. Forest rangers are working in patrols since the towers became useless. Today was one of the warmest November days on record in this section, the thermometer registering 82 above at 5 o'clock.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Fanned by a southwest wind that amounted almost to a gale, a forest fire was sweeping tonight through 400 acres of big trees in the clay swamp, two miles northwest of North Syracuse.

Farmers living in the vicinity made hourly inspections as a precaution against possibility of its spreading into new sections and endangering buildings that early in the night seemed comparatively safe.

Smoke of forest or brush fires has made a haze over Syracuse for several days, there being minor fires in various sections around the city.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Forest Rangers, firemen from this city and volunteers, including boys from the Stone School and employes of estates, have brought under control a forest fire which this afternoon was burning over woodland of large estates at Cornwall Heights, south of here. The camp of the Storm King Boy Scouts was in the path of the flames, which have burned over a large area of privately owned preserve, chiefly on the slopes of Storm King Mountain.

The Macedonian Witches Caldron

One of the most penetrating, comprehensive, yet simple articles on the former and existing ills in the Balkans with suggestions for their cure, has been written by Professor Vangel Sugareff for the November issue of Current History.

The former Kaiser Wilhelm authorizes over his own signature an important, comprehensive statement of his views on Germany's war guilt, the Versailles Treaty, the Dawes plan, and other current questions—an important declaration covering sixteen pages of the magazine, the first the former Emperor has made for any publication in the English language.

There are fourteen other articles of especial interest to those who would be well posted on the great human events and social upheavals besides the

TO TEACH RUSSIANS AMERICAN FARMING

New York Men Close Deal to Operate 15,000 Acres With Modern Machinery.

INSTRUCTION FOR PEASANTS

Contract With Soviet Government Is for Fifteen Years—Cooperation Is Pledged.

The Soviet Government of Russia, through its Central Department of Agriculture, has executed a contract with a group of Americans under the terms of which 15,000 acres of land are to be turned over to them for fifteen years, to operate as an industrial farm and agricultural school, for the purpose of introducing American farm methods in a practical way among the Russian peasants.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday from the office of the Ukraine Farming and Machinery Corporation, 70 Fifth Avenue, by Harold M. Ware, who will be the managing director of the venture. Piet Hein Hofstra of the same organization, who was in Russia as an agent of the American Relief Administration under Herbert Hoover, said it had taken two years to negotiate the contract and that it was the first of its kind to be granted.

Mr. Ware has just returned to New York from Moscow with the contract signed by Commissar Smirnov.

The farm to be operated by the Americans lies in the fertile Kuban section of South Russia. It is about half way between the important cities of Rostov and Baku, near a town whose name translated from the Russian means Mineral Waters, and is known to natives of that country as a resort similar to Atlantic City or Saratoga Springs. It was near here that Leon Trotsky went to recuperate after his illness.

The title to the land is not involved, since in Russia under Soviet rule private title to land is not recognized. The Government, however, contracts to yield the operation of the land entirely to American direction, a mixed company being formed of the Americans and the Government for the purpose.

The American group is investing $100,000 and the Russian Government furnishes an inventory of buildings, stock and equipment now on the estate to the value of $200,000. As the Government is concerned, the operators will have the advantage of the same low tax rate that peasant farmers get and Government cooperation will be furnished.

The Americans will send fifteen experts, ten of whom have already been in Russia, to take charge of the farm and school, under the direction of Mr. Ware. Their equipment will include ten to fifteen tractors and American farm machinery for operation on a large scale. They will leave in January.

"Peasants now on the estate," said Mr. Hofstra, "are working about 3,000 acres with eighty teams of oxen and manual labor. When we get there we shall be able to operate the whole 15,000 acres with ten tractors.

"It is our object and that of the Government to open the eyes of the Russian farmer to what can be done by the use of present-day American methods in large-scale farming. Since 90 per cent. of the Russians are found in the farming class, it is reasonable to say that the future of Russia lies in agricultural development. We shall do farming, dairying, stock raising, fruit growing and vineyard cultivation. We include among our staff an expert in agricultural education and shall conduct a school in which young Russian farmers will be taught what they can do by using our methods.

"In teaching them the newer methods we shall be doing a very practical service toward helping the Russian people to get their rightful place in the scheme of the world, and it is because it realizes this that the Russian Government has let us in. But we do not claim to be going there in the guise of bestowing charity. Our venture must stand on its own feet as a commercial proposition and we are sure it will."

SEIZE WRENTHAM TRIO AS BANK VICTIM DIES

Providence Police Get Them in Bed—Wounds Fatal to Aged Cashier.

NORWOOD, Mass., Nov. 7.—James E. Carpenter, aged town treasurer of Wrentham and cashier of the National Bank of Wrentham, died at a hospital here today of wounds received when the bank was held up by four men last Saturday. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Carpenter was shot twice by one of the robbers, the bullets entering the left side. Notwithstanding his advanced years, he had survived much longer than physicians expected. It was his courage in pushing an alarm bell, though the robber was covering him, and in brushing to one side a package of $1,800 in bills that saved the bank from loss.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7.—Roundup of the four robbers who are alleged to have held up the National Bank of Wrentham, one of their number fatally wounding James E. Carpenter, the cashier, was completed here today. Local policemen and Massachusetts detectives captured in bed in a lodging house Manuel Bacheco of New Bedford, Celestino Madeiros of Seekonk and James Mingo of New Bedford, alleged to be accomplices of Alfred Bedard of Pawtucket, who was arrested last night.

The police said the same men were wanted for the attempted robbery of the Turgon Contracting Company's payroll here on Oct. 25. Word came from Boston that Bedard had been identified as the man who had shot Mrs. Martha Davis-Mendez at a Boston rooming house two weeks ago. The prisoners were turned over to the Massachusetts authorities. Bedard was arraigned at Walpole, Mass., today, and it is expected that all four will appear at Franklin, Mass., today.

A platoon of Providence police raided seven lodging houses here this morning before they found the three men, huddled together in one bed at a rooming house on North Main Street. They arrested them at the pistol point under orders to fire if any threatening move was made. Loaded revolvers were found under the pillows.

The police gained a clue to the hiding place of the fugitives as a result of Bedard's belief that they had stolen his sedan car and were fleeing to Jacksonville, Fla. The trail of the car was followed, and it was found in a junk yard here.

CLAIMS ARCTIC ISLANDS.

Soviet Warns Nations That Invaders Will Be Punished.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—Foreign Minister Tchitcherin has addressed a note to all of the foreign Governments regarding the rights of Russia over the Arctic Islands north of Siberia, which he asserts have recently been violated by the various powers or their nationals.

The note declares that the islands in question belong to Russia, and expresses confidence that all of the Governments will adopt measures to prevent violations. It ends with the threat that the Soviets will demand satisfaction from Governments supporting claims in opposition to these rights and which do not punish those making the claims.

A similar note was sent to the various Governments some time ago.

"High hat!"

That's what the modern college boy says when he means what an older generation meant by "chesty."

It's apparently this desire to be "high hat" that causes some stores to take special pride in advertising overcoats at $125. For, $125 is a lot of money and the natural inference is that a store that sells overcoats for that price must indeed be of the elect.

But pride works two ways.

We are not "high hat"—but we are very happy that we have to ask no more than $105 this season for the finest Winter overcoats we can produce, from the finest materials we can buy.

Very few of our coats are as much as that—we've most excellent values and ample varieties at prices from $45 up.

Everything men and boys wear, including high hats.

HOPKINSON SMITH AUTOGRAPHS SOLD

Collection, Including Some of His Manuscripts, Bring $6,952 at Auction.

$127 PAID FOR POE LETTER

Lincoln Broadside Goes for $200 and and Author's "Dummy" of Two Works for $140.

The sale of autographs and manuscripts of the late F. Hopkinson Smith in the Anderson Galleries brought $6,052.75 yesterday. The bidding was brisk. Four autograph letters of Marie Philippine Elizabeth, sister of Louis XVI., were purchased by G. E. Stechert & Co., for $120. Two of the letters, one to Mme. de Bombelles and the other to Mme. Charles Ellinguers, the pseudonym for the Duchesse de Polignac, were written in 1780. The other two, written in 1781, are addressed to the latter.

Hamilton's original draft of an appeal from a decision of a prize court, containing the autograph of Alexander Hamilton in five places, was sold to the George D. Smith Book Company for $125. A Lincoln broadside, dated in 1864, and containing "President Lincoln and General Grant on Peace and War," was sold to Robert Fridenberg for $200. Henry Alexander paid $127.50 for a letter written by Edgar Allan Poe to Dr. R. M. Bird soliciting his aid in the way of an occasional or regular subscription to the "Southern Literary Messenger." The letter was written at Richmond, Va., Oct. 8, 1835.

The original manuscript by Theodore Roosevelt of "A Christmas in Mid-Africa" went to W. J. Crawford Jr., for $330. Walter M. Hill purchased the original manuscript of Mr. Smith's "In Dickens's London" for $132.50 and the autographed manuscript of Mr. Smith's "In Thackeray's London" for $107.50.

The author's "dummy" for Mr. Smith's "Under a White Umbrella" and "Well-worn Roads" was sold to E. W. G. Vail for $140.

A collection of autographs and letters addressed to Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin by many prominent authors, artists, opera singers and others went to G. A. Van Nostdale for $130. There were about 100 pieces in the collection, including James Whitcomb Riley, Mark Twain, John Mansfield, W. D. Howells, Andrew Lang, Frank R. Stockton, Gilbert T. Parker, James Galsworthy, Helen May Whitney, Carl Schurz, Violet Asquith, Helen Keller, Joseph Choate, Antonio Scotti and others.

ZR-3 TO GET HELIUM TEST.

First Flight With New Gas Expected in Three Weeks.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Nov. 7.—The German built dirigible ZR-3 is expected to undergo her first test flight inflated with helium gas probably within three weeks, according to the opinion of officers and men at the naval air station here. At that time the latest giant of the air will make a flight under the supervision of her German crew and skipper, with several United States naval officers and men aboard to study the operation of the ship.

It is possible, too, officers believe, that the Shenandoah may be sent aloft that same day. Information was received from Philadelphia that 2,000,000 cubic feet of helium gas, sufficient to inflate the ZR-3, had reached that city on its way here from Fort Worth, Texas.

the public and as larger and better service can be rendered by larger business organizations. The Continental Baking Corporation has been formed with large capital to take advantage of the many wonderful opportunities which will result from placing many bakeries under one and the same management, standardization of policy, system, manufacturing processes, co-ordination of advertising effort and large purchasing power. Many large centres are waiting for goods and service which a large company such as Continental Baking Corporation can and will render, so the company plans to engage in the baking business in large cities on the North American Continent located from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"If and when the present and immediate program of the company is completed the total prospective sales of all companies should produce a profit sufficient to reflect earnings of about $8 a share on the common "B" stock after 8 per cent. on preferred stock and $11 a share on common "A" stock has been provided.

"The organization behind Continental Baking Corporation has proved itself. Its personnel includes many of the leading executives in the baking industry. The policy of the organization will be to "build" men who in turn will build bakeries, business and profits. The character and effectiveness of the organization have attracted individually owned companies with the result that many profitable purchases are possible. Decreased costs, increased sales and increased profits have followed the sale of individually owned bakeries to the larger baking companies."

Baking Stocks Advance.

Rumors of a merger of major proportions in the baking industry have been current since September. Attention was first drawn to these rumors by the fact that stocks of baking companies were going up in the market. In mid-September, when the rise began, several heads of baking companies, including William Ward, President of the Ward Baking Company, and Julius Fleischmann, head of Fleischmann Company, Inc., made specific denials of a forthcoming consolidation. On the strength of these denials the movement upward was checked.

Another upward movement started early this month. During the last few days transactions in the shares of baking concerns have been so large as to attract attention even in a rising market. If market activities are to be taken as a criterion, Wall Street believes that the Ward Baking Company and the United Bakeries Corporation are among the leading factors in the merger.

Ward Baking Company shares are among those which have been active during the merger rumors. The "B" shares of this concern showed a ¾ gain on closing price in yesterday's market and 13,300 shares were dealt in. The common stock of Loose-Wiles, a concern prominently mentioned in the rumors, showed considerable activity in yesterday's market, 4½ points having been recorded as an advance and 3,500 shares dealt in. Among other baking concerns whose shares have risen while the merger rumors were current are the General Baking Company, a concern which reported a net profit of $5,525,509 before dividends for 1923.

The only company known to have acted on merger proposals is the American Bakery Company of St. Louis. Last week it became known that the President of this organization, A. F. Welle, had submitted to his stockholders a proposition whereby the holders of the 8,312 shares of common stock were to receive $75 per share in cash and the holders of the 7,888 shares of preferred stock would receive $100, the $540,000 in outstanding bonds of the corporation to be taken over by the new concern. It is said a large number of stockholders have accepted the proposals.

Other concerns which have been mentioned in connection with the merger are Cushman's Sons, the Fleischmann Company and the Brennan Company, the stocks of which have recently been active and strong.

OLD MASTERS
FROM THE COLLECTION OF THE EHRICH GALLERIES
NEW YORK

When a prominent Fifth Avenue Gallery of long standing decides to sell a choice selection of Old Masters to the public at auction, an opportunity offers, that may not be repeated for some time, to acquire really worthwhile paintings.

The Ehrich Galleries will exchange at the full purchase price all paintings purchased at this sale, should the owner desire to effect an exchange.

A few among the notable pictures are—A fine sketch by Turner; a searching characterization by Bronzino, portraitist to the Medici family; an interesting presentation of a young noblewoman by Lucas Cranach the Younger; spirited sporting subjects by Alken, Barraud and Chalon; Venetian scenes by Canaletto and Marieschi; and a number of splendid portraits by English, French, Dutch and Italian masters. There are several fine primitives; and still life is excellently represented.

For the museum, the private gallery, the country house and the intimate drawing room, this is an exceptional opportunity to acquire authentic paintings.

COOPERATIVE PLAN GROWS IN AMERICA

ITS EFFECTS ON HOUSING

Brooklyn Groups Report a Total Business During the Year of $300,000.

The difference between apartment houses that are built to live in and apartment houses that are built to sell was described yesterday at the fourth Cooperative Congress meeting at Greenwich House, Varick and Barrow Streets, by Clarence Stein, Chairman of the organization's Commission on Housing and Regional Planning. The congress consists of representatives of 333 organizations, composed of consumers throughout the country and doing a $15,000,000 business annually.

Commercial house building is a speculative venture, Mr. Stein told his hearers, and therefore plans that are radically wrong are used, since every inch of space is used to provide increased rentals. The cooperative builder is interested in providing comfort, and therefore sacrifices excessive profits to light, air, recreation facilities and other attributes of comfort.

Wide streets are objectionable to the cooperative builder, Mr. Stein said, because they attract traffic that is not only noisy and dirty, but is also a menace to children.

Mary Ehlcott Arnold, manager of the Consumers' Cooperative Services, owned by 1,700 consumers and conducting four restaurants and one laundry in Manhattan, led a discussion on the different types of cooperative business for initial organization. These included restaurants, groceries, housing, coal and milk, the consumers investing the original capital, controlling the business by elected officers and receiving the profit from the business.

Delegates from all over the country reported on the business being done by cooperative concerns.

It is thus said that one of the largest cooperative businesses in the country was the Franklin Cooperative Creamery of Minneapolis, which as formed four years ago by an association of milkmen and is now doing a yearly business of $3,000,000.

The Brooklyn groups reported a total business in bread, meat and restaurants of $300,000 during the past year. The Brownsville Bakery is turning out $6,000 worth of bread a week, while the organization represented by Abe Rivkind is doing a yearly business of $400,000. It is paying 6 per cent. on the original investment and showing an additional profit of 6 per cent.

Cedric Long, head of the Consumers' Cooperative Housing Association, which built seven apartment houses at Bedford and Barrow Streets, said the tenants of his buildings originally paid $1,500 each and were now paying an average of $65 a month for four rooms each. He said the $1,500 investment would double in eight years because excess from rentals over running expenses will pay off the mortgages.

Mrs. Agnes Wyman Rouse, educational secretary of the Cooperative League, who has recently returned from a study of European conditions, said that the cooperative principle abroad was carried further than here.

LIPSTICK KILLS GIRL.

She Rubbed It on a Pimple to Conceal It and Poisoned Herself.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Use of a lipstick to cover traces of a small pimple on her face caused the death of Georgia Knickerbocker, a 14-year-old Jamesville girl, in a hospital here today.

The girl, before her condition became serious, explained to the hospital physicians that she had discovered the pimple while she was preparing to attend a Hallowe'en party last week. She opened the sore and then daubed it with a lipstick. The poison resulting therefrom spread rapidly through her system.

UPTOWN 'DEADLINE' SET BY THE POLICE

strength, between 50 and 100 detectives will be added on Monday. Each detective will have one square block to patrol. There will also be an extra force of uniformed men below Fulton Street during the holidays. As in the uptown zone, the district below Fulton Street will be protected with extra men twenty-four hours a day, with a special eye out for safe-crackers at night.

Chief Inspector Lahey said that the police would have orders to pick up all known criminals inside both of the areas at once and to take them to the nearest police station, where they cannot show that they are working at an honest occupation and have a good reason for being in the protected zone, he said, the police will ask a Magistrate to hold them without bail until after the holidays.

Brooklyn Police Headquarters has also been notified to work out similar arrangements for the protection of the Brooklyn shopping district during the holiday season.

Saks Window Displays Robbed.

The robbery of the new Saks store is believed to have occurred shortly before dawn. Using a diamond glass cutter, the thieves cut a hole eight inches in diameter in one of the Fifth Avenue display windows, near the Forty-ninth Street entrance and a hole about a foot square in another window close to the entrance near Fiftieth Street. They took two fur coats, presumably getting them out of the holes by using long hooked sticks.

Although the vicinity in which Saks store is located is guarded by private patrol agencies as well as the regular police, the robbery was not discovered until Patrolman Smith of the East Fifty-first Street Station, making his rounds, saw the holes in the show windows.

Robbers disguised as longshoremen committed the South Street hold-up. David H. Scott of the Fidelity Warehouse Company and Frank Masterson of Lawrence, Son & Gerrish, both of 214-224 South Street, went to the Irving National Bank in the Woolworth Building about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and drew out $1,292.62 as the payroll of their respective companies, which are associated in the same line of work. They drove back with the money in a yellow taxicab.

Alighting from the cab at South Street and Market Slip, the messengers were confronted by two men loitering near the docks with groups of longshoremen. One of the strangers covered the messengers with a pistol, while the other seized the bag containing the money from Masterson's hand. Hundreds of longshoremen were in sight, but the hold-up was over so quickly that the robbers had run around a corner and disappeared before any one thought of following them. Three years ago Scott was held up and robbed of an $800 payroll of the Fidelity Warehouse Company at the same place as yesterday's hold-up.

Six Men Are Held Up.

Six men were held up by two armed robbers early yesterday in a candy store at Twelfth Street and Avenue B. One of the victims escaped and called the police. Patrolman Andrew Brown of the Fifth Street Station arrived in time to see the robbers rush from the store. One escaped, but Brown cornered the other in a hallway at Thirteenth Street and Avenue C. The man drew a pistol, but Brown downed him with a blow on the head with his night stick. When Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman heard the story in the Essex Market Court, he complimented Brown for his courage, and said he would write Police Commissioner Enright about it. The prisoner, who said he was Nicholas Sherdo, 29 years old, of 197 Avenue B, was held in $25,000 bail.

Israel Farth, a grocer, was held up by an armed robber early yesterday in the hallway of his apartment house at 210 Roebling Street, Brooklyn. Instead of obeying the order to hold up his hands Farth knocked the robber down with a punch to the jaw. Then he jumped on the man and tried to seize his pistol. After a short struggle the man broke Farth's grip and escaped, keeping his weapon. Farth chased him, calling for help. At Broadway and Roebling Street Patrolman John Cully arrested a man who said he was Antony Santerollo of 170 Eldridge Street, Manhattan. Farth identified Santerollo, but the latter, who was then unarmed, denied it. He was held in $10,000 bail.

Patrolman Harry Nullet of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station arrested a man early yesterday after firing three shots at three men in a chase through Seventy-third Street from Broadway to Riverside Drive. The chase started when the policeman hailed the three men in an automobile on Broadway. They jumped out and ran. After he caught one of the men and the others escaped, he returned to the car and found a glass imitation revolver on the floor. Investigation proved the car to have been stolen from Alexander Gordon of 178 East Fiftieth Street. The prisoner said he was Paul A. Schultz, 21 years old, a chauffeur, of 344 East Forty-sixth Street.

The Driver Is Held Up.

Patrolman John Sullivan of the Fifth Street Station arrested three men, one of them a Bellevue Hospital ambulance driver, immediately after a taxicab driver had been held up and robbed of $17 by three "fares" on Thirteenth Street, near Third Avenue. Sullivan heard the driver's shouts for help and saw the trio driving off in the cab, from which the chauffeur had been ejected. The cab skidded and stalled and Sullivan arrested the men.

The taxi driver, Samuel Brodsky, said they had hired him to drive to Astoria, but had stopped him and dragged him out of the car on Thirteenth Street. The prisoners said they were Arthur McDonagh, 22, the ambulance driver; Roy A. Thomle, 22, a chauffeur, of 317 East Thirty-fourth Street, and Joseph J. Murray, 20, of 162 East Thirty-third Street. They were held in $25,000 bail each.

Five men robbed the Eagle Men's Shop, at 345 Eighth Avenue early yesterday of several hundred dollars' worth of clothing. They drove up to the shop in a taxicab, which halted at the curb to let four of the robbers get out, while the fifth remained at the wheel. One of the men smashed the shop window with a brick wrapped in paper.

Men in the Ben Ton Cafeteria next door heard the crashing glass and rushed to the street. They were held back by two of the robbers, pistol in hand, while two others transferred their loot from the store to the taxi. Then all five escaped. A policeman arrived too late to pursue them.

Two robbers held up a restaurant at 102 Eighth Avenue at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and stole $90 from the cash register. Michael Klier, a counterman, who was alone in the place, notified the police.

Abraham Mayer, a chauffeur, of 419 St. Paul's Place, the Bronx, was held up and robbed of $15 early yesterday on Nineteenth Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues by two men riding in his cab. The men also stole his taxi and escaped in it.

VETERANS TO MARCH ON ARMISTICE DAY

Parade Will Move Up Fifth Avenue to the Mall in Central Park.

Following his proclamation calling upon the public to observe Armistice Day, Tuesday next, Mayor John F. Hylan directed William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, to organize a popular demonstration, plans for which were completed yesterday.

The demonstration will consist of a parade from the Eternal Light in Madison Square to the new bandstand in the Mall in Central Park, where exercises will be held.

The parade will move from Madison Square at 1:30 P. M., on the completion of the American Legion exercises at the Eternal Light, and will march up Fifth Avenue, through the East Drive of Central Park and the Mall and will be reviewed on the Mall. The formation will be as follows:

The Mayor and staff.
The Board of Estimate and Apportionment.
The heads of departments.
The Board of Aldermen.
General George Albert Wingate, Grand Marshal.
Military and naval forces headed by West Point forces.
Grand Army of the Republic.
Spanish War Veterans.
Veterans of Foreign Wars.
The American Legion.
Disabled veterans in cars.
Military Order of the World War.
Other World War organizations.
Auxiliary organizations of the World War.
Police Riot Battalion.
Fraternal societies.
Patriotic societies.

The head of the column will arrive at the reviewing stand on the Mall at 2:30 P. M. The marching forces will be placed in front of the bandstand and at 3:30 P. M. patriotic exercises will be held. This program will be announced later.

The New York Cotton Exchange will suspend trading for two minutes at 11 o'clock on Armistice Day. This was decided upon conditionally by the Board of Managers yesterday. In the event that Governor Smith issues a holiday proclamation, the exchange will take other action.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, at a special meeting held yesterday, decided not to close the Stock Exchange next Tuesday, Armistice Day, unless Governor Smith issues a special holiday. The Chicago Board of Trade and the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange will close.

BARRED IMMIGRANTS RAISE A NEW PROBLEM

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—One of the problems raised by the new American immigration laws is the disposal of intending emigrants to America traveling through this country who have been unable to complete their journey owing to the exhaustion of their nation's quota. The chief sufferers have been emigrants from the Eastern European States, more particularly Russians, of whom there are about 900 in this situation in the country.

Unsuccessful emigrants are being kept at Atlantic Park, Southampton, an institution maintained by the Cunard, White Star and Canadian Pacific lines as a station for emigrants on their way through England. Many of these foreigners have been in this country for close on a year, and there appears little immediate prospect of their disposal, since they cannot be forced against their wills to go to other countries.

Meanwhile they are being maintained at Atlantic Park by the shipping companies under conditions sufficiently comfortable to make them not unduly anxious to move.

Reichstag Leader Is Coming.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Dr. Hermann S. Paasche, veteran Reichstag leader and economist, has left for the United States with Mrs. Paasche. Dr. Paasche intends to study conditions there. Mrs. Paasche has been active in the feminist movement.

More Income Tax Payments Are Made Public Here

Calls Continue for Income Tax Payments; More Figures Given Out in the Third District

Interest in income tax payments continues, and men and women called yesterday at the offices of the Second District, in the Custom House, and the Third District, in the Fisk Building, at Broadway and Fifty-seventh Street, to examine the records. At both offices the books were open to public inspection.

In the Third District among the payments noted were Benjamin W. Duke, 511 Fifth Avenue, $77,791; Mr. and Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison, 399 Park Avenue, $37,481; Simeon Ford, 43 West Seventy-fourth Street, $22,928; Oren Root, 1 West Fifty-fourth Street, $11,296; Eugene J. Zuhor, 574 West End Avenue, $7,738; Owen Davis, 967 Madison Avenue, $5,639; Albert Payson Terhune, $4,094; Professor David S. Mimsey of Barnard College, $3,102; Peter Doelger, 405 East Fifty-fifth Street, $3,002; Rita Weiman, 103 East Eighty-sixth Street, $2,211, and George Creel, $1,468.

Maurice Goodman, general counsel for the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Exchange, announced yesterday that the payment of $1,642 credited to him was incorrect and that it should have been $18,639.11.

"The indiscriminate publication of these tax lists is bad enough," Mr. Goodman wrote to THE NEW YORK TIMES, "but to publish incorrect statements and immediately put one under the suspicion of his friends that he is a perjurer or a tax dodger is too serious to let go by without a correction."

HARVARD IS FAVORED IN BIG BATTLE TODAY

Crimson Rules at 2 to 1 on Eve of Princeton Contest on Soldiers Field.

53,000 TO WITNESS GAME

TIGERS TO RELY ON SPEED

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—A Princeton Tiger, hungry for Crimson meat, will stalk onto Soldiers' Field here tomorrow afternoon, but waiting for him will be the Harvard hunters, who hope to add a new Tiger skin to their trophies. Both Princeton and Harvard are confident on the eve of battle, but the betting strongly favors a Crimson victory. For three days Harvard has stood a 2-to-1 favorite in the wagering, and even the arrival of the Princeton squad did not bring down the odds tonight. In fact, at almost the eleventh hour offers of 20 to 9 on Harvard did not bring a flow of takers.

Neither Harvard nor Princeton can understand such odds. Nor can they be figured on the basis of what these two big teams have done during the season. Harvard has shown much potential strength so far, but the team is a green one, while Princeton has a fine array of veterans who ought to play better football than a year ago, when Harvard won in the Palmer Stadium by 5 to 0. Princeton did better against Notre Dame than it did a year ago, while Harvard has looked better all season than it did during the general run of its 1923 campaign. Still Harvard against Dartmouth fumbled badly, was loose in interference and its play showed on Monday that the first foundations of its game were being laid.

That Harvard will be far and away better than against Dartmouth every one close to the Cambridge camp readily grants, but Harvard has won from the Jersey team only once in the last five years, and in at least two of these games the Crimson has been almost as prime a favorite as it is today.

There will be a capacity crowd at the Stadium for the game, and this means that at least 53,000 will watch the battle. So far this season every Saturday afternoon has been perfect overhead, and on several days there has been the proper chill for hard football. However, for tomorrow the weather man makes no happy promises. Rather he has prepared the great throngs of ticket holders, thousands of whom have come from a distance to the game, that foresighted folk will equip themselves with apparel for at least a drizzly day.

Still, the eve before the battle brought no sign except that the skies again will be fair tomorrow.

Boston Filled With Visitors.

A Harvard-Princeton game is not a Harvard-Yale game for night-before crowds, but this year Boston is filled with visitors as never before when the Tiger has been Harvard's opponent out on Soldiers Field. All day the turnpikes leading to the city were packed with incoming cars, and almost before sun-up tomorrow great automobile loads of Princeton students are due to arrive. Hundreds of others made the trip from Jersey by a specially chartered Sound line steamer, so that when the Tiger shows his claws he will be well supported.

The Princeton graduates tonight held a smoker at the Harvard Club of Boston, which turned over its entire establishment to the visitors, and with "Big Bill" Edwards, captain of a Princeton winner over Yale just twenty-five years ago this Fall, in best of post-prandial mood, the Nassau grads can see only a victory ahead for Bill Roper's team.

The Princeton players arrived in Boston this morning and after breakfast in town motored to Soldiers Field, where they practiced for two hours on the scene of battle. Later the Jersey players were whisked away to the Belmont Country Club, not far from Boston, and there they will remain in quiet until noon tomorrow.

The Harvard forces did not practice at Cambridge at all today. On Thursday Coach Fisher took his men to Swampscott on the North Shore for two nights of rest close to the ocean. There were reports of illness of most of the players, but they did not go to the Stadium at all, and what little football practice they had was conducted near their quiet retreat. The Harvard squad will be in town early tomorrow and will go to the field shortly after 12 o'clock.

It was eight years ago that Harvard last beat Princeton at football here. After the war one of the two games played in the Stadium was lost by the Crimson forces and the other was lost until an eleventh hour forward pass was completed in Princeton's end zone to tie the score for Fisher's men.

Harvard Has New Men.

The Cambridge coaches are sure that this team is better by far than any which has been produced at Harvard for several seasons, in spite of the fact that there are so many new men in the line-up. With a strong, heavy backfield and a splendid kicker in Jack Hammond, Harvard has built its attack with a line which has changed constantly in personnel, but which has been developed strongly and with competition for every place ever since the season began.

By the time of the Yale game at New Haven, Fisher believes his team will be strong in every department, but as yet it is untried in a game with an opponent which has had the same short season for development.

Dartmouth started several weeks ahead of the Crimson and this was apparent all through the game two weeks ago.

The Tigers will present a rush-line which will outweigh Harvard's by about ten pounds a man, but the Crimson backfield is much the heavier and much more powerful. Harvard's line averages 181 pounds only, and Fisher's backfield averages 184 pounds.

Therefore the Harvard team average is about 182 pounds, which is some three pounds heavier than that of the Tiger array, which, with a 191-pound line, averages less than 100 pounds in its back field.

With such layouts it is easy to understand how Harvard bases its confidence on its power and strength to drive the Tigers back while the Jersey team hopes that its bigger linemen will be able to open holes through which its speedy backs can shoot, or build a heavy, powerful interference for off-tackle and end plays and shake its carriers loose into the open field.

On the Harvard team Captain Greenough at right tackle is the only player who has been a regular for longer than the present season, and is one of three players on the line who have had three years of football with the varsity squad. Theopold, the left guard, and Adie, the centre, have been substitutes until this year. There is one new quarterback, a running back from last year's freshmen, Hammond, who has been Harvard's kicker for two seasons, and Gebrke, who is back in the line-up again after a layoff since the close of the campaign of 1922.

As for the Tigers, there are no less than five linemen, who this year will play their last football for the Jersey team. The ends, Drews and Stout, the guards, Hills and Howard, and Beattie, one of the tackles, are close to the end of their careers on college football fields. These men, with Gates and McMillan, two juniors, form the wall which Princeton hopes will prove impregnable for the Crimson, and which, when Princeton has the ball, will be able to set the pace. Yet all season the Jersey line, particularly the tackles, have not been impressive and the light Tiger back field so far this year has not been able to gain against strong opponents, except when loose.

Harvard is better off for kicking than Princeton is, having a truly great punter in Hammond, and another in Phil Spalding, the substitute quarter. The Tigers place reliance for their kicking game on Slagle, who did well against Notre Dame, which team, however, played its backs too loose, whereas Harvard will keep receivers ready to make the most of the kicking game if that is how the match develops. And it surely will develop that way if it is in Harvard's power to bring it about.

Harvard Expects Passes.

Harvard is well prepared for a forward passing game on the part of its opponents, who naturally will strive to make as much of overhead football against the Crimson as the Dartmouth team did two weeks ago and as Boston University did against Harvard last week.

At Princeton it is said that there are seven first string players who can run 100 yards in 11 seconds. If this is so it is easy to understand why Roper feels that his eleven will get the jump on the Crimson and will prove the faster outfit. For the past week Harvard has made every effort to speed up its team to meet the fast charge which the Jersey line is certain to show from the very beginning of the game, and with the lighter set of first string forwards, one of the tasks since meeting Dartmouth has been to bring along two rushlines instead of one. Harvard has no man on the line whose services are indispensable.

The Crimson can change its front often without being placed under a handicap—but this is not true for the Princeton line. Just how long Harvard will hold to its back field with the 205-pound Miller, the 195-pound Gehrke and the 185-pound Hammond only the coaches know.

It is hardly probable that some of Harvard's fast backs will be able to play, this meaning that Cheek, Zarakov and Maher are being counted on only as substitutes in case of dire need and not as units figured on in the general scheme of attack.

Princeton will start Williams, who has come up fast as a quarterback, and Weekes, Slagle and Gilligan, but Roper has some heavy backs in reserve, and Gibson, Caldwell, Ewing, Dignan and Prendergast round out a substitute back field which Harvard hardly can match with Howe, Puffer, Brown, Sales, Sambroski and Rogers. One of the reasons why the Tigers are so confident that they will win is that they have been able to hold their goal line free from touchdowns in the last three games.

This year the Jersey team will find the Crimson using a more varied attack than ever before, which four men carry or pass the ball. No longer will Harvard hold back its field general, for Stafford is a fine all-around football player and will do his share of the hard work as well as run the team.

The field is in great condition for a game in which speed may be an important factor, and a fair day ought to make a hard and clean-cut battle.

HARVARD SECONDS WIN.

Triumph Over Andover Reserve Eleven by Score of 14 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

ANDOVER, Mass., Nov. 7.—The Harvard seconds defeated Andover's second string team today, 14—0, in a slow and uninteresting game. The Harvard team was much heavier than Andover and tore big holes in the Blue line through which Innes and Rosecians made big gains. Toolin was Andover's best ground gainer.

The line-up:

HARVARD 2ds (14).		ANDOVER 2ds (0).
Riley	L.E.	Berry

C. C. N. Y. TO MEET URSINUS.

Phildius and Dreiband Return to Local Line-Up in Today's Game.

The City College varsity team meets Ursinus eleven in the Lewisohn Stadium this afternoon. Coach Parker rounded out a week of intensive work with a light drill yesterday. A session at the tackling dummies was the only work of a vigorous nature that was undertaken. A talk by the coach and an extensive signal drill consumed the remainder of the afternoon practice period.

The return of Captain Phildius to left end will tighten up the Lavender end-run defense considerably. Al Dreiband, star centre, is also back in the line-up after a short absence, and C. C. N. Y. should present its full strength. Sam Donstein, the crack fullback, who broke his leg in the Rhode Island game, will be as badly missed as he was last week, when the Lavender's running attack fell off badly. Cotton and Oshins will divide up the time at his old post.

The probable line-up:

C. C. N. Y.		URSINUS.
Phildius	L.E.	Evans
Naiman	L.T.	Vanaman

Dreiband	C.	Yaukley

COLUMBIA ELEVEN READY FOR N. Y. U.

Rival Teams Will Meet in Annual Classic at Baker Field This Afternoon.

BLUE AND WHITE FAVORITE

Rules Strong Choice to Take Contest, but Is Prepared for Surprise Attack by Violet.

The annual football party between Columbia and N. Y. U., ancient metropolitan rivals, will be put on at Baker Field at 2 o'clock today and it promises to be as lively as ever, although the Blue and White is heavily favored to beat Tom Thorp's team. N. Y. U. is in a hopeful but not a confident mood. On the season's record the Violet players have the odds greatly against them, but the University Heights supporters are resting their hopes on another surprising overturn on the dope by Thorp.

Columbia is taking the game very seriously—if for no other reason, because this year's situation is almost an exact parallel to that of 1922. Under the Buck O'Neill régime then the Blue and White had an apparently powerful eleven and N. Y. U. was counted out before the game began. The feeling of confidence was so strong that it spread to the coaching staff, O'Neill going off on a scouting trip and leaving the game in the hands of an assistant. He got the bad news by telegraph, for N. Y. U. won by 7 to 6. That was the game in which the referee reversed a decision and gave Columbia the victory, 6—2, only to be overruled later by the Rules Committee.

N. Y. U.'s 27—0 defeat at the hands of Fordham last Saturday was a blow to the Violet's hopes, but Thorp has made great strides this week in perfecting his attack for the Columbia game, which is the big one on the schedule. Undoubtedly the former Columbia lineman is pointing for today's battle with his alma mater, and it goes without saying that the undergraduates and alumni on the Heights would rather win the Columbia tilt than any two other games of the year.

Whether N. Y. U., by gathering all its strength for a final charge, can spring a surprise attack on the Light Blue forces is the question of the day. With an offense especially potent for this game, the Violet may give Paul Withington's eleven all it is looking for.

Columbia's earlier plans to use only second and third stringers against the Thorp ensemble have been changed, in view of N. Y. U.'s feverish preparations for the game. Withington has definitely decided to use all his regulars who are in playing condition. How and when he will use them is a question, but if he follows the tactics of Percy Haughton in the Williams game he will start with his first team, rest it in the second period, send it back in the third, and when the score justifies it, remove it again.

Attracted by the possibility of N. Y. U.'s staging a neat little surprise party, one of the big crowds of the season at Baker Field is looked for. For year after year the Blue and White Violet played to an overflow crowd, the large student bodies at each university alone assuring a big throng. N. Y. U. will make the annual pilgrimage from University Heights in full array, with a band, a big corps of cheer leaders and a collection of "Beat Columbia!" banners. The Violet rooters will sit in the west stand.

Both teams tapered off yesterday in light drills with a signal practice as the chief feature. Each eleven is somewhat crippled, and Kirchmeyer, Columbia's star fullback, probably will not be seen in the game. It will be the last contest of the season at Baker Field.

The probable line-ups:

COLUMBIA.		N. Y. U.
Wagner	L.E.	Howley
Smullen	L.T.	Milan
Wyeth	L.G.	Kearney
Schimittach	C.	Kearney
Raphael	R.G.	Skudin
Price	R.T.	Mollis
Manning	R.E.	Hannigan
Pease	Q.B.	Hawes
Koppisch	L.H.B.	Bolden
Seslt	R.H.B.	Holden
Krisel	F.B.	Politica

Referee—H. C. McGrath, Boston College. Umpire—A. W. Risley, Albany. Linesman—H. B. Berrage, Dartmouth. Field Judge—F. S. Bergin, Princeton.

W. VA. ELEVEN READY FOR COLGATE GAME

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 7.—Spurred on by the cheers of the undergraduates, the West Virginia eleven, which meets Colgate in the new stadium here tomorrow at 2:30, hurried through a light signal drill this afternoon. It was the second enthusiastic demonstration of the past twenty-four hours.

With fair weather promised, West Virginia officials look for a record crowd. Hundreds will come here to see Eddie Tryon, sensational Colgate halfback, although it is known that the Mountaineers will go against the Maroon eleven with very definite instructions concerning Tryon, the coaches had nothing to say.

Colgate's squad stopped at Fairmont, W. Va., this morning and had a light workout there this afternoon. More than 150 Colgate students arrived here tonight to attend the game. The Maroon team will not come to Morgantown until shortly before noon tomorrow.

CORNELL REGULARS READY.

Dobie Will Start First String Men Against Susquehanna Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—This was like any other practice day for the Cornell football team, the easy program characteristic of Fridays giving way to another long drill. Not much of it was scrimmage, but Dobie spent a good part of the time in perfecting details, coaching his kickers and in giving the team some new passes which may be used in the Dartmouth game in New York. Dobie's charges will face Susquehanna here tomorrow.

Whetstone showed up well in kicking goals from the field, a phase of play in which the Ithacans have been weak so far. Whetstone has failed to boot a single goal from placement except to make the conventional point after touchdown.

Two sets of backs worked in today's practice, the varsity combination of Isaly, Patterson and Whetstone and the second string of Tilton, Wester, Wade and Friend. There were no changes in the line. Dobie announced that the regular team would start against Susquehanna.

CHICAGO TO BUILD STADIUM.

New Football Plant Will Have Seats for 70,000 Persons.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The University of Chicago next year will join those Western Conference schools whose football fields boast giant concrete stadiums. Erection of a new field house and rearrangement of Stagg Field to provide seating accommodations for 60,000 to 70,000 spectators will be undertaken immediately as a result of an announcement that plans for the project were approved by the university Board of Trustees Oct. 15.

The field will not be enlarged, but the football field, now running north and south, will be turned east and west. The present west concrete stand will be retained and two others will be added to form a U-shaped stadium. The project will be financed entirely from the athletic fund.

25,000 EXPECTED AT RUTGERS GAME

Eleven Will Oppose Lafayette in Annual Contest on Neutral Field at Princeton.

SILZER WILL BE PRESENT

Governor and Staff to Watch Battle Between Old Foes—Casualties Reported in Both Camps.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 7.—On a gridiron foreign to both teams, Rutgers and Lafayette will meet in their annual battle here tomorrow in Palmer Stadium, loaned to Rutgers by the Princeton management. An advance ticket sale far in excess of the number of available seats in the little Nellson Field at New Brunswick was reported tonight and indications are tomorrow's crowd here will approximate 25,000. Princeton students, unable to see their team play Harvard at Cambridge tomorrow, will be admitted free.

Head Coach Wallace brought his Rutgers squad here this afternoon for a final drill. No scrimmaging was attempted, but more than an hour was spent on signals and formations and then kickers were put to work booting up spirals while the backs practiced catching them in a strange arena. Both Hazel and Benkert tried field goals at varying distances, the former from placement and the latter by the drop method, Hazel after booting from the 35 and 45-yard marks, went back to midfield and in four tries from the 50-yard chalk line missed three times by only a few feet and put one true between the uprights.

After its final workout the Rutgers squad witnessed a game between high schools of Princeton and Palmyra for the class B championship of New Jersey. They had dinner in Nassau Inn and then returned to New Brunswick. Only one report from the Rutgers training quarters today was alarming. Gibson, left tackle, was found to be suffering from an infernoon of stiffness noticed after Wednesday's practice and caused from a shoe blister. Doctors Devan and McGovern and Trainer Bess announced tonight that although Gibson's speed, physical condition and good, he may not start tomorrow. Goldschmidt or Rees may take his place.

The Lafayette team will arrive here early tomorrow morning and make its headquarters at Old Nassau Inn, where the Rutgers squad will be at New Nassau Inn. Milliman may start at right halfback for Lafayette instead of Kirkleski and Lafayette's use of Kirkleski and Coach McCracken also is undecided between Highberger and Duffy for right tackle.

Following the game Lafayette will return to Easton, but the Rutgers squad will be taken in buses to the Shrewsbury Country Club for dinner, and then to the Coleman House, Asbury Park, for the night, returning to New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon.

Governor Silzer will be among those to witness the game tomorrow. Accompanied by his staff and members of the Legislature, the Executive's party will occupy seats on the Rutgers side.

ARMY READY FOR FLORIDA.

Coach McEwan Will Start Regulars Against Southerners Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A squad of twenty-three football players comprising the University of Florida team, which will play the Army eleven in the new stadium here tomorrow, arrived at noon today in charge of their head coach, Major J. A. Van Fleet, West Point '15. The Florida squad worked out on the Army gridiron this afternoon under a warm sun, somewhat like Florida weather.

Army took a light signal drill before dusk. A hard game is expected as the Southerners are bringing nearly the same team that played against Army last year when they furnished stiff opposition. Florida has not been beaten this year, according to their coach, and has played its games, 7—0 each, with Georgia Tech and the University of Texas elevens. Captain McEwan, Army's head coach, will start all his regulars against the Florida team.

The probable line-up follows:

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—The officials for the Army-Navy football game, to be played at Venable Stadium in Baltimore on Nov. 29, were announced here today. They are: Referee, W. E. YALE WILL DEPEND ON SECOND ELEVEN Reserve Players Will Go on the Field Against University of Maryland Today.

SOUTHERNERS GET SHAKEUP

Supplee Goes From End to Quarterback, While Ward Will Occupy the Left Wing Berth.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Yale will present largely a substitute eleven against the University of Maryland tomorrow, Captain Lovejoy, centre; Bingham, left end; Cottle, halfback; Allen, fullback, and Bench, quarterback, being missing. All except Bench will see the Harvard-Princeton game with Coaches Tad Jones and Jack Owsley. Bench is still suffering from muscle bruises, but may replace Bunnell as field general late in the game.

The Southerners will come here by sleeping car, it was stated tonight. Head Coach Curley Byrd this evening telegraphed a shake-up in his playing order, involving the switching of Supplee, the veteran end, to quarterback, and using Substitute Ward at left end. Hall, fullback, will be unable to play and Beatty will go from right end to succeed him, while Substitute Lanigan will play at right end.

The eleventh-hour shift is believed here to have strengthened Maryland, as Quarterback Beatty, who weighed only 145 pounds, has been replaced by Supplee, who tips the scales at 179. Beatty, however, weighs only 178, against 189 for Hall, who has dropped out of the competition.

It is expected at Yale that Maryland will drive Beatty and Supplee against Burt, Benton and Root, the right wing members, who have never started a varsity game for Yale. Of Yale's back field trio announced for tomorrow, Wadsworth has not before played end—halfback, but has been used as substitute quarterback. Kline is to start his first game, although he has before been called into the play as reserve plunging back. Bunnell won his spurs as field general against the Army last Saturday, but is retained because of Bench's poor physical condition. Joss and Butterworth of the regulars' rush line will be started.

The line-up:

ST. JOHN'S PLAYS TODAY.

Will Face Canisius College Eleven in Game at Ebbets Field.

The Canisius College eleven will face the St. John's College team at Ebbets Field this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The up-Staters have worked hard since Tuesday, when they fumbled away a game to Niagara by a 7—0 score, and with it the cherished upper New York Catholic college title. Coach Urban has not spared the men and his team finished up its training last night in a fighting state of mind. The entire squad will arrive this morning from Buffalo and will immediately go to Ebbets Field for a light work-out.

St. John's has suffered a serious loss in its back field by the injuries to Linaugh and Caywood, but Coach Lynch shifted Fitzgerald, a clever sub, into the quarter berth in an effort to keep up the speed which the team showed in its victory over Villanova.

The probable line-up:

ST. JOHN'S.		CANISIUS.

NAVY WILL TRY NEW BACKS.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—The Navy, meeting the University of Vermont here tomorrow, will exhibit its reconstructed back field, formed after scholastic difficulties and injuries had taken almost all of its back field regulars out of uniform.

The back field will be made up of Hamilton, Born, Albertson and Caldwell. Three of these played on the plebe team last year, while the fourth, Albertson, was a reserve player. Born will be used on the varsity for the first time this year. Henderson, who was taken from the reserve team early in the week, probably will get in the game at some period. The line will be the same as that which started against Penn State last Saturday, except that Lambert will be at left tackle in place of Wickhorst.

SAMMY MANDELL BEATS BERNSTEIN

MAKES WHIRLWIND FINISH

A desperate rally through the closing two rounds gave Sammy Mandell, Rockford (Ill.) lightweight, a victory over Jack Bernstein, Yonkers boxer, last night in their twelve-round battle in Madison Square Garden. The Illinois lad, fighting determinedly through the eleventh and twelfth rounds in a manner which had the crowd upon its feet yelling encouragement, battered his way to a close decision over the shifty Yonkers boxer in a battle which will be remembered as one of the most spectacular of the current indoor season. A crowd of 7,080 paid $20,781 to see the bout.

Judges Tommy Shortell and Charlie Wood and Referee Patsy Haley rendered their decision in favor of Mandell, and when the verdict was announced the crowd broke forth in a yell which did not die until the boxers had disappeared from the ring on their way to the dressing room.

It was a close decision and a popular one. Yet, there were many in the crowd who thought Bernstein entitled to the verdict because of his consistent aggressiveness, for the Yonkers lad carried the fighting at a furious pace from first bell to last.

Mandell, however, was the popular favorite. He suffered an accidental butt which produced a cut over his left eye in the sixth round when Bernstein, in his eagerness to strike a telling blow, rushed head-on into his rival in the first exchange of the round.

The accident increased the sentiment of the crowd for Mandell. The blood streamed from Mandell's eye in a steady flow and blinded the Illinois lad for the round. The crowd yelled its displeasure at Bernstein through the round and booed the Yonkers boxer whenever the pair came together in a clinch thereafter.

Mandell Lands Cleaner Blows.

The flow of blood was stopped when Mandell came up for the seventh and the fight went on unchanged thereafter until the ninth, when Bernstein renewed the flow with a high right. This, however, did not interfere with Mandell's superb work through the latter stages of the battle.

Mandell received the decision obviously because he landed the cleaner blows and landed them more often than his rival. Bernstein was active in every second of the bout in a tireless offensive which at times swept Mandell before it. But rarely did he threw his punches in tirelessly and from all directions, even to the extent of brushing the palms of his hands over the face of Mandell on occasions in the clinches, Bernstein was erratic in his fire and consequently ineffective.

Mandell, on the other hand, was the cool, deliberate boxer who met his rival's charges with well-directed right crosses and right uppercuts to the jaw and face and was particularly effective with a left jab which invariably upset Bernstein's attack and made the latter miss awkwardly. At long range Mandell was far superior to his rival, but in the clinches Bernstein held the upper hand until late in the battle, when Mandell perfected a protection for this style of attack by tying the arms of his rival. Several times during the bout Mandell stung his rival's ribs with rights to the jaw delivered as Bernstein rushed in. Particularly was this punch of Mandell's effective in the closing two rounds when he stood prepared for Bernstein's rushes and stopped the Yonkers lad repeatedly with jarring rights in crosses and uppercuts.

Final Round at Top Speed.

In the final round, when the pair went at each other at top speed, Mandell was notably effective because Bernstein, in his desire to land punches which would bring him points, was wild and inaccurate. The weights were: Mandell, 135 pounds; Bernstein, 132.

Joe Ryder, Brooklyn's rugged junior featherweight, battered his way to victory over Midget Smith, Harlem boxer, in the twelve-round semi-final. This was a bruising slugging bee in which Smith, a fair trimmer of old, in his first Garden appearance in more than a year, fought a game uphill battle all the way.

Practically all the work in this battle was done at close quarters, and at this style of fighting Ryder was more effective. He pounded the Midget severely under the heart with terrific rights, which swung past Smith's arms in every clinch and when the bout ended the effect of these blows was reflected in the bruises and the crimson hue of Smith's left side. Ryder weighed 122 pounds and Smith 119½.

Sol Seeman, Brooklyn's featherweight, who has recently returned from a triumphant tour of the Coast, scored a signal victory in his first return to local boxing when he knocked out Charlie Feraci, New Orleans boxer, in the sixth round of a scheduled six-round clash. A right to the jaw had Feraci on the verge of a knockout in the sixth round and the bout was stopped.

BAN ON BOXING UPHELD.

French State Council Supports Mayor of Chalons.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—A Mayor's right to forbid a boxing exhibition was upheld today by the State Council, which is the final authority on all administrative acts. The appeal was by a sporting club against the Mayor of Chalons-sur-Marne, who prohibited a series of bouts arranged by the club two years ago. In his ordinance the Mayor declared that boxing was "brutal and sometimes savage;" that it might result in serious injury, and that it violated the principles of "moral hygiene."

The sporting club was sentenced to pay four francs—the expense incurred by the Mayor for documentary stamps.

STEVENS ELEVEN TO PLAY.

Will Face Mass. Aggies This Afternoon In Game at Hoboken.

Stevens Tech faces one of the hardest games on the schedule when Massachusetts Aggies will be met this afternoon at Castle Point Field, Hoboken. The New Englanders have played six games and lost only to Connecticut Aggies, which is one of the undefeated teams. A total of 155 points in the scoring column has placed the Massachusetts Aggies in the ranks of high scoring teams.

Injuries to three varsity men will handicap Stevens. Eddie Hudson, a hard plunging halfback, is out with a charley horse sustained in scrimmage. Sperr, right end, is suffering with water on the knee and Captain O'Callaghan was declared out for the season after an examination last Tuesday of a pulled leg tendon.

Penn Plays Yale at Soccer Today.

An important intercollegiate soccer league game will be played in New Haven this afternoon between the University of Pennsylvania and Yale elevens.

Stimulus Is the Fifth Horse To Win Rich Pimlico Futurity

The Pimlico Futurity, for entire colts and fillies and one of the richest juvenile events of the year, was established in 1924, in which year it was won by Benjamin Block's Morvich. The amount of money added by the Maryland Jockey Club is $40,000, with an additional $5,000 if the winning colt or filly is the produce of a mare served in Maryland and foaled there. In 1922, because of the large entry, the race was run in two sections, the added money in each having been $40,000. The Idle Hour Stock Farm has twice won the Pimlico Futurity, taking the first section in 1923 with Blossom Time and winning last year with Beau Butler. Thus Stimulus becomes the fifth horse to win the event, although it has been established only four years.

Year.	Horse.	Wt.	Value.
1921.	Morvich	122	$42,750
1922.	Blossom Time	119	41,015
1922.	Sally's Alley	116	41,015

BOXING BODY MAKES DRAW FOR TOURNEY

Kramer Selected to Clash With Mike Dundee in Elimination Series at Garden Nov. 21.

KAPLAN WILL MEET GARCIA

Third Ten-Round Featherweight Bout Will Be Between Lombardo and Paluso.

Danny Kramer, Philadelphia's southpaw featherweight, vs. Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill.; Jose Lombardo, Panama boxer, vs. Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City star; Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., vs. Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird (Md.) army featherweight. This is the program of bouts which will be conducted in Madison Square Garden on the night of Nov. 21 as the elimination boxing tournament sponsored by the State Athletic Commission for the purpose of producing a featherweight worthy the title vacated by Johnny Dundee.

The matches were made yesterday, at a meeting of the commission, through a draw system such as employed in amateur boxing tourneys. Chairman George E. Brower, former Chairman William Muldoon, Commissioner James Farley and Colonel John J. Phelan, Chairman of the License Committee, made the selections from a hat. Mr. Muldoon stated the drawing when the slips were placed in the hat. He pulled out the name of Kramer, and then Chairman Br

CRUSHING BATTLES ON GRIDIRON TODAY

Football Teams in East, West and South Have Attained Their Highest Form.

FINAL DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

Elevens From Coast to Coast Will Strive for Titles, While Others Face Traditional Foes.

The final chapters of the 1924 football season will be started today. College elevens throughout the country are beginning their final drives for glory, and where championship aspirations have dimmed teams are striving for the honor of gaining victories over traditional rivals. Two of the oldest rivals will meet at Cambridge, where the star of the Big Three series brings together Harvard and Princeton. This classic of the gridiron game stands out above the rest in the East today, while the meeting between Illinois and Chicago is expected to furnish most of the interest in the West and the battle between Alabama and Kentucky will be one of the big drawing cards in the South.

Both Princeton and Harvard have been defeated and neither's claims to Eastern supremacy are very strong, but the traditions and background of the annual game, the colorful scene which always is presented when these two meet and the great following of each team makes the game always a centre of interest. The Crimson will take the field favored to win. The Harvard team of this year is stronger than the one which was sent out last season. The Tigers, on the other hand, have shown little if any improvement over their 1923 performance, and last year they bowed to both Harvard and Yale.

Speed is Princeton's only hope and Coach Roper has indicated that he will sacrifice everything for a fast-traveling backfield. He has announced that Williams, Weekes, Slagle and Gilligan would be sent on the field, and fleet feet instead of muscular shoulders will carry the Tigers' hopes. These slight flyers may be able to shake themselves loose for scores; but the powerful Harvard line, backed up by a strong set of ball carriers, should triumph in the end. Speed may be able to conquer brawn alone, but under the crimson jerseys there are a hard charging line and fast backs, in addition to brute force.

Rutgers Faces Hard Test.

The battle between Princeton and Harvard, however, will not have a monopoly of the Eastern interest, for Rutgers, still unbeaten, will be fighting to keep its head above the waters of defeat at Palmer Stadium, Princeton, where Lafayette will be striving just as hard to shove the New Brunswick players under. Lafayette's championship hopes were wrecked by the Red and Blue machine of Pennsylvania last week and now the Leopard will try to drag down Rutgers with him. A tie by Lehigh is the only dark mark against the Rutgers record this season and if it can add Lafayette to its list of victims it will be in a position to claim the Eastern title should Penn falter on its victorious march. The kicking of Hazel and the running of Benkert have been the most powerful weapons of the Rutgers team all season, but these two will face one of the strongest and best balanced teams of the country today and it seems probable that they at last will be halted.

Yale will have its first opportunity to let down in several weeks. Georgia, Dartmouth, Brown and Army in succession have furnished the Blue with all it cared to handle and there have been few breathing spells since the campaign started, but today Yale will face Maryland and it should have the opportunity of resting before the team goes into its final games against Princeton and Harvard. Last year Maryland gave Yale the scare of its life when it rolled up a 14—0 lead, and it wasn't until the final minutes that the Blue was able to pull through to a 16-14 victory. But Maryland has lost McQuade, Johnny Groves and several others of that surprising team of 1923 and this year it should worry Yale but little.

The Army sought to insert an easy game in the schedule after the Yale battle, so it took Florida as today's opponent, but one year's team is not the next season's machine, and instead of being a soft spot the Southerners promise to give the cadets a merry time of it up at West Point. Florida has a tie with Georgia Tech, which beat Penn State, to its credit, and the Army will get little rest against the Alligators, although it should win by a touchdown or two.

The Navy, its record wrecked and a victory over the Army its only hope of redemption, will go forward in preparation for the service battle with Vermont as today's opponent. With four successive defeats and the loss of several stars through scholastic deficiency, the midshipmen are willing to sacrifice the rest of the schedule in order to reach the best possible condition on Nov. 29. Vermont should be taken in stride, next Saturday the Navy will meet Bucknell, and after that comes two weeks in which to point for the Army game.

Colgate and West Virginia should furnish an interesting battle at Morgantown, with little to choose on either side. The Mountaineers started a landslide against Bethany last Saturday, and they may carry through to victory on the momentum gained at that time. Colgate's only defeat this season has come at the hands of Nebraska, but none of its triumphs have been against strong teams, and it is doubtful if Tryon and his mates will be able to stop the charging Mountaineers today.

One of the closest contests of the day is looked for when Penn State and Carnegie Tech meet. Both teams have played in an out football all year, showing power one week and weakness the next. Penn State, after losing to Georgia Tech, braced up and held Syracuse to a 10-6 score and outplayed the Orange throughout. The Nittany Lions then were held to a pair of field goals by the Navy, a none too impressive eleven. Carnegie Tech lost to W. and J. and on the next Saturday beat Pitt. There is little to choose on past performance, but Carnegie has whatever margin of superiority there appears to be.

West Will Meet East.

The outstanding intersectional game of the afternoon will find Boston College playing Marquette, conqueror of the Navy. Western representatives have been rolling up points all season, with Army, Princeton, Brown and Colgate among the Easterners that have fallen in intersectional combat, and Boston College may be added to the list today. Last year the two teams fought a close battle that went to the Westerners by the score of 7 to 6. Almost as close a contest is expected today but the Easterners have the better chance of winning.

Many of the leading elevens in the East will have a chance to let down in their strenuous campaigns preparatory to starting on their late November advances. Penn should have little trouble with Georgetown, which isn't the powerful team that represented the university four or five years ago under the régime of Albert Exendine. Dartmouth faces the first soft spot on its schedule in several weeks with Boston University as an opponent. Cornell's rebuilt machine will be driven headlong into Susquehanna, and Dobie will probably strive for a big score in order to restore confidence in the Ithacans; Pitt expects no trouble from Geneva, and Syracuse should have little opposition from West Virginia. Wesleyan, although the latter has a victory over the Navy to swell its record of achievements, Williams will start its drive for the Little Three championship, with Wesleyan expected to be its first victim, today.

The West and South will furnish plenty of action also. Illinois, with Red Grange still moving steadily in the direction of football immortality, probably will get plenty of opposition from Chicago, but an Illini defeat is not anticipated as long as the Red Flash retains his footing. Michigan and Northwestern will meet in another of the Big Ten games, while Ohio State and Indiana are two others that will furnish Conference contests.

Alabama, the only outstanding team in the country that has not been scored on this season, faces a hard foe in Kentucky, but although it may have its goal line crossed it probably will remain in the list of the undefeated. Georgia should beat Virginia, Centre is expected to defeat Tennessee, and Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado should sweep Louisiana State aside in other leading Southern encounters.

PENN ELEVEN PLAYS GEORGETOWN TODAY

Game at Franklin Field Will Be First Clash Between These Two Colleges Since 1894.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—The University of Pennsylvania football team, the only eleven in the East that neither has been defeated nor tied, will meet Georgetown University of Washington tomorrow afternoon on Franklin Field. The kick-off is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Lou Young, the head coach of the team, worked diligently during the present week to prevent his team from gaining overconfidence, which has wrecked more than one Pennsylvania team in the past. Georgetown, after getting away to a poor start, has settled down and is playing as good football as any team Pennsylvania has met outside of Lafayette.

Lou Little, who is coaching Georgetown, is familiar with the Pennsylvania system of defense, he having played three seasons at tackle under Dr. Charles Wharton.

There will be little to choose between the two teams in so far as defense is concerned. With Mike Palm, the brainy quarterback of last year's Penn State team that defeated Pennsylvania, coaching the Georgetown backfield, Young's men will have to be on the alert.

The same team that started against Lafayette with one exception will face Georgetown. Neither Enid Thomas nor Joe Laird, regular and first string quarterbacks, respectively, will be able to play. Thomas will be kept on the side lines until the Cornell game because of a badly torn knee, while Laird has a dislocated shoulder. Andy Thompson, the 145-pound quarterback who starred in the closing minutes of the Virginia game, was chosen yesterday by Coach Young for quarterback.

Georgetown and Pennsylvania last met in 1894, when the Washington team was swamped, 48 to 0. The only other game between the two institutions was staged in 1893 and resulted in a 12-to-0 victory for Pennsylvania.

The probable line-up:

LEHIGH IN GOOD SHAPE.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 7.—The student body turned out today to cheer the Lehigh University football squad on its start for Worcester to play Holy Cross. Lehigh so far is an undefeated eleven. Every man on the varsity squad, with the exception of Yeager, a tackle, who was left behind in the hospital, was in the best of condition and available if needed.

The problem that had not been decided when the team left was the quarterback selection. The coach intimated that it was a toss-up among Prior, Hess and Lewin, and also that Greer might be shifted from his fullback position to quarter and Levitz be used in the latter. The line will be intact, with Burke and Cannon, ends; Littell and Merrill, tackles; Lewis and Hoffman, guards, and Cheel, centre. If Prior or Lewis start at quarterback the back field will probably be Greer, fullback, and Mellinger and Stephens, halfbacks.

TO START SECOND TEAM.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 7.—Coach Jesse Hawley stated tonight that he would start his second team against Boston University tomorrow unless he discovers some reason for changing his plans before the game starts. The entire squad went through the usual short Friday drill this afternoon. In the defensive practice against Boston U. plays today the coaches gave most of their attention to the second team, although the staff is making sure that the regulars are well schooled in the wide-open play of the visitors.

The second string line-up will be Sage and Emerson, ends; Allen and Hardy, tackles; Sweetser and Prescott, guards; Montgomery, centre; Fallon, quarter; Robinson and Reeder, halfbacks; Norton, fullback.

OFFERS TO COVER EXPENSE.

Chicago Would Pay Cost of Army-Navy Game There.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Representative Britten of Illinois, who called at the White House today to congratulate President Coolidge on his victory, said he had taken up with the War Department the advisability of playing the 1925 Army and Navy football game in Chicago. He said that Chicago would make arrangements to cover the expense of the contest, including that of transporting the entire West Point cadet corps to that city.

CHICAGO TO FACE RED GRANGE TODAY

INDIANA MEETS OHIO STATE

Hoosiers Have Strengthened Attack for Crucial Game—Michigan to Oppose Northwestern.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Six Western Conference football teams are ready to take the field tomorrow in games that virtually are the tri-finals in the scramble for the Big Ten crown. Four others finished grooming today for non-conference contests, of which the feature is the Notre Dame-Wisconsin meeting at Madison.

Illinois, favorite contender for the title, is prepared to undergo an acid test with Chicago, its nearest competitor. The Maroons have been pointing to the game since the season opened and for weeks the veteran coach Stagg has drilled his line into a stiff defensive wall and an offense calculated to break through and stop "Red" Grange, Illini back field ace, before he gets started on his famous ground-gaining and point-scoring runs. Everything in the veteran mentor's repertoire of attack and defense plays has been drawn upon to perfect the Maroon machine.

Coach Zuppke of Illinois has a grim and determined squad, in good shape, with the exception of Wallie McIlwain, main cog in interference for Grange, who will play with an injured hand, and Harry Hall, quarterback, who may not appear in the line-up. Hall's place may be taken by Gallivan, who made a good showing against Iowa last week.

Ohio, third in the conference standing, has finished its arrangements for Indiana, which goes to Columbus for the first time since 1917. The Buckeyes were strong favorites over the Hoosiers, who have been defeated in their two conference starts this year.

Michigan's preparation for Northwestern at Ann Arbor had as its objective the stopping of Ralph Baker, main star of the Purple squad. The Northwestern line was somewhat weakened by injuries and illness, but Coach Yost of the Wolverines also has Babcock on the hospital list.

ROSS WILL COACH DETROIT SWIMMERS

Famous Illinois A. C. Aquatic Star Resigns From A. A. U. to Accept Post.

One of the greatest swimmers to compete under the jurisdiction of the Amateur Athletic Union, has been lost to the country as an amateur, it became known yesterday, when announcement was made at A. A. U. headquarters that Norman Ross, Illinois A. C. star, has turned professional. Ross, it was announced, has resigned from the A. A. U. to assume the post of director of swimming at the Detroit A. C., a position whose acceptance automatically involves the forfeiture of his amateur standing.

Ross will be remembered always as one of the most spectacular all-around swimmers of the present generation. Prior to the advent of Johnny Weissmuller, Ross was in a class by himself; one of the country's outstanding athletes. At one time he held more than seventy-five world's and American swimming records, practically every mark on the A. A. U. books, from 100 meters to one mile being credited to him. He has been competing for about ten years, and during his career has represented the Multnomah A. A. C., of Portland, Ore., Leland Stanford University and the Illinois A. C., with which organization he ended his competitive career.

TO ATTEND SHEAFE BURIAL.

Myrick, Williams and Other Tennis Leaders Go to Boston.

Julian S. Myrick, Chairman of the United States Davis Cup Committee, and a number of other prominent tennis officials and players left this city last night for Boston to attend the funeral of Edwin Sheafe, which will be held there today. R. Norris Williams 2d, Captain of the Davis Cup team; Watson M. Washburn, Chairman of the Constitutional Committee of the association; Dean Mathey and Coleman Jennings were others who made the trip. Officers and members of the Executive Committee at points too distant to make the trip in time to attend the funeral, will forward floral offerings and telegrams of condolence to the family.

Mr. Sheafe occupied a position as one of the leading sponsors of tennis for more than a generation and was a member of the Executive Committee of the U. S. L. T. A. He was President of the Longwood Cricket Club, one of the most prominent tennis organizations in the country, for more than twenty years and during that time has conducted many of the national championships and Davis Cup matches. Mr. Sheafe was 62 years old and is survived by his wife and three daughters.

BLUE IS GOLF VICTOR.

Southern Player Wins Leonard Tufts Trophy at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 7.—A Southerner successfully resisted the invasion of 500 Northern golfers here today, when H. J. Blue of Aberdeen, N. C., won the twentieth annual Autumn tournament here, the first golf event of the season.

Blue defeated Donald Parson of Youngstown, Ohio, by one up, after a match, which see-sawed all the way. Blue, in winning the Leonard Tufts Trophy in the face or opposition from all over the North, made up for a defeat inflicted by Parson in this same final last year.

BUFFALO TO ENTER GOLD CUP REGATTA

Launch Club Sends Second Challenge to Be Received by Columbia Y. C. for 1925.

A second challenge for the Gold Cup, the trophy emblematic of supremacy in speed-boat racing, was received yesterday by the Columbia Yacht Club, which will be the defending club in the Gold Cup race of 1925. This contest will be held in New York waters next August for the first time in many years, either on the Hudson River, off the Columbia Yacht Club, or on Manhasset Bay.

The second challenge to be received was made in the name of the Buffalo Launch Club and the challenging boat will be Curtis Wilgold II., the owner of which is J. A. Williams. The first challenge to be received was made two weeks ago by Carl G. Fisher, representing the Miami Beach Yacht Club, and the boat named was Baby Shadow.

A dinner will be given on Dec. 5 at the Columbia Yacht Club to Caleb Bragg, owner of Baby Bootlegger, the boat which won the Gold Cup this year at Detroit, and Charles F. Chapman, who drove Miss Columbia, which made the best time record in the last race. Following the dinner there will be a meeting at which a committee will be organized to arrange the dates and other details of the 1925 Gold Cup regatta, at which time the second race for the Horace E. Dodge Memorial Trophy also will be decided.

SAYS COACHES COPY STROKE YALE USES

Leader Also States That Training Ideas for Crews Have Changed—Frowns on Beer.

FALL RACES START MONDAY

Annual Inter-Class Regatta Between the Twenty-three Eli Crews Will Close on Thursday.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 7.—"Coaches are great imitators and right now there is a scamper to get the Washington stroke," said Ed Leader, Yale crew coach, whose Eli crew won the Olympic championship last year, in an address to a Yale alumni gathering here.

"The stroke soon will be standardized and then races will be fought out on a basis of training and race psychology," Leader said. The stroke which brought victory to the Yale crews during the past two years of his training cannot long remain a secret, he said, and will soon be in general use.

Discussing the training of crew candidates, Leader said the time had passed when a man in training must confine himself to chewing beef. "Eat plain, wholesome food, eat regular and sleep regular, don't smoke, don't eat between meals, leave sweets alone," he gave as the fare of the Yale crews under his direction during their training periods.

"The English have an idea that beer is the right thing to train on," he said. "Perhaps that is all right for young Englishmen brought up on beer, but it's no good for young American college fellows, who are not used to the stuff."

Discussing the various races of the Yale championship crew last year, Leader declared that the "greatest race ever rowed" was the Yale race with the Navy crew in the Olympic trials at Philadelphia.

Yale Crews Will Race.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Twenty-three crews, which have been training daily on the harbor all Fall, will participate in the annual Yale interclass regatta, which will be held on the harbor here from Monday to Thursday of next week. This regatta marks the culmination of the outdoor work for the numerous class crews which are being coached by Mike Murphy and Don Grant, former University of Washington oarsmen.

After the regatta the heavy varsity eights, which have been rowing under Leader on the Housatonic at Derby, will remove to the harbor, where they will stay until forced indoors by the weather.

He suffered two broken ribs and had his collar bone fractured during the third period.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF STEEL MEN

In an interview Judge Gary discusses the possibility of the formation of such an organization, along the lines of the Steel Institute in America. The first step toward an International Institute was made in 1911 at a meeting held in Brussels, and it is pointed out that the idea, if permitted to grow, would have done much toward preventing the World War.

U. S. BALL PLAYERS WELCOMED IN PARIS

ADVANCE SALE IS BRISK

Has Passed 100,000-Franc Mark—Children Surprised That Giants Are So Small.

PARIS, Nov. 7 (Associated Press).—The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox, on a European exhibition tour, arrived in Paris today from London and were greeted at the railway station by fifteen French newspaper photographers and fifty correspondents. The baseball visitors received the "greatest reception since that given the Prince of Wales on his last visit," according to a veteran usher at the Gare du Nord.

Manager John McGraw, who is honorary President of the French Baseball Federation, was greeted by Frantz Reichel, General Secretary of the French Olympic Committee. McGraw told the French correspondents, through an interpreter, that they were certain to see "a real ball game" tomorrow. He added that he was going to pitch Nehf and give the French fans a look at some genuine mound work.

Among the crowds that gathered to witness the arrival of the Americans were a number of children. One little girl when she saw Frisch, Stengel and Nehf emerge from the train asked:

"Are those the giants of New York?"

The French appeared to be somewhat nonplussed that the "giants" were such small men.

The game tomorrow promises to be one of enthusiasm at any rate. The advance sale of tickets already has gone over 100,000 francs.

Defeat Springfield, 22-25, While Princeton Beats M. I. T., 24-36.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Harvard defeated Springfield College, 22 to 25, today in a cross-country run over the Charles River course. Tibbetts of Harvard finished in front, with a time of 28 minutes 14 seconds for the five-mile course.

Over a slightly modified course on the same ground the Princeton Harriers defeated the Massachusetts Institute of Technology runners 24 to 36, although Captain Bemis of M. I. T. finished first in 24 minutes 13 seconds.

YACHTSMEN TO GET PRIZES.

Bermuda Race Winners Will Receive Trophies on Nov. 19.

The annual dinner of the Cruising Club of America will be held on Wednesday night, Nov. 19, at the Harvard Club. The captains of the winning yachts in the Bermuda ocean race will be the guests of the club and the trophies for the race will be awarded.

Following the dinner Dr. Robert Chapman Murphy will give an illustrated lecture having the title, "The Way of the Sperm Whale." This is the story of a voyage made some years ago by Dr. Murphy in the New Bedford whaling brig Daisy, one of the last vessels of the old type that sailed out of the once-famous whaling port.

Erich Hagenlacher, holder of the German 18.2 balkline title, defeated Frank Bennett and Philip Meise in exhibition matches at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he ran 200 points in five innings against Bennett's 86 and made a high run of 104. In the evening he made 200 points in four innings against Meise's 57 and had a high run of 121.

In the amateur handicap straight rail tournament at the same academy J. Sexton defeated H. Braun by the score of 200 to 193 in sixty-five innings, making a high run of 16, while Braun made a run of 22.

Tadao Sugenuma, Japanese star, former holder of the junior 18.2 balkline crown, ran 200 points in eight innings in each of two exhibition games at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy Tuesday, in the first of which he defeated Tom Moore at 200 to 54, making a high run of 97, and in the second he defeated W. Apple at 200 to 87, making a high run of 72.

Two games were played in the amateur handicap three-cushion tournament at the same academy. J. De Fina defeated M. Hilmuel in one by the score of 25 to 20, both players making a high run of 3. T. Hagen was the winner of the other, defeating F. Arasow, 30 to 24, and making a high run of 5.

Emmet Crozier was the winner over George Steinbrueck in the only game played in the Interborough Class "C" 18.2 balkline championship at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. The score was 125 to 146. Crozier went out in forty-six innings and made a high run of 18, a better than his opponent's.

Joseph Concannon, representative of Brooklyn in the National Championship pocket Billiard League, defeated L. B. Waters in an exhibition match at the same academy, 75 to 69. Concannon made his total in eleven innings and made a high run of 20. Water's high run was 15.

Walker's Reggio was second and the Duke of Westminster's Twelve Pointer was third. Thirteen ran. Sierra Leone won by one and one-half lengths and a half length separated Reggio and Twelve Pointer. The betting was 6 to 1 against Sierra Leone, 8 to 1 against Reggio, and 100 to 30 against Twelve Pointer.

HARMON WINS TWO, TAKES LEAGUE LEAD

By defeating Charles Seaback of Boston in the third and fourth games of their series of six at Lawler Brothers' Manhattan Academy yesterday Charles Harmon, representative of this city, took the lead in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League, with seven games won and three lost. His two victories yesterday gave him four straight over Seaback.

Both of the games were close. In the afternoon Harmon won at 100 to 92 in thirty-four innings and in the evening he triumphed at 100 to 89 in twenty-eight innings. In each Seaback gained an early lead only to be overtaken and defeated after a stirring struggle in the concluding stages. In the afternoon game Seaback made 15 on his first turn at the table and then scored 25 more in the second inning. Harmon scratched in both innings and the score stood 43 to minus 2 in Seaback's favor.

In the fourth inning Seaback played safe. Harmon took a long chance and successfully negotiated a three-cushion shot and then went on to make a run of 12. Then followed innings of safety play in which both players went scoreless. In the thirteenth Harmon made 12, followed this run with his ninth run of the night, 28, in the fourteenth. In the thirty-second he got 6 and in the thirty-third he made his second highest run of the game, 22. Needing only one more point for the match, Harmon missed a simple cut shot and then Seaback came to the table and made a beautiful run of 34 in the thirty-fourth inning. With 12 balls still on the table and needing only 3 to win, the Boston player missed a combination on the corner and Harmon came up to end the match in his half of the inning.

In the evening Seaback got 20 in the second inning. At the end of the tenth he was leading at 61 to 35. A run of 12, followed by one of 25, his best for the night, put Harmon in the lead and he stayed there for the rest of the game.

STIMULUS IS WINNER OF PIMLICO FUTURITY

the keenest opposition from the rise of the barrier and was on the outside of the winner during the entire journey. The Joaquin Stable's Plough Boy came again at the end and helped to make another sensational finish, heads only separating the first three horses.

The Catonsville Steeplechase for four-year-olds and upward was placed first on the afternoon card. Six answered the call for the journey of two and a quarter miles and four of them completed the trying test. F. Strassner's Treviacot was close up under a bustling ride by Diamond to the tenth fence, where the latter made a bad landing and was eased up. W. R. Bowes's Abydos came down at the fourth fence.

Mrs. F. A. Clark's four-year-old gelding Rock Bass, second choice in the betting, was the favorite. J. L. Wilson's Grenadier, by a head. L. Cheyne had the mount on the winner and made his own pace all the way. W. Collins held Grenadier under wraps for two turns of the field and went up with his challenge in the final half-mile. Grenadier was interfered with at the twelfth fence where the pacemaker crossed him. Collins was forced to pull up at the height of his charge and Grenadier had to get going again in time. St. Lawrence and Surf weakened toward the end. The winner paid $8.00 and ran the distance in 4:18 3-5.

An outsider grouped in the mutuel field parried off the money in the claiming dash of six furlongs for the juveniles when H. W. Maxwell's filly Miss Vaal beat fourteen others to the wire. The daughter of Transvaal and Miss O'Day paid $25.90 for a $2 ticket. Miss O'Day was alertly handled at the post by McTague, followed the pace closely until straightening out for home and held on well in the drive. In the stretch battle she appeared to be beaten, but she came on again in the final sixteenth to gain the decision by a head from J. A. Buchanan's Gold Trap.

Gold Trap, in a tangle at the break, was able to get out and circle his field and finished full of run. Gala Night was right with the leaders all through the trip, faltering slightly at the end to be beaten for the place by a length and a half. Miss Vaal was in hand under 102 pounds and ran the distance in 1:16. The summaries:

265 HARRIERS ENTER IN I. C. A. A. A. A. RUN

19 Colleges Will Be Represented in Title Race at Van Cortlandt Park Nov. 24.

SYRACUSE IS AGAIN STRONG

Will Have Four Veterans to Help in Bid for Third Straight Championship.

(By The Associated Press.)

A field of 265 hill-and-dale runners, representing nineteen Eastern institutions, has been entered for the 1924 intercollegiate cross-country race over the six-mile Van Cortlandt Park course on Nov. 24, when Syracuse will defend the championship the Orange has won for the past two years.

This was revealed upon the closing of entries yesterday with the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A., under whose auspices the varsity event will be run for the sixteenth time. The fifth annual freshman title race, which will be run over a three-mile course, has attracted 218 entries from fifteen colleges.

Johns Hopkins, which produced the individual winner last year in Verne Booth, will not be represented in the 1924 varsity race, which promises a stirring fight for individual as well as team honors.

The champion Orange harriers have four veterans of their victorious 1923 squad as a powerful nucleus for their bid for a third straight crown. As a result, Syracuse probably will start a favorite, but faces keen opposition, particularly from Columbia, runner-up last year, which has a veteran team; Dartmouth, winner of the recent quadrangular meet with Columbia, Pennsylvania, and Cornell, and Yale, which has a strong squad with an individual ace in Mat Smith, freshman winner of 1923, who captured the recent Springfield meet in the brilliant time of 31 minutes 50 seconds. This performance for a six-mile race eclipses the record for Van Cortlandt Park, set by Booth last year at 32:10.

Smith, winner of seventeen of the twenty-four championship races held since 1899, has a veteran leader in Ed Kirby, who will be a strong contender for individual laurels, but Jack Moakley's squad apparently is not up to former standards. Pennsylvania also has an ace in Elmer McLane, but does not figure as a strong team contender. Harvard has two capable men in Chapin and Cutcheon, while Holy Cross has an Olympic team star in Leo Larrivee.

Yale, Maine, Syracuse and Pennsylvania, with twenty entries each, have nominated the largest eligible lists for the varsity race. Only seven are permitted to start under the colors of any one college, however, while only the first five figure in the team scoring. Cornell has nineteen entries, while the others are as follows: Columbia, 16; Bates, 15; Harvard, 15; New York University, 17; Rutgers, 15; Dartmouth, 13; Princeton, 13; Massachusetts Tech, 12; City College of New York, 12; Colby 11; Holy Cross, 10; Pittsburgh, 9; Lafayette, 8; Swarthmore, 1.

The freshman entries are: Maine, 30; Cornell, 20; Pittsburgh, 18; Syracuse, 18; Penn State, 16; Pennsylvania, 15; City College of New York, 14; Yale, 14; Princeton, 13; Harvard, 13; Columbia, 12; Dartmouth, 11; New York University, 10; Rutgers, 9; Bates, 6.

HUNTERS TO RACE TODAY.

The annual point-to-point races for hunters that have been regularly hunted with the Meadow Brook Hounds, will be held this afternoon over the Meadow Brook Cup course at Jericho, Long Island, in connection with the twenty-fourth running of the famous old Meadow Brook Hunt Cup. The Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia University Clubs were the winners of the second series of matches in the metropolitan Class B intercLub squash tennis championship yesterday, each team coming through by a decisive margin. Yale, Princeton an Columbia now lead the league with two matches won and none lost for each.

Yale defeated the strong Crescent A. C. team on the Ell courts by the score of 9 matches to 1, and Princeton won by the same score from the New York A. C. on the Orange and Black courts. Columbia and D. K. E. played only six matches, of which the Blue and White won five at the Shelton Apartments courts. Harvard was at home to the Montclair A. C. and won 5 to 2. Yale has lost only one match out of fourteen played thus far, having defeated Montclair, 7 to 0, a week ago yesterday.

It was an experienced combination that the Ells faced yesterday, and while they took six of the matches, every one of the victories was earned. Arthur Goldburg, who led off at No. 1, fairly raced through his opening game with Donald Bellows, but the Crescent man warmed to the play in the second chapter and a hard fought struggle developed, Goldburg winning the game at 15-13. K. R. Smith and Jesse Tredwell, No. 2 and No. 3, respectively, both met with stiff opposition for one game, while L. H. Sonneborn, W. R. Schleifer and J. F. Trounstine each lost the first game before winning Yale's three other victories.

Huhn's Playing Features.

The playing of Tevis Huhn, No. 1 on Princeton, was the feature of the match between the Orange and Black and the New York A. C. Huhn defeated Frank Loughman in one of the best matches of the entire day's play at 13—15, 15—11, 15—14. The Princeton player is a newcomer to squash tennis ranks, taking up the game after establishing his ability as at squash racquets. From his showing against Loughman he promises to develop into one of the best players in the league. Huhn is an exponent of speed. He hits a terrific smash, scoring many of his points on low drives along the side wall, and his ability as a getter is pronounced. It was his ability to retrieve a number of Loughman's best shots when the N. Y. A. C. star was hand-in that enabled him to come through the winner in the third game after the closest sort of a struggle.

Jarvis Cromwell, No. 4 on Princeton, was hard pressed for the first game against C. Leyendecker, and Arnold Wood Jr., No. 4, dropped the first game to Chapman Ropes and was near defeat in the second game. Princeton's three other victories were won by big margins. W. E. Chambers was the only match for the visitors, and was carried to three games by S. M. Sperry. W. B. Brown of Columbia and Eliot L. Ward of D. K. E. were very closely matched in the feature scrap at the Shelton Apartments, Brown winning in two games, both of which were set extra points.

Alexander Beats Huntington.

N. N. Alexander of Columbia and Ellery C. Huntington also waged a severe tussle. Huntington won the first game at 15—12, and was close to victory in the second game. Alexander took five points in a row after it had been set at 13—all, and then won the deciding game also after it had been set at 5 points. R. H. Reutter and J. N. Cole were also pressed to win, while Columbia's fifth victory was gained by a default. Stanley Green defeated Peter Grimm for D. K. E.'s only point.

Montclair showed strength at the very top and the very bottom of its line-up. H. O'Connor, Montclair man for the Jerseyites, defeated Gerald Henderson at 15—9, 9—15, 15—12, and C. C. Halsey, No. 7, defeated Bernhardt Knollenberg in another three-game match. Harvard's five victories were all won in straight fashion.

HAPPY THOUGHTS ABOUT TAXES.

Elections may come and elections may go, but taxes flow on forever. With the returns of Tuesday's voting not yet all in, Washington lightly turns to thoughts of taxation. As if the controversies in the last session of Congress about income taxes and surtaxes had not been bitter enough and disappointing enough, some would like to tear the old wounds open in the short session of Congress. This is evidently not the view of the Administration. Nor does it appear that the President falls in with the suggestion that the new Congress be called in extraordinary session early in March to take up again the whole question of Federal taxation. A plausible interpretation of the overwhelming majority for Mr. COOLIDGE is that it denoted the desire of the country to "rest and be thankful." Nothing could break that rest in so unwelcome a manner as an extra session of Congress next Spring.

While the Administration may be counted upon to go slow and to tread cautiously in all this matter, the great thoughts of others will not easily be bottled up. Already Representative MADDEN, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is out with a little "plan" of his own. He is not certain that it will prove "workable," but is positive that if it were it would be big with blessings for the taxpayer. His bright idea is to make taxes "flexible" after the manner in which tariff rates were supposed to have been made flexible. The analogy is not exactly a felicitous one for Mr. MADDEN'S purpose, but his conception is that Congress may empower the President, from time to time, whenever it appears that there is in the Treasury a surplus of not less than $25,000,000, to distribute it pro rata to the taxpayers in the form of a rebate of the taxes which they have already paid.

It is reported that cold-hearted Treasury officials do not take kindly to this Madden scheme. They may be thinking only of the technical difficulties of administering it. But there are serious objections which go to the very heart of the project. It is elementary that taxation ought not to be so heavy, and so miscalculated, as to produce a surplus of $500,000,000 in a single fiscal year. That represents not only an unnecessary drain upon the taxpayer but a needless burden placed upon industry. And it must not be forgotten that, in general, it is business and the consuming public that need relief more than the individual taxpayer. Taxes are always passed on as rapidly and as largely as they can be. Their effect is cumulative. Unnecessary taxes make unnecessarily high prices. This is the great evil which ought to be removed, so far as possible, by the strictest economy in the Government and by the cutting down of the permanent rates of taxation. To hand now and then a trifling repayment to the taxpayer out of back taxes would do little or nothing in achieving the main end of a scientific budget and of reform in taxation. The thing would be a good deal like a petty "dole" from the Treasury, spasmodic, uncertain, not to be calculated upon in making plans for the future, and almost entirely ineffective in relieving the nation from excessive taxation.

Leaving this happy thought to be blown away by its own lightness, the question is raised whether the President might not recommend to Congress even in its short session something definite and urgent in the way of changing the tax laws. The commonest proposal is, of course, that Mr. COOLIDGE should appeal to Congress to amend the Tax bill of 1924 by striking out the provision calling for the making public of income tax payments. Certainly, that particular part of the law ought to be clarified, if it is not repealed outright. The obscurities and apparent contradictions of the statute have left the Department of Justice uncertain what the law is, in intent and effect. But the best way to clear it up is to clear it out. The blundering enforcement of the section relating to publicity of income tax payments has led to a vast amount of misunderstanding, annoyance, vexation of spirit, and perhaps of actual injury to the credit and standing of some taxpayers. Thousands are now righteously indignant about this "outrage," who had not a word to say when the bill was pending, and when the press was exposing its threatened mischief and calling for public protests. All this, however, is not to the point at present. If President COOLIDGE remains of the belief that the exposing of private affairs to the public by law is needless and injurious, and if he strongly urges Congress to return to the saner and fairer method that was first followed in keeping income tax payments secret, he ought to be able, with his greatly enhanced prestige, to secure the repeal of a law which never should have been passed.

THE NEW BRITISH CABINET.

About three-fourths of the members of Mr. BALDWIN'S new Government were members of his first. In a number of cases there is that transposition of posts which suggests the value of permanent officials rather than any natural luxuriance of administrative talent. First let us welcome the return of that prodigal of genius, WINSTON CHURCHILL. The Admirable CHURCHILL! In the course of his political gypsying he has been President of the Board of Trade, Home Secretary, First Lord of the Admiralty, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Minister of Munitions, Secretary of State for War, Secretary of State for Air, Secretary of State for the Colonies. Now he is Chancellor of the Exchequer, that office so amusingly held by his brilliant father, whose official astonishment at seeing, apparently for the first time, a decimal point, prompted the famous inquiry: "What is that damned thing?"

Mr. CHURCHILL'S self-confidence—impudence, as the wicked sometimes call it—is great and signally successful. Sir ROBERT HORNE'S nose is out of joint. The surviving "Die-hards" and many other Conservatives sicken at the smell of fatted calf. But, since Mr. CHURCHILL insists at present on being a Conservative, doubtless it is felt safer highly to reward him and have his powerful tongue on the right side. Presumably he is competent; but it is a little curious to hear grave statements that his attachment to free trade dispels all fear that Mr. BALDWIN, despite his sharp experience with it, may again monkey with protectionism. Mr. CHURCHILL seems to preserve an open mind on most subjects, and majorities are a final argument with him. Moreover, the scheme of Imperial Preference to which the Government is committed is a very delicate and dangerous one, both at home and in the Dominions; and, under the Safeguarding of Industries act, Mr. BALDWIN is free to tamper with the once sacred English principle.

So far there are only four peers in the Government, one less than in the Labor Cabinet. It was said of one of Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S Governments that it consisted of his fathers-in-law, brothers-in-law and cousins. The Whigs were all strong on the peerage and Mr. GLADSTONE inherited their tradition. The twilight of the House of Lords gathers about its Conservative leader, the first Marquess CURZON. He has to be content with the wax-figure place of Lord President of the Council. Theoretically, it isn't convenient to have the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the Lords. Practically, the party and the country couldn't stand any more of the Curzonian meddling, muddling, lecturing, blundering. The initiation of the Dawes plan should diminish international frictions, but of Lord CURZON might almost be said what "the Rupert of debate" said of Lord JOHN RUSSELL: "Nihil tetigit quod non perturbavit"—he touched nothing without making a mess of it. AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN inspires confidence by his ability, mainly exercised, it is true, in other fields, though he was Secretary of State for India a couple of years.

Doubtless many Frenchmen, and perhaps many Englishmen, would have preferred Lord DERBY; but the Commons is a better field for a Foreign Secretary; and CHAMBERLAIN with CHURCHILL assures a strong debating talent to the Conservatives. Does Mr. LLOYD GEORGE sadly repeat to his Welsh mountains the once blessed word "Coalition," as he sees CHAMBERLAIN, Lord BIRKENHEAD and Sir LAMING WORTHINGTON-EVANS in his lost paradise? The rebels have conquered and are forgiven. There are two of the dying Die-hards in the Cabinet. Let us hope that as Secretary of State for India Lord BIRKENHEAD will not attempt any "galloping." In the present circumstances of India that post calls for a tact and judgment not too strongly associated with his name. Lord CAVE, as Lord Chancellor, is a most admirable appointment. Many of his friends doubted his wisdom when he gave up the Home Secretaryship to become a Lord of Appeal in 1919. His course and his ambition have now been justified.

On account of the constructive policies in regard to agriculture, housing and education promised by the Conservatives, the Ministries dealing with them and the Ministry of Labor are of great, and may at any time turn out to be of vital, moment. NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, AUSTEN'S brother, who returns to the Ministry of Health, is peculiarly qualified for that place. There again is a first-class man. The Cabinet as a whole looks strong, even if it includes some mediocrities like ANTHONY TROLLOPE'S Harold Smith. For diversified brilliancy, however, it is scarcely equal to Mr. MACDONALD'S collection of "all the talents"—and some of the cranks.

GROUNDS FOR POLITICAL DIVORCE.

Neither the Socialists nor their "bourgeois" associates in the late La Follette movement are happy over the results of the trial marriage. On both sides serious doubts have been raised about the proposition that two can live on less than one. The non-Socialist partner in the combination has been the more disgruntled. Suggestions are made that the Socialist label on LA FOLLETTE cost him many more votes in the agricultural West than it brought him in the industrial centres. And the intimation is clear that if there is to be a Third Party of some kind it had better fend for itself.

From the Socialist side the case is more plaintively stated, except for VICTOR BERGER, who roundly accuses the Lafollettites of betrayal. The New Leader of this city, speaking for the Socialist Party, has raised the question whether a self-supporting party like the Socialist organization has anything to gain by marriage with a La Follette "movement" that has failed to make its contribution to the family exchequer and has aggravated matters by running around with strange persons. The Labor-La Follette endorsement went to Republican and Democratic candidates for Congress whom the Socialists have fought for a long time, with the result that the Socialist vote in the Congressional districts has been far from encouraging. In more than a dozen city Congressional districts where the Socialists made a fair showing two years ago their vote last Tuesday registered an actual loss of nearly 2,000 votes, if we except the gain of 3,500 in the Twentieth District, where the reason was neither LA FOLLETTE nor socialism, but LAGUARDIA. The New Leader complains that LA FOLLETTE in this city did best in the strong Socialist districts, but only at the expense of the minor Socialist candidates.

The popular vote for LA FOLLETTE, in the opinion of this Socialist organ, is a start for a Labor Party, but it must be a party and not a movement. It must have its candidates all the way down the list. "If it does not demand "and enforce absolute loyalty to the "ticket as a whole from every member "and organization within the new "party, then the work of the cam-"paign will have been wasted." The New Leader regards with horror Socialist membership in a Third Party which endorsed HEFLIN in Alabama and COLE BLEASE in South Carolina. It wants a Labor Party in which the Socialist organization shall function as a separate entity, receiving 100 per cent. support for all its candidates from all its allies.

The same doubts must be stirring in the ranks of the non-Socialist American Federation of Labor. The bird in the hand has been sacrificed for the phoenix in the bush. Mr. GOMPERS, who thinks little in terms of the Presidency and much in terms of Congress, sees in it a Coolidge majority of a good deal less than nothing superseded by a Coolidge majority of 60 or 70. It is not a very happy honeymoon.

SAVING THE MIDTOWN.

Many as are the incidental hardships upon individuals necessarily resulting from a policy of city zoning, there can be little doubt that some such system is essential if New York is to be saved from further haphazard and uneconomic growth. For this reason there is particular merit in the appeal of the Fifth and Park Avenue Associations and other similar organizations to place added restrictions on the use of buildings between Twenty-third and Fifty-ninth Streets and Park Avenue and Broadway. The special object is to check the upward movement of manufacturing districts and to preserve that area for residential and retail business purposes. The precise limits of the proposed restricted regions run as far west as Eighth Avenue between Thirtieth and Thirty-sixth Streets, and below Thirtieth Street are only as far east as Madison Avenue. In those districts within this area which are not today set aside exclusively as residential streets manufacturing is now permitted in 25 per cent. of the floor space. Under the new proposal this would be reduced to 10 per cent.

This Midtown region, as it has been called, is already the heart of the city. In it has grown up, north of the Grand Central, a city within a city such as has never before been seen. Here hundreds of thousands of persons work, and almost as many reside, and through this region daily pass millions. Owing to the fact that it is accessible from so many spots, and has already such a profusion of hotels, shops, theatres and homes, it is the natural centre of the active life of the city. Time was when Union Square marked this centre. But the gradual advance first of the warehouse and then of the manufacturing districts slowly forced the social and shopping world to move uptown. In order to prevent further encroachments it is planned to check this advance, and in some cases even to force a retreat, so that the Midtown region may develop unhampered.

The plan is worthy of especial consideration in connection with the traffic problem. Whoever has tried to reach the Pennsylvania Station from Fifth Avenue during the daytime by taking any but Thirty-fourth Street has been struck with the amazing congestion that is to be found there. Carts and trucks stand for hours blocking all passage, with the result that to get through is almost impossible. Aside from the inconvenience to passers-by, there is no little danger in case of fire, as these streets often are so crowded that the engines would be slow in reaching their destination.

No matter how much New York may spread as it grows, it is certain to make more and more demands upon this Midtown section. Owing to the presence within its bounds of two great railroad terminals and the passage through it of all the various subways, it has become the most frequented section of the city. To permit this region to be even in part displaced by manufactures would obviously be uneconomic.

A NEW TOWER OF BABEL.

The old Tower of Babel was not completed because of the confusion of tongues which came upon the builders who had set out to erect a city and a tower that would reach unto heaven and "make a name" for them. But the University of Pittsburgh is now planning to bring together the major tongues that have developed since the dispersion from Babel, and all the sciences and arts of the age of steel, into a common undertaking in one skyscraping structure that will reach higher than the Tower of Babel would have reached if it had been finished. This proposed architectural leap from the low, ivy-mantled walls of older seats of learning is not so startling as MUSSOLINI'S reported plan to overtop with a cloud-capped tower the dome of St. Peter's and the ruined temples sung in the lays of ancient Rome, for Pittsburgh's smoke hides no such cherished monuments. It is only in such a structure, perhaps, that she can rise above it.

While more or less practical reasons are given for abandoning the cloistral architecture which, according to the news of the same morning, is to enclose the Harvard Yard—such reasons as the saving of precious space in a congested city, the economizing in heat and upkeep, the securing of better light, ventilation, &c.—the real reasons are not those of economy, convenience or unification of knowledge. They are to be found in the advertisement of the civic enterprise of Pittsburgh, the capital of steel, glass and machinery, and the illustration of the spirit of courage, of daring, of speed, of action and of honor of that virile community—a spirit which, it is hinted in the announcement, is as yet to a large extent unrevealed to the world outside.

This structure, which is to be "the "greatest ever erected by any commu-"nity to tell its own living will," will enable the world to comprehend the individuality which is indigenous to Pittsburgh. That it will rise one story above the Woolworth Tower and two stories above the Metropolitan Tower is, of course, not purposeful. It is "not for the sake of being high" that it is carried up. It is only for the power of inspiration and the "sublimity" which great height gives and the proportions demand. All the towers since Babel, still standing, will, like the sheaves in JOSEPH'S dream, make obeisance to this tower, o'ertopping all others not only in its elevation but also in its revelation of Pittsburgh's lofty purposes.

"THE MIRACLE" DEPARTS.

Tonight the Reinhardt-Gest production of "The Miracle" will have its two hundred and ninety-eighth and last performance here. The figure is impressive, even in this day and city of long runs. So also is Mr. GEST'S financial summary. The original outlay he reports as $600,000. The box office took in $2,000,000, upon which a war tax was paid of $200,000. As to profits Mr. GEST is silent. It is generally believed that the cost of converting the Century Theatre into a cathedral, together with a salary list of some 700 people, ate up current receipts. A management less bold and lavish might have been more successful financially, but a management less bold would not have been inspired to produce "The Miracle" and a management less lavish could scarcely have done it so well.

Even though the deficit were considerable, there would be occasion to remark once again the eminence of New York as a producing centre. Anything on a high plane succeeds if only it is done right. And in all essentials "The Miracle" did succeed. It introduced the unique and spectacular genius of MAX REINHARDT to the American public, and it enabled one of the foremost of American scenic artists, NORMAN-BEL GEDDES, to give free rein to his talent. Its three hundred performances outnumber all those it received in seventeen European capitals and exceed the longest single run, that in London, four times over. If Mr. OTTO KAHN thinks that something is still lacking to a complete triumph, it may be found in the fact that the enterprise so appealed to his imagination and his public spirit that he promoted and backed it.

Three days before Christmas "The Miracle" will open at Cleveland in the Public Auditorium, which meanwhile will be transformed as the Century was into a medieval cathedral. There, let us hope, it will also succeed. It is not unlikely to do so, for its reputation as a noble achievement of scenic imagination has preceded it in mighty waves, and in such cases "the readiness is all." If the three hundred audiences at the Century had focused themselves upon two hundred performances, the result must have been a profit as notable as deserved.

TRANSPORTATION WASTE.

The Intermediate Rate Association of ten Western States opens a campaign against the Interstate Commerce Commission's administration of the long and short haul clause. It prefers the Gooding bill, which has passed the Senate and will be taken up by the House when it reassembles. If this should be enacted, the Interstate Commission would lose its discretion. It is all right for the canal route to take away business on terms approved by the Interstate Commission, but it is wrong for the railways to take a part of the canal business in the same way. The West appeals in the East on the ground that the East is losing trade in the West because of violations of the long and short haul clause.

Doubtless there is something odd in allowing Chicago to compete with New York in the Far West, although Chicago's Panama route to the West begins with a 1,000-mile haul to the East. In the reverse direction there is a similar inconsistency. Along the Pacific Coast there is an inland fringe which gains access to Eastern markets by a route longer than the distance between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Thus the East, which is subsidized in access to Western markets, is penalized by the subsidy to the West in the Eastern markets. In between there is indignation that the shorter haul costs more than the longer.

The situation is uneconomic because the canal does not yet pay for itself by its earnings, and the railways, in order to get any transcontinental business, must quote rates lower than otherwise would be reasonable. The railways would no doubt be willing to raise their rates if the canal route rates were regulated in their entirety. Cut-throat rates via the canal benefit only the unregulated shipowners. The case demands careful treatment, and the Interstate Commission is best fitted to deal with it. The long and short haul problem is not so simple as the lawmakers thought it when they dealt with it in an offhand manner a generation ago, just as the Gooding bill would deal with it now.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Secret Still Well Kept.

If one knew more about the result of practical tests made of HERR FLETTNER'S "rotorship" in the harbor at Kiel, there would be less risk in commenting on the large claims made by him for his invention. If his two towers with cylinders in them revolved by the wind really do move his ship as fast as he says, that settles the merit of his device, removing it from the domain of opinion into that of fact. He is curiously secretive, however, in regard to how his cylinders are moved, and there is nothing in what as yet has been revealed to give even the beginning of comprehensibility. On their face his pretensions seem more than a little absurd.

From the information given out, he can get from his towers and whatever may be in them no more power than the wind pushing against sail area equaling theirs, and not all of that power would be available for moving the ship, as there would be inevitable losses in changing its direction and transmitting it to a propeller or side wheel. One can faintly glimpse that the "rotorship," taking the wind from any direction, could get the same power, no matter in what direction it was itself headed, and so gain a certain advantage over sailing ships in the matter of sticking to a selected course. This advantage, it seems, would be but slight—far from enough to warrant the return to a source of energy which almost has been abandoned on all of the world's seas.

HERR FLETTNER confesses to using a small motor to start the revolution of his cylinders. Why is that necessary? If the wind can keep them going against the resistance of the water to the swift movement of his ship, why cannot it do the starting of them? To say the least, the answers to these questions are not obvious, but, of course, that does not mean that they are unanswerable. In this age it is dangerous to deny any possibility of human achievement, and for the present the proper attitude to take in regard to this invention is that of "wait and see."

Commendable in Every Way.

Warm appreciation, and appreciation, too, that takes the form of helpfulness, is deserved by the effort which The Herald Tribune is making, in cooperation with the American Foundation for the Blind and the American Radio Association, to raise money with which to buy receiving sets for those of the country's blind folk who are not able to buy these marvelous instruments for themselves.

It needs hardly a moment of reflection to bring realization of the fact that nothing except the restoration of lost vision could go further to make life happier for the blind, or at least more easily tolerable, than would such a gift. It would bring the prisoners of darkness into something like direct touch with many and diverse activities and interests from which their misfortune has excluded them. As listeners-in they could get from the radio all of the amusement, entertainment and instruction that people with eyes can gain, and how much that is the sudden and enormous popularity of this device among all classes sufficiently shows. Unquestionably the most wonderful, and possibly to become in time among the most important products of human ingenuity, all of its benefits and joys can be secured by the blind quite as well as by anybody else. With their highly developed tactual sense and capacities they easily can learn to "tune in" without help, and so many an otherwise empty and lonely hour will pass swiftly for them.

The money collected by The Herald Tribune and the associated newspapers and organizations will all be spent for radio sets, and for exactly those sets which a committee of experts shall decide are best fitted for use by the blind. The incidental costs of the "drive" will be met from other and private sources, and there is to be a full acknowledgment of and accounting for all the gifts made for this worthy purpose. The Herald Tribune is to be congratulated and even envied for the leadership it has taken in the movement. Checks or money may be sent to The Herald Tribune, 225 West Fortieth Street, marked "Radio Fund for the Blind."

A Good Law in Need of Revision.

All that the Secretary of Labor, JAMES J. DAVIS, had to say about immigration in the speech "put on the air" by him Thursday evening showed careful, intelligent attention to the duties of his office relevant to that subject. Once an immigrant himself, and for years going through the hard experiences which so many immigrants have after their arrival in this country, he sympathizes with them, as well as understands them.

The present restrictions on immigration have his approval in principle, and the law, on the whole, he thinks, is working well, but he sees in it faults that need remedying. A means of avoiding the cruelty involved in the separation of families and close relatives should be found, and he criticized the exemption from the quota requirements now enjoyed by British North America, Mexico, the Central and South American countries, and the West Indies. That exemption, he declared, made easy the smuggling in of undesirables from the quota nations, for it opened wide a back door while closing the front entrance.

Mr. DAVIS expressed himself as especially desirous that more should be done for the admitted immigrant in the way of teaching him English and so hastening his assimilation. Life in "colonies" delays Americanism more than anything else, and he said that he knew personally of many cases where to the third generation the people living exclusively in association with those of the same foreign origin remained as alien as were their ancestors.

The formation of "colonies" by the newly arrived immigrants is perfectly comprehensible and therefore pardonable, but it is harmful alike to them and to the country as a whole, and all successful efforts to mitigate the evil are to be commended.

Democracy and the Expert.

"The weakest point in democracy," according to Professor PUPIN of Columbia, "always has been its inappreciation of expert knowledge," and it is this, in his opinion, that makes most undesirable the taking over by the Government of the great public utilities as owner or operator. "It is not true," he added, "that any man can do any job, as those who control political patronage seem to think," and he went on, severely humorous, "There are many, many things which Tom, Dick and Harry and HYLAN cannot do; they lack both intelligence and training."

Professor PUPIN credited modern industry with the appreciation of experts and a realization of scientific possibilities which no democratic government is likely soon to possess, but conditions in this respect in the public service are not now so bad as formerly, and there even are Mayors who do not share the whole of our own Mayor's distrust of expert advice.

Leonardo's Traffic Plan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In relation to the traffic problem of our cities, perhaps your readers may find interesting and suggestive the following extract from an article by Don Gelasio Caetani in the November issue of The Scientific Monthly, entitled "The Myriad-Minded Leonardo da Vinci, Forerunner of Modern Science":

"Leonardo's plan * * * provides that:

"'The model cities will be served by two kinds of streets; highways elevated or on a slope, elegantly ornamented and perfectly clean, and lower or subterranean roadways, washed from time to time with limpid water from the watercourse, and from which the refuse will be removed with rakes.

"'In such a way that whoever wishes to travel by the elevated highway may do so at will; and also whoever wanted to go by the lower route will be free to do so. Vehicles (motor cars) will never make use of the upper highway, reserved for gentlemen; while in the lower street the wagons and beasts of burden for work and for the supplies of the people will circulate.'"

FALL GARDENS.

I like the time of year
When bulbs are planted.
The garden, shorn of bloom
The year has granted,
Is cleared of fallen leaves,
I smell them burning,
Dust to the dust and flower
To root returning.

There is stillness that comes
When Summer's over.
The plundering gold bee sleeps
And dreams of clover,
And birds have made long flights
On pointed wings,
And gardens know the peace
The black frost brings.

Then brown earth is turned
And bulbs are planted,
Ivory balls the sun
Has covenanted,
Saying that there shall be
On an Easter morning
Tulip and hyacinth
For Spring's adorning.

Here is a riddle for you.
Where do they find
Color and form and scent,
Rose petal lined
With amber and mauve and white?
How do they know
The mystical moment when
To overflow?

Wise men have thought and died,
Merchants paid and sold,
But no one has ever dreamed
Or bought with a bag of gold
Secret of sod and seed.
This ball I hold in my hand
Is more than the oldest man
Can understand.

THE TRIUMPH OF COOLIDGE

What the Democrats Might Have Done and May Do in 1928 Are Discussed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The expected has happened. John W. Davis, decidedly the best qualified of the three aspirants to the Presidency, has been badly defeated by Calvin Coolidge, notwithstanding his many advantages in point of statesmanship and mental ability.

The result of the election shows that Davis was and is not a vote-getter; it further demonstrates that Mr. Davis is not a good politician. His selecting Governor Bryan of Nebraska as his running mate was the poorest piece of political strategy imaginable. It drove thousands of Democrats all over the country into voting for Coolidge, who would otherwise have voted for him. Even in the rock-bound Democratic Southern States the nomination of Bryan for Vice President alienated thousands of Democrats.

In this day of radical fanaticism and disregard of human life and with the fact that if Davis had been elected President and Bryan Vice President, the bullet of a crazy Bolshevik would be the only thing that stood between Charles Bryan and the Presidency, thousands of Democrats were not willing to risk this. Hence the landslide to Coolidge.

But I believe in common with many other Democrats that the responsibility for the Democratic defeat rests upon the Southern delegations to the National Democratic Convention. Just as in 1860 the extreme State rights Democrats from the South at the Baltimore convention split the party and made the election of Lincoln possible, so in 1924 the wretched Ku Klux controlled delegates from the South, in defeating Governor Smith for the nomination, made certain the election of Coolidge.

As a vote-getter Mr. Davis was an unknown quantity, while Governor Smith was a positive asset. He has again demonstrated this by being re-elected Governor of New York in the face of an adverse majority for Coolidge of nearly one million votes.

To sum up, the following are in my mind the causes of the Democratic defeat:

1. The reaction against the excessive demands of the labor unions and the astounding assumptions of the radical elements.

2. A revolt by thousands of Democrats in the East and West against the truculent spirit displayed by the Southern delegates to the National Convention.

3. The utter failure of the Teapot Dome investigation as a political factor in the aid of Democracy.

4. The determination of the American people to destroy the radicalism which has become rampant.

The writer is an ex-Confederate soldier and a Democrat and voted for Davis, but I predicted the result immediately after the nomination of Mr. Davis.

Fortunately the radical boom did not materialize. La Follette and his motley gathering of extremists have been scotched if not killed.

Fortunately the Democratic Party survives and still shows a formidable front against the radical-conservative policy of the Republican Party, and there is hope for the Democracy in the future as the party of liberalism without radicalism and of conservatism without paternalism or radical conservatism.

And unless the Ku Klux's folly in the South continues to prevail, and perhaps even in spite of it, the now logical candidate of the Democratic Party for President in 1928 will be Alfred E. Smith of New York. And he will be elected if nominated.

Extols Davis's Ability.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At this time I desire to express my appreciation for the splendid support you accorded John W. Davis in his recent campaign for President. I also wish to express my appreciation for your editorial in today's paper wherein you make the statement that "no one who supported Mr. Davis has any reason for regretting it."

With the possible exception of Woodrow Wilson, I rather doubt that this generation has ever witnessed or shall ever witness such a specimen of man as is Mr. Davis. I feel that he has no living equal in our land or elsewhere today. It shall always be a happy thought in my mind to know that I had the privilege of voting for him and against his victorious opponent, who has been so complacent in the face of the worst corruption in the history of our nation.

It is my opinion that if we could have gotten together at the convention in New York and nominated Mr. Davis promptly, his victory would not only have been easy but decisive. It was the earnest wish of the South and West that Mr. McAdoo would obtain the nomination, and had the South and West been as close in their desire to elect the nominee of that convention, we would have won anyway. The very States that defeated the desires of the States that would have elected a Democratic President yesterday were overruled by the States of New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Indiana. So far as the help of any of these States is concerned, seldom has any one of them voted for a Democratic President, and yet they will not submit to the wishes of the South, which always votes for a Democratic administration, and in this instance, with the help of the West, would have elected a Democratic President yesterday had it not been for the situation that developed at the convention in New York.

With all the great ability of Governor Smith, whom I admire very much, due to his various stands on public questions, he is not available to the nation as its President, much to my regret. There is so much jealousy existent in our land that Mr. Smith would not fare any better than has Mr. Davis or than did Mr. Cox in 1920.

It is my earnest hope that there will spring up in our midst during the next three years a real honest, progressive leader with sufficient strength to carry on the fight. I rather doubt that Mr. Davis would be willing to offer again his great ability to an electorate.

HUGH F. DICKSON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That Governor Smith's re-election is a Republican landslide is heartening recognition of a fine record in office is an obvious conclusion; that it is the most remarkable phenomenon of a candidate's vote-getting strength in American politics is also evident.

But, from the viewpoint of future political realignment in the nation, it has an even deeper significance.

Calvin Coolidge has rendered the country a great service by standing for genuine conservatism, and by stamping his party now and for the future as such. He won partly because the liberal forces of the country were divided. The vote of La Follette and Wheeler has repeated the lesson of the Progressive Party of 1912.

We are a two-party country, and we cannot further liberalism effectively by dividing its strength.

Just as Coolidge is the leader of the conservative party, Alfred E. Smith is the leader around whom the progressives can rally.

Out of this election the leaders of the conservative and liberal parties have emerged—Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith.

Victory or Defeat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial opinion will be awaited with interest even as your advocacy for the principles represented by John W. Davis always warmed one's heart. However, may I ask, Has Coolidge won? and, Did Davis lose? Did not Coolidge win on what he did not stand for? And, Did not Davis lose because he stood for those things that are never settled by majorities but for which noble men are always destined to strive? Victor Hugo answers no to his question in "Les Miserables." Did Wellington win Waterloo? Let those of us of British origin argue against the claims of Blücher for national reasons, but we know Hugo was right: Wellington did not win Waterloo.

However, Wellington won by fighting; Coolidge won because he did not fight. Therefore Coolidge has lost, as sure as you live. It was not a nice phrase. I do believe in its sound, but it had a lot of soul in it when the Irishman who picked up the knocked-down chap, set him on his feet facing his assailant and said, "Now, if you have any guts in you, show it." Surely, every believer in noble battles would shout in Coolidge's ears those words on this day after the flood of ballots. Harding has gone out with this election. The Republican Party seems to have been forgiven for many sins in a modern age which does not believe in the old doctrine that repentance must precede forgiveness. Let it and our President now bring forth fruit worthy of repentance. Not alone America but a world is his opportunity.

DENIAL FROM MAYOR HYLAN.

Neither He Nor His Friends Engaged in Vote Trading for Smith, He Says.

CITY OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
Nov. 7, 1924.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The news article "Whispers of Vote Trading to Keep Smith in Albany and Out of Mayoralty Fight" is not only grossly unfair but absolutely false. Neither the Mayor nor any of his friends engaged at any time in such a nefarious practice, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, which THE NEW YORK TIMES broadcasts. To attempt to create antagonism toward the Mayor through giving currency to what is acknowledged to be petty gossip and then drawing far-fetched conclusions therefrom is not a broad-minded attitude for THE NEW YORK TIMES to assume. I am sure that your newspaper would not care to be charged with deliberately creating dissension among the people of this city or of suggesting the adoption of reprisal tactics by those who might be misled into a belief that vote trading had been indulged in.

The Mayoralty fight is open to all, but I personally shall try to close it to the friends of the traction and public utility corporations which have been exploiting the people of this city. Those corporations are mapping out a campaign of calumny in the hope of ultimately capturing the city a year hence, so that the people may be forced to accept worthless traction properties at the valuation of hundreds of millions of dollars, placed upon such properties by the State Transit Commission, and be compelled to pay from sixty to a hundred million dollars a year in increased carfares. Some public officials, whose salaries are paid out of the public treasuries, are lending themselves to this campaign and going about the city scandalising and libeling with a recklessness that might be amusing were it not that such utterances of traction mouthpieces are suggestive of an absolute lack of control of senses as well as temper.

One of the reasons Governor Smith received such a large vote in New York City was because of the false statements which his Republican opponent made about the transit situation and the public schools of this city. Even so arch an enemy of the City Administration as The Brooklyn Daily Eagle acknowledged that these attacks by Candidate Roosevelt were bad policy, and in this instance at least the judgment of that newspaper was correct.

The people know too well what the actual transit conditions are in this city. The election of Democratic Assemblymen and Senators throughout the city to support Governor Smith is the best indication that the people know where their security lies and where the hope of accomplishing relief rests. They would not be misled by misrepresentation. There is a lesson in that for THE NEW YORK TIMES. When it scatters seeds of suspicion and distrust which are expected to reap a whirlwind against the Mayor and his Administration they are scattering seeds which are doomed to die aborning.

Very truly yours,

JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

The Discovery of Aluminum.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to correct the statement appearing in your paper as follows: "Charles M. Hall, who discovered the process of reducing aluminum thirty-six years ago." Alfred H. Cowles (now of Sewaren, N. J.) invented the electric furnace by which aluminum, carborundum, calcium carbide and all high heat products are produced, and with this electric furnace Mr. Cowles produced aluminum several years before Mr. Hall ever claimed to have produced it, and when Mr. Hall was an employe of the Cowles Electric Smelting and Aluminum Company at Lockport, N. Y., from July, 1887, to July, 1888, Mr. Cowles showed Mr. Hall how to produce aluminum, but not in all of that time and never before, did Mr. Hall ever produce an ounce of aluminum.

In 1888 Mr. Hall quit the employment of the Cowles Electric Smelting and Aluminum Company and organized the Pittsburgh Reduction Company, which was later changed to The Aluminum Company of America. Thereupon the Cowles Company brought suit against Hall's companies for infringement of the Cowles patent. At the trial of the case in United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New York City the Cowles Company was victorious, the opinion of

G. W. PLUNKITT ILL; FAMOUS POLITICIAN

ONCE HAD 4 PUBLIC JOBS

Now in His 82d Year and His Doctor Holds Little Hope for His Recovery.

George Washington Plunkitt, former State Senator and one-time Tammany leader of the Fifteenth District, is critically ill at his home, 523 West Fifty-first Street. Since last Thursday the 81-year-old exponent of "honest graft" in politics has been in a state of coma. His attending physician, Dr. Thomas Conlan, ascribes his condition to a general physical breakdown and says there is little hope for recovery.

Up to last March Mr. Plunkitt, in spite of his age, made daily visits to the Court House, where he was accustomed to spend several hours at the shoe polishing stand once occupied by Mike Grassano. In the old days this stand served as headquarters for Leader Plunkitt of the Fifteenth Ward.

Although illness prevented his attending the Democratic National Convention last June, Mr. Plunkitt, an ardent supporter of Governor Smith, followed the proceedings of the convention with the keenest interest. His failure to nominate Governor Smith he attributed to the death of Charles F. Murphy.

Mr. Plunkitt has been a picturesque figure in city politics since 1866, when he first became a candidate for the Assembly. He served at various times as Alderman, Superintendent of Street Cleaning, Deputy Police Commissioner and Magistrate. It was his boast that he was the only man in New York who ever held four political offices and drew three salaries. He was at one time Assemblyman, Alderman, a member of the Board of Supervisors and a Police Magistrate.

As opponent of The McManus, Tammany leader of Hell's Kitchen, Mr. Plunkitt won considerable fame, but his declaration for "honest graft" in 1903 won him seven wider notices.

"Everybody," he said then, "is talking these days about Tammany men growin' rich on graft, but nobody thinks of drawing the distinction between honest graft—blackmailers, gamblers, saloonkeepers, &c.— and neither has any of the men who have made big fortunes in politics.

"There's an honest graft and I'm an example of how it works. I might sum up the whole thing by saying, 'I seen my opportunities and I took 'em.'"

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Lowell Lloyd of Boston was married today to the Earl of Berkeley in the St. George's district registry office in the presence of only a few intimate friends. There was no reception after the ceremony and the couple left immediately for their honeymoon on the continent.

The engagement of Mrs. Lloyd and the Earl of Berkeley was announced from London on Oct. 21. Mrs. Lloyd was Miss Mary E. Lowell, daughter of Mrs. John Lowell of Boston and Chestnut Hill, Mass. Her first husband was Francis V. Lloyd, a member of a prominent Philadelphia family, from whom she obtained a divorce in Paris three years ago. She has spent most of the past two years in Europe. Her only son, Francis V. Lloyd Jr., is at St. George's School, Newport, R. I. Mrs. Lloyd's father, the late John Lowell, was for many years a Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Randal Thomas Mowbry Rawdon Berkeley, who is the eighth Earl of Berkeley, was born on Jan. 31, 1865. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father in 1888. In 1887 he was married to Mrs. Kate Brand Jackson, who died in 1898. His home is Berkeley Castle, Gloucestershire, England. He is well known in the hunting world as master of the Berkeley Hunt.

FABRY GETS OSIRIS PRIZE.

French Scientist Is Honored for His Interferometer—Post Gets Award.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Thanks to the judicious investment of capital the committee charged with proposing to the French Institute a candidate for the triennial Osiris prize, given for the most remarkable discovery or work in science, literature, art or industry, has found 275,000 francs available instead of the stipulated 100,000.

Consequently it is proposed to give two prizes of 100,000 francs each, the recipients to be Professor Charles Fabry, eminent physicist, of Paris University, and Jean Richepin, the poet.

The prize will be given to Professor Fabry for his invention of the interferometer, which enables light interference to be used for the study of the stars.

The award is usually awarded for a specific achievement, but since no special reasons are mentioned in the attribution to M. Richepin, it is accepted that in this case the award is a recognition of his position in the literary world. It is the first time the prize has gone to a poet.

ENGINE CREW NEAR DEATH.

Both Escape With Bruises When Locomotive Plunges Down Bank.

A fireman and an engineer narrowly escaped death yesterday when their locomotive fell from an open end of a siding track of the Lackawanna Railroad at Orange, N. J., and plunged over a twenty-foot embankment. Although the engine was smashed to pieces the two men suffered only slight bruises.

James Maddock of 81 Jefferson Avenue, Jersey City, the engineer, said that as the engine approached the end of the siding the brakes would not hold. The locomotive and tender continued to the end of the siding, overturning on Central Avenue.

The fireman, Frank Fink, of 138 Boorean Avenue, Jersey City, was imprisoned in the cab but was soon rescued by Charles Foster, a watchman of the Perine Trucking Company, who heard the crash. Both victims were treated at the Orange Memorial Hospital, after which they went home.

His mother died in 1918 in her 101st year. For several years he had lived at 1,182 Madison Avenue.

Called "Skipper" on account of the many sea yarns he wrote for The World and Evening World, Mr. Simmons had spent half a century in newspaper work. He was a Southerner, born at Charleston, S. C., and in the Civil War served the Confederacy as water boy and became a favorite of Robert E. Lee. Before coming to New York he had been city editor of The Charleston News and Courier. He was on his way to his birthplace when the earthquake nearly razed the city and he sent an account of the disaster to The World. When Dr. E. P. Cohen, The World veteran, died six weeks ago, the Skipper announced "I'm next," and the next day died, ineffectually, to resign from the staff.

FINDS HOTEL KEY LEFT IN GREENLAND CACHE

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 7.—While returning from his fifth Arctic exploration, Peter Freuschen, a Danish scientist, found buried in the ice a stone cache left by another explorer years before.

The cache contained a number of letters which were unreadable owing to exposure and a brass door key with a metal tag attached bearing the name of a Copenhagen hotel. Freuschen took the key.

When he reached Copenhagen he inquired at the hotel in question about the key. An old hotel register disclosed that before the World War the room to which the key belonged had been occupied by an American explorer named Swift, who had stopped in Copenhagen for a week before starting for the Arctic and had not been heard from afterward.

This week Swift returned to Copenhagen bound on his second Arctic expedition and asked to have the room he had occupied fifteen years ago. The key he had left in the cache in Greenland was handed to him.

SALACIOUS PICTURES SCORED BY MOTHERS

URGE RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

Pastor Defends "Dime Novels," Saying That He Graduated From Them to the Classics.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 7.—The filming of "salacious books" was denounced in a resolution passed here by the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent Teachers Association at the closing session of its twenty-fourth annual convention today.

The association also urged the giving of religious instruction in public schools and recommended that delinquent girls under 18 be sent to correctional instead of penal institutions.

The resolution relative to moving pictures states that even when the film versions are clean, "the harm comes from sending boys and girls back from the theatre to read these books." Parents are asked to discourage children from attending moving picture shows on school nights.

"There is a definite desire for week-day religious instruction," this resolution declares, "and we urge the State Board of Education to cooperate with the churches to offer such an opportunity to the school children of the State."

The effort during the past year to have the State Legislature debar certain text and reference books on history from the public schools was attacked by the association in another resolution. "The sponsors of this movement," the resolution reads, "have sought to make certain history textbooks seem unpatriotic by distorting of their wording and meaning. This impugns the judgment and patriotism of our school officials and teachers. We are opposed to any movement which seeks to remove the choice of textbooks from the hands of school teachers and officials."

Prohibition Law Upheld.

Although not specifically named, the prohibition law was upheld in a resolution which states that "law observance and intellectual acceptance of the principles of same are the only guarantees of sobriety and temperance in the home." The resolution concludes by assuring the President of the United States support "in his efforts to enforce observance of all laws."

Other resolutions denounce school hazing, endorse legislation providing kindergarten classes in the schools mandatory upon petition, oppose legislation which tends to lower educational standards, and support the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting child labor.

The teaching of religion in the public schools was urged in an address by the Rev. Dr. Henry R. Rose, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, Newark. He pointed to Leopold and Loeb, boy murderers, as products of a non-religious training.

"It is frightfully wrong not to give the child the Bible and religion in the public schools," said Dr. Rose. "Better have sectarianism in the schools than no little religion. The child will outgrow sectarianism, but he will never outgrow religion."

Dr. Rose defended "dime novels," saying he had "graduated from these books to the classics," and that they had "stimulated the imagination of some of the most splendid minds in America."

Would Americanize Aliens.

That a nation-wide citizenship campaign among foreign-born parents and families will be conducted by the national and State bodies was declared by Mrs. A. W. Patterson of Roselle, N. J., Chairman of the Citizenship Committee of the Jersey branch. The Americanization work is already under way in New Jersey, she said, committees being active in every section of the State. The work consists not only of teaching English and the principles of government, but of bringing foreign families into social contact with American homes.

Mrs. Louis T. Devalliere of Trenton was elected President of the association for the next two years. Other officers chosen, all for the two-year term, were: Mrs. Drury W. Cooper, Montclair, Northern Vice President; Mrs. William F. Little, Rahway, Central Vice President; Mrs. Alfred Roberts of Moorestown, Southern Vice President; Mrs. A. W. Patterson of Roselle, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Henry M. Maxon, Plainfield, Corresponding Secretary, and Mrs. J. W. Strumer of Collingswood, Treasurer.

The trustees chosen for the next two years were: Northern district, Mrs. Frank H. Bair of Belvedere, and Mrs. Leo Totten of Dover; central district, Mrs. Cyrus J. Bissey of Rosemont, Mrs. Conrad Kuhlthau of Woodbridge and Mrs. Charles M. Dollider of North Plainfield; southern district, Mrs. Frank S. Herr of Moorestown.

The next convention will be held at Trenton, when the twenty-fifth anniversary of the association will be celebrated.

MORE LAWS SOUGHT TO PROTECT GAME

Legislatures Will Be Asked to Prohibit the Use of Automatic Guns.

Legislation for the protection of American wild game will be sought of thirty-nine State Legislatures this Winter by the Permanent Wild Life Protection Fund, Dr. W. T. Hornaday, a trustee of the organization, announced yesterday.

A limitation of the use of pump and automatic shotguns and a decrease of the bag limits in virtually all classes of game will be asked. Laws also will be sought limiting the open season for certain game to every other year rather than yearly.

Mr. Hornaday's statement was prompted by the recent publication of a dispatch from Mexico City in which it was asserted that gun batteries known as "armados," operated by Indian villages on shallow lakes, often resulted in the slaughter of 2,000 birds at a single discharge.

"These 'armados' have nothing on the automatic and pump shotguns that right now are in the hands of about 5,500,000 sportsmen and game-hogs in the United States," Mr. Hornaday said. "The American people should first look right at home at their own unsportsmanlike practices in game slaughter, and clean house in forty-six of the States of the United States before they begin to feel badly about Mexico."

Pennsylvania and New Jersey are the only two States in which the use of automatic shotguns is prohibited.

GOVERNOR'S SON PLEASED.

His Friend Since Boyhood, "Syl" Dineen, Elected to Assembly.

Alfred E. Smith Jr. said last night that his father's triumph at the polls was not the only cause he had for rejoicing over the result of Tuesday's election, which gave a victory also to Sylvester A. Dineen, Democratic candidate for Assembly from the Third Manhattan District.

Mr. Dineen won by the biggest majority ever rolled up in his district for an Assembly candidate and he attributed his success in large measure to the help he received from the son of Governor Smith, who took the stump for him while the fight was on. Mr. Dineen ran more than 12,000 votes ahead of his Republican opponent.

It is the first time Alfred E. Smith Jr. has taken active part in a campaign, and the reason for his coming out as a campaign speaker was the candidacy of Dineen, who has been his friend since childhood. At one meeting where "Young Al" spoke 2,000 people listened to his oratory, quite an unusually large audience for an Assembly district fight.

BROWNE LOSES RENT FIGHT.

ourt Refuses to Let Him Inspect Housing Committee's Records.

The Appellate Division denied yesterday the application of Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, for an order permitting him as a taxpayer to inspect the records of the State Committee on Housing and Regional Planning, upon which the committee based its report that there is still a housing shortage and that the emergency rent laws should be continued for that reason. Mr. Browne contended that the records of his association and of various New York City departments show that the housing emergency has ended. He alleged that the State Committee based its report on records of only 2,000 apartments in the most congested part of the city out of a total of more than 1,000,000.

Clarence M. Lewis, counsel for the State Committee, opposed the application on the ground that the information sought was obtained from tenants under an agreement that it would be kept confidential, and stated that if it were made public these tenants might be annoyed by their landlords, and the future work of the commission will be impeded.

PASTORS ASSIST RED CROSS

Ask All Churches in the City to Cooperate in Roll-Call.

Tomorrow will be Red Cross Day in the churches of this city.

Cardinal Hayes has assured the Red Cross of his "warm personal interest" in the membership effort and will send a personally signed letter to the pastor of every church in the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, urging that the individual churches permit the entrance of Red Cross workers tomorrow.

A joint letter from nine religious leaders will carry the roll-call appeal to the ministers of every Protestant Church and every synagogue in Manhattan.

The letter is signed by Bishop William T. Manning for the Episcopal communion, the Rev. Dr. Walter D. Buchanan, Presbyterian; the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman and the Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Hartsock, Methodists; the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, Congregationalist; the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, Baptist; Rabbi Joseph Silverman, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Rabbi Nathan Stern.

$58,000 VERDICT REVERSED.

New Trial Ordered in Attorney's Suit Against Halliburton Estate.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn reversed a verdict of $58,000 and ordered a new trial yesterday of a suit brought by Francis Dean, an attorney, of 240 Waverly Place, Manhattan, for losses on investments alleged to have been due to advice of William S. Halliburton, a former Wall Street broker. Before the trial the broker had been legally declared an incompetent, and his wife, Mrs. Emily Halliburton, who had been appointed administratrix of his property, was made defendant in the action.

During the trial Mrs. Halliburton and her daughter, Florence, received a telegram from Asheville, N. C., where Mr. Halliburton was under medical care, announcing that his death was imminent. They asked Supreme Court Justice Dike to adjourn the trial until their return from Asheville, which he refused to do. The higher court held this refusal to be an error, as the woman had a right to go to the deathbed of her husband. Halliburton died four days after the trial ended here.

It's Rather Hard to Get a Lamp to Begin to Burn

It takes gentleness and patience until the whole wick is kindled with light to keep it from going out.

Surely, we should take even more time and pains in our homes, with little children and others who work with us, who are seeking to be lighted up when they come with questions and want to know something.

Do not "blow out" the little flame that needs to be encouraged.

SPECIALIZED SERVICE—STREET FLOOR—NEW BUILDING

HULBERT UNMOVED BY CRAIG'S PAY BAN

TEST IN COURTS LIKELY

Reports That He May Get Supreme Court Place Are Circulated by His Friends.

RELIEF SEEN IN LEGISLATION

Move to Make It Possible for City Officials to Hold Honorary State Job Is Considered.

Murray Hulbert, who, Controller Craig contends, forfeited his job as President of the Board of Aldermen by his acceptance of membership in the Finger Lakes State Park Commission, appeared at the City Hall yesterday smiling and seemingly unperturbed, having returned from Philadelphia late Thursday night.

In the course of the day he held long conferences with George P. Nicholson, Corporation Counsel, and also with Mayor Hylan. It was not until late in the afternoon that he consented to receive newspaper reporters in his office. They plied him with questions, but all he would consent to say for publication was, "I have no statement to make now, but may have one later. I don't intend to drop important city matters in this office which demand my immediate attention in order to assure myself whether or not I am to be paid by the city for my work." And he pointed to his desk covered with official papers awaiting his attention.

However, it was learned from other sources that it had been virtually determined to make a legal test of the validity of Controller Craig's contention, resting the issue upon the interpretation of Section 1549 of the city charter. It would be argued, it was said, that membership in the Finger Lakes State Park Commission was a local and not a State-wide office, in the sense that it was the intent of the charter to inhibit, especially as it was an honorary post, carrying with it no salary.

On the other hand it was pointed out that the charter inhibition was against the holding of "any other civil office of honor, trust or emolument," and that the City Administration would find it difficult to persuade any court that membership in the State Commission named did not involve an office of both honor and trust, though not of emolument.

Hulbert Knew of the Law.

It was learned further that Mr. Hulbert, as a lawyer, was not unaware of the prohibitory section of the charter which Controller Craig quotes. When Mr. Hulbert was Commissioner of Docks, before his election as President of the Board of Aldermen, he became a member of three similar State commissions. In each instance, however, before accepting such membership, he took the precaution to have incorporated in the State legislation constituting the commission a clause providing that such acceptance on his part would not vitiate nor prejudice his incumbency of the city position then held by him.

It was his desire, his friends said yesterday, to include a like protective clause inserted in the legislation constituting the Finger Lakes State Park Commission before taking the oath as a member thereof. The Chairman of that commission, it was said, is known to have assured Mr. Hulbert, on the alleged authority of the Attorney General of the State, that his membership "would be all right." It was further said that at the time it was important that the commission should be completed and should begin functioning at the earliest possible moment, as there was a grant of land pending for the State Park, acquisition of which might otherwise be jeopardized by delay. When Governor Smith appointed Mr. Hulbert as a member of the State Commission, it was said, this urgency was argued as a reason against delaying the latter by amending the legislation in order specifically to protect the position of the President of Board of Aldermen.

To the contention that membership in the Finger Lakes Park Commission was a local and not a State-wide office, lawyers who support the validity of Controller Craig's contention replied that the Finger Lakes were located in what is known as several counties in the State. They declared also that if it had been the intention of the charter framers to exempt from the imposed inhibition an office of this character, the language of the charter would have made such exception clear as it does make clear in specific language the exemption of "the office of notary public or commissioner of deeds, or officer of the National Guard."

Attends Board Meeting.

Mr. Hulbert arrived at his office in the City Hall at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. As he went upstairs later to attend the regular meeting of the Board of Estimate, Controller Craig entered the building and the two approached the council chamber together. There was no greeting between them. Mr. Hulbert seated himself in his usual place at the immediate right of Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig sat in his customary chair on the left of the Mayor. Mr. Hulbert was greeted by other members of the board with a "Good morning, President," which he smilingly acknowledged the salutation.

If any of the members of the Board of Estimate or of the 200 spectators in attendance expected a clash between the Controller and the object of his Thursday letter of excommunication, they were disappointed. The meeting proceeded in an unaccustomed calm. Not once was a voice raised in anger or petulance. Not once was there even a flash of the verbal fireworks that usually enliven these sessions. Neither before nor during the meeting did Controller Craig comment upon the presence of Mr. Hulbert, nor did he challenge the latter's right to vote. And Mr. Hulbert, on his part, ignored Mr. Craig and made no public mention of the Controller's action.

Immediately after his arrival at the City Hall, in reply to a volley of questions from reporters, Mr. Hulbert lightly declared that the whole thing was "probably buncombe" and that he probably would have a statement to make upon it later in the afternoon. After a conference with Corporation Counsel Nicholson and the Mayor, however, no statement was forthcoming other than that quoted above.

Solution May Be in Albany.

If it should be found that the Controller is right in his construction of the charter limitation, friends of Mr. Hulbert believe the solution of the problem will be found in Albany. It may be found there, they suggest, in either of two ways. There may be an emergency message from Governor Smith, who is personally friendly toward Mr. Hulbert, and the passage by each house of the Legislature, by a two-thirds vote, of an amendment to the city charter enabling Mr. Hulbert to retain his position as President of the Board of Aldermen despite his acceptance of the other post.

The alternative suggested by many who are friendly to Mr. Hulbert is that he accept Controller Craig's ukase and retire from the city administration, after a test of the legal merits of the case, and that Governor Smith thereupon name him to the State Supreme Court bench to fill the place made vacant last week by the death of Justice Thomas F. Donnelly. Some persons who are familiar with Mr. Hulbert's aspiration to become a Supreme Court Justice believe that he contemplates the present complication with more or less complacency, as it may open to him the path to a realization of his ambition.

Mr. Hulbert's attitude toward his own future was indicated when he returned recently from a Summer vacation in Europe. He let it be known that he did not aspire to a Mayoralty nomination, which some of his admirers were disposed to seek for him. He remarked that he preferred the quiet of the bench to the excitement of the City Hall. With the vacancy left by the death of Justice Donnelly, to be filled by Governor Smith, it is said on excellent authority that leaders in Tammany Hall have been considering Mr. Hulbert for the place. Justice Donnelly's term of office extended to Dec. 31, 1926. The salary of a Supreme Court Justice is $17,500 a year. That of the President of the Board of Aldermen is $15,000.

TREMAN PRAISES HULBERT.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The people of the Finger Lakes region will lose the services of a "most helpful and able man" if Murray Hulbert is compelled by Controller Craig's salary ruling to retire from the Finger Lakes Park Commission, said Robert H. Treman of Ithaca, President of that commission today.

"I hope that the trouble in New York City will not mean that we are to lose the services of Mr. Hulbert on our commission," said Mr. Treman. "He has taken great interest in the work. Being a native of Waterloo, he is thoroughly familiar with our situation.

"He is nationally prominent in park and recreation work, having been identified for many years with the Playground and Recreation Committee of the Russell Sage Foundation. He brings to our commission much good advice based on his wide experience.

"It seems needless to state that Mr. Hulbert has served on the Finger Lakes State Park's Commission without salary or compensation of any kind. He does so at considerable personal sacrifice and inconvenience. He has not missed a single meeting since we organized in April. If he should find it necessary to resign from our commission, the people of the Finger Lakes region would lose the services of a most helpful and able man."

WIDOW WITH 3 DOGS HOLD POLICE AT BAY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A gray-haired widow held a flat at 1,708 Prairie Avenue against twenty policemen and deputy bailiffs for more than an hour this afternoon by threatening to shoot the first man who stepped across the threshold to evict her. In the end the police outmaneuvered and arrested her.

Mrs. Mary P. O'Connor uses her flat as a home for old women. Sixty-five herself, she has a friendly feeling for those impoverished and past middle age.

"A month ago a man forged a check for $500 in my name," she said. "I couldn't pay the rent. But tomorrow I'll have $400 if they'll only let me alone."

Water, gas, light and telephone service had been cut off in the flat. Mrs. O'Connor and a bedridden woman 85 years old had been living in the lightless, heatless place for days.

Their landlady, Mrs. Catherine Haskell, obtained a writ of eviction today and a deputy bailiff was sent out to serve it. He was met at the door by a resolute woman with a revolver in her hand and three bulldogs at her skirts.

"One step," she told him, "and I'll shoot you."

The deputy fled to the street. There he found a 19-year-old volunteer, whom he induced to climb the porch. The youth was on the porch roof trying to open a window when the woman saw him. A moment later Mrs. O'Connor, with her pistol and three dogs, appeared in the window and the volunteer dived straight off the roof, landing on his face in the front yard. He wasn't killed, but all the fight was out of him.

The bailiff called for help. Extra bailiffs and a police squad came to his rescue. But Mrs. O'Connor gave them the same warning: step across the threshold and she would shoot.

For an hour she kept them standing on the sidewalk. Then Policeman Fred Rustan got in by a ruse, snatched the revolver away from her and carried her down to the patrol wagon. He had sent some of the police to make an apparent attack on the front door while he got into the place from the rear.

SAYS PONZI MADE $45.

Accountant Declares Boston Man Took In $9,582,591 From Investors.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Charles Ponzi took in $9,582,591 from investors in his quick-rich scheme, but instead of the 50 per cent. profits which he promised them, made himself a profit of only $45, according to entries in his books, Ralph L. Langdon, an accountant, testified today at the trial of Ponzi in the Superior Court on indictments charging him with larceny. Ponzi paid out in cash $9,137,450, he said.

A sum of $496,000 drawn against Ponzi's accounts could not be accounted for. There was no trace of any dealings in international postal reply coupons, as represented by Ponzi, and the only profit was on dividends on telephone stock, the accountant testified.

SAYS SILKWORTH SHIELDED RAYNOR

STOCK CLERK A WITNESS

Warned by Employer Not to Bring In His Friends as Customers, He Asserts.

The taking of testimony in the trial of William S. Silkworth, former President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, and several others charged with conspiracy and fraudulent use of the mails, was featured by a multitude of objections before Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand and a jury yesterday.

Serving notice of their intention to fight to the last word, the five attorneys for the co-defendants peppered Peter J. McCoy, Assistant United States District Attorney, with complaints. There were many moments when all five were up and talking at once, and the intervals when at least two of them were not objecting were rare.

In addition to Silkworth, those on trial are Louis Gilbough, floor member of the Consolidated; Blaine J. Nicholas and Earl H. Truesdell, members of the stock brokerage firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, which failed for several million dollars; John H. McQuade, Edward A. McQuade and Francis X. Quillan, members of McQuade Brothers & Quillan, another brokerage house that failed, and Peter Ovens, office manager of the Raynor firm. De Witt C. Raynor, senior member of the defunct house, pleaded guilty to the charge on Thursday, and, it is expected, will be a witness for the Government.

Immediately after the opening of Court About an hour was consumed in consultation between the attorneys for both sides and Judge Hand concerning the scope and admissibility of the evidence to be introduced. The disputed paragraph of the indictment, which the defense interpreted as in conflict with other parts of the document, was reread to the jury by the Court, and Thursday's ruling was repeated.

States Government's Case.

Opening his case, Mr. McCoy told the jury that the firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell was formed late in 1920 with a capital of $25,000 and after setting up offices at 42 Broadway embarked on a period of expansion which eventually left them with seventeen branches. He said that the Government expected to prove that the firm had enlisted the mails in a scheme to cheat investors. He said that the firm did its business on the New York Curb market through the McQuade firm, "and we shall show that the latter firm nullified orders of customers."

Up popped Phillip Samuel, counsel for Silkworth, with the first objection. He was reinforced by Colonel William J. Fitts for Nicholas. In turn Abel I. Smith, lawyer for Truesdell, and Jacob Mandelbaum, appearing for the McQuades and Quillan, added their protests that entry of evidence to support the qualifications of orders was barred by the Judge's ruling on Thursday construing the meaning of the much discussed indictment paragraph.

The Federal prosecutor replied that the Government would show to the jury's satisfaction that most of the transactions between the Raynor house and the firm of the McQuades were merely bookkeeping ones. Mr. McCoy, in telling this used the word "bucketing." Colonel Fitts objected to the introduction of that word, and went close to the Court stenographer to make certain that every word of his protest was taken down.

"The Government will show," continued Mr. McCoy, "that in 1922 the character of the business of this firm of Raynor came to the attention of the Ways and Means Committee of the Consolidated Stock Exchange and that the question of irregularity of trading was called to the committee's attention. We will show that every judge in writing and that the question of action against them was put up to Silkworth, then President.

Charge Against Silkworth.

"We will show that the defendant Silkworth had reason to believe that this firm was not in good standing, and we will show that he not only knew that they were guilty of irregular trading, but that he was a party to it.

"We will show that he received gratuities—if you want to call them that after you have heard the evidence—and not only that, but when customers wrote in asking how to get them established as Ways and Means committee, even two or three months before the failure, that the firm was in good standing.

Remarking that when the Raynor firm collapsed, its assets were $297,276 against liabilities of $1,800,000, Mr. McCoy called as the prosecution's first witness, George E. McKernon of 564 Eighth Street, Brooklyn, who was hired in January, 1923, as the Raynor stock record clerk. Part of his job, he testified, was to maintain a card index system giving data on the commissions paid by the firm on transactions.

He testified that the commissions paid to the McQuade firm were between $250 and $500 a week. He said that a consolidated seat was purchased for Quillan by the firm and that he was instructed to see that no commissions were paid to the McQuade firm until the cost of the seat, $6,000, was reimbursed.

McKernon testified that in ten months the commissions paid to Gilbough, then a member of the Consolidated Ways and Means Committee as well as a floor member, were about $1,000 a week. Pressed for exact figures paid out to Gilbough during that period he gave $56,000 as the figure. More objections came along at this point.

In February, 1922, said the witness, there developed some question about "Frederick" tendered by customer. This client was one of eighteen friends the witness induced to trade through the Raynor firm. McKernon said that Raynor advised him not to bring his friends in.

Defense counsel waived cross-examination of the witness. The blotters and other records of the bankrupt firm were placed in evidence during the testimony of Frank Crawford, William J. Stanton and William Daniels, former clerks for the Raynor firm. Considerable argument developed over the identification of entries and at one point Judge Hand left the bench to follow the entries in the big books spread out on a table. The attorneys for the defendants also waived cross-examination of these witnesses.

Shortly before the trial was adjourned until 10:30 A. M. on Monday, representatives of the prosecution said that the dispute about the wording of the indictment paragraph was due to an error in typing, which omitted two words.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—More than $1,000 worth every minute was the rate at which confectionery and ice cream were manufactured in 1923, Census Bureau statistics disclose. Confectionery valued at more than $1,000,000 a day and ice cream at more than $700,000 daily were reported by manufacturers. The total value of confectionery was $365,265,859, and ice cream and ices $238,666,575, computed on manufacturers' prices. Confectionery showed 18.2 per cent. gain over 1921, and ice cream, 21.3 per cent.

Woman Chops Down Her Tenant's Aerial; Court Finds No Precedent for a Ruling

Mrs. Grace W. Parks, owner of the apartment house at 28 Argyle Road, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Flatbush Court yesterday on a complaint by one of her tenants, Maurice B. Lieberman, who charged her with destroying his radio aerial, which he had erected on the roof of the house. Mrs. Parks, who was technically charged with disorderly conduct, had announced to Lieberman that she would remove any other aerial fixture he may put up on the roof of her property.

The question of the right of tenants to put up aerials against the wishes of landlords may carry this case to the higher courts for a final decision, as Magistrate O'Neill pronounced it a novel one and without precedent in legal practice. The Magistrate adjourned the hearing to Nov. 20.

Lieberman, who got a summons for Mrs. Parks, after he had consulted District Attorney Dodd, said there were thirty-seven radio aerials on the roof of Mrs. Parks's house, owned by other tenants, which she had left undisturbed when she chopped his down. Lieberman contended that a decision he got in a Municipal Court to prevent Mrs. Parks raising his rent may account for the fate of his aerial. Milton Herz, attorney for Mrs. Parks, said he had advised her to remove all the aerials of tenants.

BLUNDER BY NURSE KILLS YOUNG WOMAN

DEATH FOLLOWS QUICKLY

Charged with the death of a patient at the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane, Clarkson Street, near Utica Avenue, Brooklyn, Miss Catherine A. Hannan, 35 years old, a nurse at the institution, was arraigned late yesterday afternoon before Magistrate James T. O'Neill, in the Flatbush Police Court, on a technical charge of homicide. Miss Hannan sobbed as she was led before the Court and moaned, "It was a horrible mistake. Just a horrible mistake."

The complaint on which Miss Hannan was held was made in the form of a short affidavit by Detective William Cullen of the Snyder Avenue Station. It stated briefly that Miss Hannan had caused the death of Helen Klein, 32, of 1,098 East Ninety-second Street, Brooklyn, by administering a quantity of paraldehyde in mistake for Epsom salts.

The detective asked the Magistrate to adjourn the case until next Tuesday and stated that the District Attorney's office had agreed that bail in the sum of $1,000 would satisfy the ends of justice. The Magistrate consented to the adjournment, and bail was furnished by James Heffernan, a friend of Miss Hannan's family. Still sobbing and shielded from newspaper photographers, she was led from the courtroom.

Miss Hannan is a graduate of the training school of the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane, and had been engaged there for the last five years. She was on duty in Ward 5, which is known as the receiving ward, at 6 o'clock yesterday morning when, pursuant to instructions, she started to give Miss Klein and another patient, whose name was not made public, a dose of liquid Epsom salts.

Discovers Her Mistake.

She went to the medicine chest, where the Epsom salts are kept in a brown-colored glass bottle. Other bottles of a similar size and color kept in the same chest contain different drugs. All bear labels of a similar type. Miss Hannan selected one of the bottles and gave one dose to Miss Klein and the other to the other patient. Miss Klein swallowed the dose given to her, but the other patient took a sip and spat it out.

Shortly after, Miss Klein complained of feeling ill, and the nurse, looking in the medicine chest, discovered that the bottle containing the Epsom salts was in its place undisturbed and that the bottle she had taken out was the one containing paraldehyde. She rushed to Dr. C. W. Lupo, in charge of the ward, and told him of her error. Dr. Lupo called Dr. Isham G. Harris, in charge of the hospital, who in turn called other physicians of the hospital staff. Every possible aid was administered, but Miss Klein died about 8 o'clock. The other patient is said to be out of danger.

After the death of Miss Klein, Dr. Harris notified the police, and Detectives Cullen and McCarthy placed Miss Hannan under arrest. Assistant District Attorney Edward Wynne and Dr. John A. O'Reilly, medical adviser to the District Attorney's office, went to the hospital to make an investigation. Later Miss Hannan was taken to the District Attorney's office, where she was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Joseph V. Gallagher.

Sobbing and almost hysterical, Miss Hannan freely admitted to Mr. Gallagher that she had made a mistake in administering paraldehyde for Epsom salts. She told him that both bottles were of the same color and size. She said that she administered the drug to the other patient first, and then to Miss Klein.

While returning from Miss Klein's bed with the bottle still in her hand she discovered that the other patient had become ill. She looked closely at the label on the bottle and then in the medicine chest, and discovered her mistake. Horrified, she told the nurse in charge of the ward, and then hastened to the bedside of the sick woman.

Sympathy for the Nurse.

After telling her story to Mr. Gallagher, Miss Hannan was taken to the Flatbush Police Station and later to the court for arraignment. It is the belief of the District Attorney's office that Miss Hannan told the entire truth in the unfortunate affair, and that while the death of Miss Klein is a deplorable accident, there was nothing criminal in the action of the nurse. It is generally believed that she will waive examination when arraigned next Tuesday and voluntarily go before the Grand Jury and tell her story in the hope that no indictment will be brought against her.

Dr. Harris at the hospital, said:

"Paraldehyde is used as a sedative sometimes for violent patients, and as much as two ounces has been given to patients without producing bad effects. Miss Hannan gave Miss Klein only one ounce. Miss Hannan, who has been with the hospital for five years and was graduated from our own training school, always has been regarded as a conscientious and excellent nurse. She told me of the incident with entire openness and said she had made a mistake.

"This sort of thing is particularly unfortunate in such an institution as this. The patients are, of course, suffering from delusions and this may make some of them suspect that all medicine being given them is poison. It will make their relatives worry, too. We have great precautions to prevent any mistake in handling medicines, particularly those capable of harming patients if given in too large doses. Once in a while a mistake will happen, but they are few and far between. Dr. Harris said that he thought perhaps Miss Klein's death was caused rather by a weak heart than actually by the paraldehyde. She was abnormally stout. An autopsy will be performed at the county morgue to determine definitely the cause of death.

$150,000 IN GEMS RECOVERED, 2 HELD

YOUTH SEIZED AS SUSPECT

A pawnbroker and a jewelry manufacturer were arrested and $150,000 worth of stolen jewels was recovered by the police on the lower east side yesterday afternoon. The police said that the jewels had been stolen in New Orleans last Tuesday morning.

The prisoners were Mortimer Aufses, 35 years old, a pawnbroker, of 279 Stanton Street, and William Jacobs, 29, a jewelry manufacturer and diamond setter, of 2 Avenue B.

Inspector John B. Coughlin, in charge of the Detective Division at Police Headquarters, received a telegram on Thursday from Chief of Police Guy R. Maloney of New Orleans that two men and a woman were on their way to New York with the loot from the New Orleans robbery. The jewels were stolen by men who held up a jewelry salesman in the lobby of a New Orleans hotel at the point of pistols and escaped before he could give the alarm.

The telegram from New Orleans also gave information which enabled Inspector Coughlin to send two detectives to the Aufses's pawnshop. According to the police, they found the stolen jewels in a black bag there.

Both Men Are Locked Up.

Aufses was charged with receiving stolen goods and Jacobs was held as a material witness. Both men were locked up at Police Headquarters. On Oct. 14 Aufses reported to the police that he had been held up in his store and robbed of jewelry valued at $40,000. The police said they intended to renew their investigation of this robbery.

Detectives of the Fifth Detroit Station arrested Joseph Weiss, 26 years old, of 203 Hart Street, Brooklyn, on the charge of being one of the four robbers who held up Simon Mazursky in his jewelry shop at 202 Stanton Street last Wednesday and robbed him of $100,000 worth of jewelry. The police arrested Weiss in his apartment, where they said they found three loaded revolvers, a set of automobile license plates and a marriage certificate showing that Weiss was married the day of the robbery.

He was held in $25,000 bail for further examination. The police said Weiss had been sentenced in 1918 for abduction.

A bobbed-haired young woman and two men were arrested early yesterday on the charge of having held up and robbed twenty members of the Kings County Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in their clubrooms at 1,421 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn, on Sept. 21. The woman is Beatrice Kaufman, 20 years old, of 920 New Jersey Avenue. Her companions are Stanley Kaufman of 1,476 St. Marks Avenue and John Imperial of 255 Twentieth Street, all Brooklyn addresses. The three prisoners were held without bail.

Three armed men held up the College Shop, at 2,522 Broadway, shortly before 11 o'clock last night and escaped in an automobile with $357 in cash and $400 in merchandise. Half an hour later an automobile, believed to have been the car in which the bandits escaped, crashed into a grocery store window at Amsterdam Avenue and 131st Street. The occupants fled after the crash.

A. M. Burns, proprietor of the College Shop, with his clerk, Max Skoller, and two customers were in the store at the time of the hold-up. When the bandits entered one stationed himself at the door, while the other herded the proprietor, clerk and customers into a back room.

From one customer, S. Lasky, the hold-up men took $57; from the other, Theodore Sept, they got nothing. Then they went to the cash register and took $300 in cash. After wrapping up about $400 worth of hats, shirts and other haberdashery, they left the store, jumped into their automobile and sped north on Broadway.

Held in $20,000 Bond Robbery.

Four men were arrested in Newark yesterday on charges of receiving stolen goods as a result of the theft of four $5,000 bonds several months ago from the coat pocket of John W. Dye of Washington, D. C., as he was standing in the Union Station at the capital. The men are Prude Dunson, negro, of 91 William Street; Harry Paskow of 99 William Street; Davis Tialer of 176 West Kinney treet and Louis Fertman of 192 Chadwick Street, all Newark.

Two men charged with holding up Isadore Finkel, a Newark jeweler, on Oct. 21, and stealing $8,000 in diamonds and other jewelry were arrested yesterday on the charge of further efforts to obtain loot from Finkel by blackmail attempts through the mail. Finkel identified the two in a police line-up yesterday after the latter had located them through their blackmail manipulations.

The men, Walter and Ray Montague, brothers, are alleged by Finkel and the police to have written the former a demand that he send a package of $2,000 to a city address. Detectives took a decoy package to the place and learned that the Montague brothers, who were absent, had expected the package. Their arrest at their Perry Street home followed.

VIOLATED MEDICAL LAW.

Woman Posing as Chiropractor Gets a Suspended Sentence.

Dorothy Hannays, 34, of 1,219 Broadway, was released on a suspended sentence when she pleaded guilty in Special Sessions yesterday to violating the State Medical law.

Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin Seaholm, a policewoman, told the court that the defendant, posing as a chiropractor, charged her $5 for twisting her neck until one of the bones gave a cracking sound. Then, said Mrs. Seaholm, the woman hammered a piece of metal against her back with the explanation that the latter operation was the "concussing of the spine," to cure the policewoman of an ailment which did not exist. Investigation revealed that the defendant was not registered as a physician or a chiropractor, nor was she a licensed masseuse.

$34,635,722 LOSSES TOLD IN GOULD CASE

George's Deals Were Costly to the Other Heirs, Counsel for Frank Declares.

REFERS TO WABASH STOCK

Attorney Walker Says That the Family Were Deprived of $1,065,660 In This Instance Alone.

The losses sustained by the principals of the residuary trust estate of Jay Gould under the management of the trustees will total $34,635,722, it was charged by Walter B. Walker of counsel for Frank Jay Gould, the principal objector, when he closed the presentation of his case yesterday in the accounting suit on trial before Referee James A. O'Gorman at the office of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway.

The trust fund held by Helen Gould Shepard, Edwin Gould and the United States Trust Company, as trustees for Frank Jay Gould, life beneficiary; Helen Gould de Montenach and Dorothy Gould, as shown by a sworn statement furnished by the United States Trust Company by direction of Justice Davis for use in this suit, totaled $8,378,875 as of Dec. 8, 1923, Mr. Walker said. He pointed out that loss to the principal in this one trust amounted to $5,772,620. This, he said, was the basis upon which he made his claim of the total loss under the management of the trustees.

Mr. Walker submitted a statement showing the inventory of the Jay Gould estate at the time of his death totaled $83,405,580. The receipt of principal amounted to $473,168 and the accruals of income to the date of his death were $430,509, making the total value of the estate $84,309,258, according to Mr. Walker.

Mr. Walker said that the charges against the principal, which were deducted, were $10,818,853. Disregarding losses, the increases claimed on the value of the residuary trust estate brought it to $84,905,978 on Dec. 31, 1914, he said. Basing his estimate upon this figure, he said that the value of each of the six trust funds on that date was $14,151,093.

In concluding the presentation of testimony in support of the objections to the accounting raised by Frank Jay Gould, Mr. Walker reserved the right to introduce further evidence later.

Recent Tying Up of Estate.

It developed during the afternoon that the seven children of George J. Gould by his first marriage bitterly resent the action of counsel for their Uncle Frank in tying up their father's estate. The seven were to receive $8,000,000 left by their father. They have received $2,000,000 of this among them, and the remaining $6,000,000 is being held on order of the Court pending the outcome of the present suit.

Charles A. Roberts, counsel for the Equitable Trust Company, which is the guardian for Mrs. Marjorie Drexel and Lady Decies, the former Vivian Gould, accused Mr. Walker and former Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury, of counsel for Frank Jay Gould, of "throwing up a smoke screen" in order to tie up the George Gould estate.

Mr. Roberts said that he had suggested that if any investments by the executors of Jay Gould were found improper such investments should be returned to the executors, who should repay to the estate their cost and interest on same.

Mr. Roberts said that Frank had no right to compel George's children to return their part of any such investment. He said that whenever application has been made to the Supreme Court by George's children for the distribution to them of their father's share in the Jay Gould estate Mr. Walker and Judge Seabury "always endeavored to lead the Court to think that Frank has some interest in requiring George's children to join in such return of investments."

J. Arthur Lave, of counsel for George J. Gould Jr., said it was "an outrage" for Frank to oppose the distribution of funds to George's children.

During the argument between counsel it developed that of the fifteen trusts into which the original Jay Gould estate was divided, and in which each of the life tenants was to receive an equal share, there was less coming to the children of George J. Gould than to any of the other beneficiaries.

In dealing with the losses to the estate because of the alleged stock manipulations of George, Mr. Walker called attention to the transaction involving 17,000 shares of Wabash Railroad common stock, valued at $545,650, the proceeds of the sale of which, Mr. Walker said, George retained for several months. On March 31, 1903, he said, George took credit of his indebtedness to the estate for that amount by putting the stock into the trust estate. Mr. Walker contended that dividends were never paid on the stock and that it eventually became a total loss. Mr. Walker said that $1,065,660, including interest, was now due the Jay Gould estate from George's estate as a result of the transaction.

Says Holdings Were Wiped Out.

It also was pointed out by Mr. Walker that Jay Gould, at the time of his death, owned 83,000 shares of Wabash common, appraised at $913,000. Sales made by George left 36,000 shares of the original stock in the hands of the estate. To this he added the subsequent purchase of 17,000 shares. The entire amount was wiped out when the road was reorganized.

Mr. Walker also referred to the so-called Blair-Wabash syndicate, in which George Gould was interested. Its operations, Mr. Walker said, resulted in a $150,000 loss to the estate.

Exceptions were taken by Mr. Walker to an entry on the books of the estate showing a repayment to George of $600 for charges paid by him to brokers for carrying Missouri Pacific stock.

"This is a trifling amount, but it runs to the very fundamentals of the management of this estate," Mr. Walker said. "There is no excuse whatever that we can see, for George to pay estate funds to brokers as interest for carrying stock."

When William Wallace Jr., of counsel for George J. Gould's estate, was asked if he objected to the payment of legacies not in Jay Gould's will which were nevertheless paid by the executors, he said:

"I can't very well object to them as the lists were made up by Geodge himself. Of course, I don't take any affirmative action."

"The payments were made pursuant to the direction of Mr. Gould but they were legally improper payments," observed Referee O'Gorman. "If the six life tenants are willing to have them charges against their income accounts they might be permitted to stand."

Mr. Walker agreed to cable Frank Gould asking for his attitude in the matter.

The trial of the accounting suit began just one year and six months ago yesterday before former Judge Edward Hatch. Shortly afterward the proceedings were delayed by the death in France of George J. Gould. They were resumed in the autumn of 1923 but Judge Hatch was soon taken ill. He went South for his health last January but failed to recover and died in June last. Former Senator O'Gorman was named as referee in his stead and the hearings were resumed before him in September.

Proceedings Have Cost a Million.

They have been held an average of three days a week at an estimated cost of $10,000 for a four-hour day. Indications at present are that they will be continued far into the new year. Nearly $1,000,000 has been spent on the proceedings thus far.

David H. Taylor of counsel for the Jay Gould estate said yesterday that he would recall Edwin Gould to the stand next week, when the trial will be continued at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday. The proceedings will be confined to one day next week but Referee O'Gorman said that he would occupy four days in hearing evidence the week following.

FIND BURNED BUS WAS UNFIT TO USE

Transit Commission Inspectors Report That Rear Door Had Been Nailed Up.

OCCUPANTS WERE TRAPPED

McAneny Says Hylan Is in Contempt of Court in Illegal Operation of Buses.

Following an examination by its inspectors and a personal investigation by Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness of the bus fire in Richmond Hill last Wednesday, the Transit Commission, through its Chairman, George McAneny, issued the following statement last evening:

"Investigation made today by inspectors of the Transit Commission, supplemented by a personal examination of Commissioner Harkness, indicates that the bus burned at Richmond Hill Wednesday was not only wholly unfit for the transportation of passengers, but that the rear door, which Commissioner Mills referred to as an 'emergency exit,' had been nailed up. The bus, which was of the Reo speed wagon type, carried seats for fifteen passengers. At the time of the accident it was crowded to the doors, with passengers both seated and standing. As the effect of the explosion threw gasoline flames directly across the front door exit these people were literally trapped.

"The buses upon this so-called Howard Beach line, thirteen in number, are run under the Mayor's sanction, not only in violation of law, but against the express order of the Court of Appeals that they be discontinued. That order was handed down in August, 1923. While the Court forbade any further operation without compliance with the law as to the acceptance of franchise obligations and proper regulation, the Transit Commission at the time pointed out to the Mayor the way in which legal operation could readily be established and offered its full cooperation. As I recall it, it received nothing in response beyond the usual torrent of abusive epithets.

Hylan's Statement Disputed.

"The statement the Mayor published this morning to the effect that the commission had blocked the way toward securing adequate bus operation upon this or any other route is not only untrue, but is disproved by official records of the Mayor's own office. On Aug. 11, 1923, following the Court of Appeals decision, the commission addressed him a letter in which it said:

'As the ruling of the court is not that these routes must be running, but solely that they must stop running illegally, and as the means for putting them legally in operation are provided in existing law, there seems to be no reason why there should be a day's cessation in the service they give. * * * The Transit Commission wishes to assure you, and, through you, the Board of Estimate, that if short-term franchises are now granted covering the lines in question, upon such terms and conditions as your board may see fit to fix, appropriate certificates will be issued by the commission within the shortest time possible.

"The Board of Estimate did, in the case of one of the illegal lines—that operated on the Bronx Concourse—grant a short-term franchise the issue of which the commission confirmed within six days. The board thus showed what it could have done in every case. The Mayor, on the other hand, chose to continue openly to violate the law and to stand in contempt of court.

"The significance of all this is dramatically shown by the use of the forbidden buses, unsuitable in type and with its so-called emergency door nailed up, meets with a tragic accident. The patrons of this line are entitled to modern equipment and to the service they would have had from a line obeying the law and subjected to proper public regulation. The instance, moreover, is not exceptional. Only a few days ago the writer of one of these 'Hylan buses, operating on Madison Street on the east side, ran over and killed a child and was mobbed by the people of the neighborhood.

Millions in Claims Against City.

"The commission has not recently checked the number of claims of all character filed against the city for damages resulting from such operation, but there are several hundred pending and the amounts claimed run into the millions. The only difference between a suit against such action has been that raised in the suit brought by the widow of a man killed by a bus in Staten Island, to the effect that as the city had no legal right to operate the city was not responsible for its unlawful action. I am informed that in this case the widow has amended her suit so as to make the Mayor a co-defendant; in other words, she is suing the Mayor personally for recovery.

"The situation that still continues under these lawless practices undoubtedly should receive thorough investigation."

Chairman McAneny's statement was supplemented by the following personal report made by Commissioner Harkness:

"I examined today the bus that took fire Wednesday night and the wonder is injury to something like a dozen passengers. The bus is of a very light, cheap type altogether unsuitable for city transportation. It has a very narrow door at the front on the right-hand side that even a thin person could not get through comfortably. The gasoline tank is in under the front scowl, and to fill it it is necessary to put the gasoline hose through a hole in the front dome of the body of the car. Such a location for a gasoline tank is manifestly a constant menace.

Rear Door Nailed Shut.

"The bus had a narrow rear door; but it was clear that this door had been nailed shut. I clearly saw the spikes that still remained in and around the door frame.

"It is God's mercy that this accident happened in front of a fire house. It was only the prompt and effective action of the firemen in tipping out the back of the bus that prevented a multiple death of half the people in it. In view of the badly charred condition of the bus body, I am surprised that the injuries were not more numerous and more serious.

"Commissioner Mills of the Department of Plant and Structures, to whom the Mayor's 'wildcat' system has been entr

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 7.—Hope Hampton, screen star, has been notified that her engagement as a light opera prima donna, begun here in "Madame Pompadour" two weeks ago, will end tomorrow night, at least for the present. Wilda Bennett, musical comedy star, will assume Miss Hampton's rôle when the opera makes its bow to New York audiences next Tuesday.

The report that Miss Hampton received a note from the Charles Dillingham-Martin Beck management of "Madame Pompadour" telling her that she would not be used in her rôle longer than tomorrow night, was confirmed today by Jules Brulatour, husband of Miss Hampton.

"I really don't know just what will happen, Mr. Brulatour said today. "There will be fireworks, of course. Miss Hampton's contract was not drawn with the usual two weeks clause and so far as her salary is concerned that is all right. It is a matter of fame."

Announcement was made here on Thursday that Miss Hampton would be replaced by Wilda Bennett when "Madame Pompadour" opens here next Tuesday night. The title rôle in the new Leo Fall operetta calls for an experienced singer and actress and, since Miss Hampton's experiences have been confined to the screen, some surprise was expressed by theatrical men at her original choice for the rôle. In Germany the part was sung by Fritzi Massary, most celebrated of the Continental prima donnas.

Since the opening of "Madame Pompadour" in Philadelphia two weeks ago reports have been reaching Broadway that another actress would come to New York in the piece, and it was said that no less than three others have been rehearsing the part. The fact that Miss Bennett is able to undertake the part on such short notice indicates that the change is not an unforeseen one.

A few days ago Mr. Brulatour, Miss Hampton's husband, issued theatrical friends to witness Miss Hampton's performance in Philadelphia, with a view to obtaining expert testimony in the event that the matter was taken to court.

A Shepherd	Henriette Wakefield

Conductor, Tullio Serafin.

The performance of "Tosca," given last night by the Metropolitan Opera Company, with Maria Jeritza in the title rôle, was a repetition of a familiar but none the less sweeping triumph for that singer and the company which employs her; for it would be difficult to conceive of a performances which, as a whole, moved more swiftly, with more unerring dramatic logic and cumulative power to its conclusion. This production is a striking illustration of what an interpretation great in virtually all its parts can do for an opera which is not in itself of enduring worth. For once, Puccini's drama was more than a noteworthy achievement in sensationalism. It assumed, incredibly enough, the character of high tragedy, and it held the audience breathless from the first scene to the last.

Mme. Jeritza's incomparable impersonation was not the only cause of this effect. Mr. Scotti was the Scarpia, famous in this rôle for many long years, but not the Scarpia that we knew a few seasons previous. Last night the figure seemed more sinister than before, the Scarpia that crouched a little—almost, at moments, with the effect of deformity—that shook and trembled with the violence of his own rage, was a more evil apparition than the pride and domineering force of the figure we remembered.

There was a full-throated tenor in the case of Mr. Fleta, who seems to have developed as a singer since last season and who filled his part with a reasonable consciousness of the theatrical fitness of things. Mr. Ananian was an excellent Angelotti, a highly realistic picture of the hunted fugitive. Minor rôles were admirably taken. And, finally, there was the masterly conducting of Mr. Serafin.

Such tensions or hesitations as Mr. Serafin may have labored under in the performance of "Aïda" on the opening night had apparently vanished. He, like Mme. Jeritza, gave to this disagreeable opera of Puccini artistic proportion—even, in places, beauty and fineness of character. The orchestral tone was of the most varied color; the sudden violent outbursts of the instruments were the more telling because of the way in which they were held down in other places. More than once the orchestral severity was considerably less than is the custom; in the first act the instrumentation had glitter and song, and splendid depth in the final scene of the cathedral; in the second act it kept the character of something lowering, threatening, almost uncontrollable, something that now and again slipped its leash and ran amuck.

As for Mme. Jeritza's impersonation, so much has been written about it, and so well, that where others and abler pens have reaped there is little to glean. This is the most distinguished and original presentation of the rôle we have seen. It is gloriously sung. It is compact in tone, of every shade of color and feeling, physical beauty of the highest type, and eloquence of bodily line and rhythm that would envisage, if music and text were lacking, every emotion.

It begins quietly, with apparent simplicity; it develops gradually and with irresistible power; it becomes at last such a picture of a woman wracked with suffering, desperate in the last extremity, that one forgets all Puccini's obviousness, all his stage tricks, his sobbing banalities, and feels the pity and truthfulness of the interpretation as strongly as he feels the inadequacy of words to describe it. This was a memorable performance. Those whose privilege it was to behold it will have memories. When great artists arrive in future years they will say, "But I heard Maria Jeritza in 'Tosca.'"

Francis Nash, Pianist.

Some people, when they wish to denote that a pianist has a dry style, say that he or she is "intellectual." It is a misleading classification. Obviously an artist cannot have too much intellect, for brains are thought to be based upon a creative or interpretive act. What is meant is actually that the artist has too little emotion, that there is nothing but intellect in his playing, which, when it is true, is a very different thing. These things are remarked apropos of the piano recital given yesterday afternoon by Frances Nash in Aeolian Hall. Miss Nash has shown unmistakable talent before this, and her right to be taken seriously as an artist.

Yesterday she showed a finer intellectual grip of her material than at any previous appearance of hers that this writer has attended. There was a virility of thinking, a firm drawing of melodic lines and handling of musical masses which seized the attention of the listener and never allowed it to wander. Miss Nash played with insight, conviction and enthusiasm that was contagious.

The program was unconventional: Ravel's delightful sonatine, Chopin's E minor sonata, three "Mouvements perpetuals," by Francis Poulenc; six compositions from Kodaly's opus 3, and Liszt's "Le Leggierizza," and Fifteenth Rhapsody for a more conventional ending. There were certain defects in the performances—notably a tendency to blur with the pedal, and sonorities that were too thick—a tone usually overheavy in the lower registers of the instrument, but these were minor deficiencies of interpretations always authoritative and personal in spirit. It is either a very little or a good deal to say that a pianist is "interesting" in these days of schools and shoals of virtuosi, young and old, who flood the concert halls from Fall to Spring. Miss Nash is really an interesting pianist; one who has legitimately made her way as an artist, and whom the musical observer makes a mental note to watch in future seasons.

TWO VIOLINISTS APPEAR.

Sascha Jacobsen and Gilbert Ross, Americans, Play.

Franz Kneisel conducted a string orchestra for Sascha Jacobsen's concert, heard by an attentive assembly, in Aeolian Hall last night, while another audience at the Town Hall greeted another good American violinist, Gilbert Ross.

Mr. Jacobsen, a player of poise and brilliant clarity, not only gave added effect thus to his opening concerto—Vivaldi's A minor, arranged by Nachez—but after an unaccompanied Bach sarabande, double and bourrée, he added with Emanuel Balaban three charming pieces from the "Tallahassee Suite" by Cyril Scott. The Southern airs, "Memory," "Sundown" and "Negro Dance," were followed by other modern Arbos, Elman, Kirman and Rachmaninoff.

Gilbert Ross of Wisconsin, whose recital opened a half hour later in the adjacent hall, gave first place to the "Ascension" sonata of Cecil Burleigh, a work in three short episodes distinguished by Bible texts citing the Nativity, the preaching of Jesus and the Ascension. Mr. Ross confirmed an impression of ripening musicianship made at his former début here. He, too, added an unaccompanied Bach chaconne, Mozart's E flat concerto, with Harry Kaufman at the piano; Achron's "Hebrew Melody," Ries's "Moto Perpetuo" and arrangements by Auer.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Judy Drops In," "Allez" and "The Rising Son" will end their respective engagements tonight.

"White Collars," now in its forty-first week in Los Angeles, will be produced here in December by Louis O. MacLoon. It will open Dec. 1 in Stamford.

Cable dispatches report that Eleanor Painter made her debut at the State Opera House in Berlin on Thursday in "Madame Butterfly" and was enthusiastically received.

Doris Pateman and Grace Payne, well known on the English stage, have been engaged for Florenz Ziegfeld's production of "Louis the Fourteenth."

HARBORD PICTURES FUTURE OF RADIO

POINTS OUT RAPID PROGRESS

Two-Way Telephone Talk Between Sea and Land Is Another Early Possibility.

Transmission of photographs over long distances, particularly between America and Europe, was outlined last night by General J. G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation of America, as one of the radio developments likely to become a reality in the near future. General Harbord spoke at the third National Radio Exposition at the Grand Central Palace.

He did not limit transmission through the ether to photographs alone, but intimated that it would soon be possible to flash pictures of printed matter across the Atlantic at the speed of sunlight.

"Continuing with a thought for the future," he said, "let me invite your attention to the developments in radio photography. Some great strides have been made in this direction in the last year. It is not too much to say that we are on the eve of developments whereby it will be within the realm of possibility to transmit a complete newspaper page from London to New York by means of radio and in a fraction of the time it would take to transmit the entire text of the page either by radio or cable telegraph signals."

General Harbord then gave a summary of the developments which may be expected in the art of radio.

"Transoceanic broadcasting—in short, the realization of international broadcasting"—he said, "for purposes of entertainment is not yet in regular operation, but proposals for increasing the power of sending stations so that programs from London, Paris and Berlin may be easily heard in American are being carefully considered. When such a plan is put into practice the value of broadcasting will be greatly increased and one more link of friendship and understanding will be forged between the Old World and the New."

He pointed out that it will soon be possible to carry on two-way telephone conversation between a passenger on board a ship in midocean and any point on land where an ordinary telephone is available. "At present," he went on, "transoceanic as well as marine radio messages are dispatched by means of telegraph code signals, but the transoceanic radio telephone, now under development, through the joint efforts of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Radio Corporation of America, bids us to expect that before many years it will be possible and convenient for any one of us to pick up his telephone and in a short time be connected with his party in Europe or with his stateroom on some liner in midocean."

Radio's Rapid Progress.

He asked his audience to consider how tremendous an accomplishment it is for an industry as young as radio and beset with so many complexities to have achieved so much in such a short period of time. He explained that it is one of the dreams of radio research men to give the public a universal radio ticker service; that is, the actual printing in words on paper of certain daily information or news broadcast from a central point at stated intervals, much in the same manner as the wire stock ticker and news ticker work today, but on a national scale rather than local. "The radio ticker," he said, "will reach points not now accessible by other means."

He carried his predictions further by saying: "When one considers the progress that has already been made in the field of telemechanics, it requires no great stretch of the imagination to see the future airplane, the submarine, the ship at sea, in practical and direct control by radio from a point on land, if such remote control is desirable or necessary."

In closing, General Harbord said: "Radio sets now are bought ready made, just as one buys an automobile, a camera or a bicycle. One reason for this is the fact that radio is now universal in its appeal. Outwardly, at least, the modern radio receiver is no longer a complicated device requiring the experience of an expert to operate. It is, instead, an instrument with controls so simple that the veriest novice can operate it at first sight.

"And, what counts perhaps for most in this great development of radio, is that while these existing types of radio receivers what excite your admiration at this Radio Exposition were being evolved perfected by their various manufacturers prices were steadily decreasing, until now a very few dollars enables one to choose from many efficient receivers on the market.

"I wish to emphasize to you the real mission of radio. We who are engaged in its development do not regard it as a medium or an agency designed to supplant existing methods of communication, or to do something which is now already being done quite effectively and economically by the land telegraph or the land telephone. On the contrary, we are developing radio in the direction of service to be rendered, messages to be carried, voices to be heard, in ways not now possible by existing means—in short, to make the lot of mankind easier and more ample."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance, With Largest Day's Trading in Five Years —Sterling Higher.

Yesterday's financial markets were again staged impressively; not least so in the enormous business done. Transactions on the Stock Exchange went above two million shares; something which has not occurred since the 12th of November, 1919, the day when the Stock Exchange "boom" of that excited period definitely collapsed, with declines of 10 to 25 points throughout the market. Under yesterday's abnormally large trading prices of stocks advanced, though not sensationally; the average gain being about 1 point and only a few stocks rising more than 2. Along with this demonstration in stocks, sterling exchange moved up 1¼ cents further and wheat rose 3¼ cents per bushel, making a total advance of nearly 10 cents a bushel this week and coming within 3¼ cents of the season's highest.

Both in point of activity and strength, the railway shares stood first on the Stock Exchange; the trading in them being probably of larger volume than has been witnessed on any occasion since the war. It was no doubt in some ways a concerted movement, but the market's response was interesting and a very considerable outside support appeared to be attracted. Naturally enough, the "merger talk" was made to do service with people who do not wholly realise that, while there may be railway combinations ahead of us as large as those of 1901 (the Transportation law itself provides for them), they will certainly not be effected on the wildly extravagant lines of that year of speculations. The better reason for the rise of the railway shares to predominance in Stock Exchange strength and activity is physical and financial condition of the companies has been improving with great rapidity, at a moment when most railway men, in line with their incorrigible habit, were pointing to dark possibilities in the situation and when professional speculators had been leaving the shares alone.

At $4.58 7-16, the best price of the day, sterling had reached the highest since July of last year. More than this, it stood 38 cents above the low price reached in the period after France went into the Ruhr and less than 14 cents below the highest in the era of post-war reconstruction, touched in February, 1923. It is impossible to explain this extraordinary movement except by return to London of British capital self-exiled during the fright over Labor government or by remittance or expected remittance of the proceeds of our very large loans to Europe. The last-named cause operated in the same way, at the same time of year, and under precisely similar conditions in the international investment market, when sterling rose from $4.40 in October of 1922 to $4.72½ in February of the ensuing year.

Naturally, the present dramatic movement will add strength to the talk of restoring the pound sterling to parity; and that suggestion will not lose force from the facts that a bold and daring public man is to be England's new Finance Minister and that the new German reichsmark was quoted yesterday on the New York market at the pre-war gold parity. The trading in the reichsmark was not in all respects convincing. It has not yet been officially launched at Berlin itself, and a currency rarely holds at par when withdrawal of gold for export is restricted. Nevertheless, the return of Germany to even a nominal gold basis is an event which puts a new and very different face on the question what England will have to do to preserve its own financial prestige.

The money market made no great response to yesterday's heavy trading on the Stock Exchange. The call loan rate declined to 2½, although time loans were slightly higher. One statement of the day, with a bearing on the money question, was a full compilation of American clearing house exchanges in October. The face value of the checks drawn on all the country's banks last month was the largest of any month since March, 1920, and in that month average prices of commodities were 35 per cent. higher than today.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, NOV. 7, 1924.

As a result of the stiff charge for Stock Exchange demand loans on Thursday money poured into the Street from all over today and forced the charge to 2½ per cent., after opening and renewing at 3. There was very little calling, which facilitated the break, leaving a large supply of lendable funds in dealers' hands. Time money, however, was firmer, all maturities advancing one-quarter of 1 per cent., with the principal business of the day confined to the nearer dates. There was trading for sixty days at 2½; ninety days, 2½@2¾; four months at 2½ with 2¾ strongly bid for six months, but there was a scarcity of funds at this figure and no trades reported.

Gold bullion 1d higher at 90s 1d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a London price of 106⅞. The highest price since open trading in gold was reached at London in September, 1919, was 140¾, on Feb. 4, 1920; the lowest, 105¾, on Feb. 21, 1923.

FOREIGN CURRENCY SHOWS MARKED GAIN

New German Reichsmark Is Quoted Above Par in First Trading Here.

DOLLAR AT A DISCOUNT

Swedish Kroner Reaches 26.84 in Day's Dealings—Sterling Also Moves Up.

The American dollar, which has been ruling the foreign exchange market since 1914, met some competition yesterday. This was in sufficient volume to attract the attention of bankers who professed surprise at the gradual pushing ahead of certain foreign currencies. In the day's dealings the dollar was actually quoted at a discount in Swedish and German currencies; at exactly par in terms of Swiss francs, and at only a slight premium in the case of Dutch guilders and the Canadian dollar. Sterling also contributed to the picture of gradually improving foreign currency units by moving up to a new high price for the year.

The upward sweep of foreign exchange was broad in character, and dealers reported substantial buying of "excellent character," which in the parlance of foreign exchange dealers represents bank buying for commercial accounts and is described as solid buying to distinguish it from purely speculative buying. The day's market was one of the most remarkable that New York has seen in months.

Interest centred chiefly in the appearance of the new German reichsmark currency on the foreign exchange table. The reichsmark is the currency unit set up by and for Germany with the backing of the Dawes plan and the recent $200,000,000 loan to Germany as entered in the Dawes report. It has a par value of 23.8 cents, the same as the pre-war German gold mark, and in yesterday's initial dealings was quoted by the National City Bank, the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, the Equitable Trust Company and other foreign exchange houses at par or better. A premium of 2¼ points was run up on the reichsmark before the market closed, this meaning conversely a discount in the dollar.

Opening of trading followed the lifting of certain restrictions on foreign exchange operations by the German Government. Until yesterday all trading in the reichsmark was confined strictly to Germany, although banks here were able to provide for the needs of certain houses doing business with Germany. But yesterday's dealings were of an "official" nature and marked the restoration of this currency to the international market. The old paper mark, quoted at 4,000,000,000,000 to the dollar, automatically died.

The new reichsmark has not yet reached New York, but is expected within two weeks. Yesterday's purchases, bankers reported, were for commercial and tourist requirements chiefly, and represented the drawing of drafts payable in Germany in terms of the new reichsmark.

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Gain.
Sterling	$4.86¾	$4.84⅛	$4.85⅛	1⅝ cents
Guilders	39.86c	39.74c	39.82c	5 points
Swiss fc.	19.80c	19.36c	19.27c	Unchanged
Swedish Kroner	26.84c	26.75c	26.84c	8 points
*Reichsmarks	23.82⅛c	23.80c	23.82⅛c	.....

*First time quoted.

All of these reached new high prices for the year. Swedish kroner and the new reichsmark were quoted above par, the Swiss franc at par and guilders were only one-third of a cent below par.

HOLIDAY REDUCED WEEK'S BOND SALES

Total of Offerings Was $32,806,000, Against $114,417,000 in the Previous Week.

New bonds offered publicly in the week ended yesterday totaled $32 806,000 against $114,417,000 the week before. The decrease in business was due to the breaking up of the business week by the election holiday. As in the preceding week, public utility financing was the largest single group. By groups the offerings of this week compared as follows with last week:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public Utility	$26,000,000	$31,250,000
Railroad	2,000,000	8,465,000
State and Municipal	2,806,000	9,077,000
Industrial	1,000,000	20,250,000
Foreign	.....	30,000,000
Miscellaneous	.....	14,975,000
Totals	$32,806,000	$114,417,000

Bond market activity led bankers to the conclusion that corporations would find it comparatively easy to finance their requirements for another year or two to come through offerings to be made in the next few months. In the open market prices again advanced, railroad bonds of a semi-speculative character leading the advance. Price gains in these instances were attributed to satisfaction over the outcome of the election. The defeat of the third party movement, it was explained, gave assurance that "hostile legislation" against the railroads would not be enacted, and that the plans for railroad consolidation would not be strongly opposed.

Public utility financing, according to available reports covering prospective business, will probably bulk large for several weeks. A number of companies were said to be in the market for new loans. State and municipal financing, which in midsummer was the leading source of new bond business, has fallen off to a subordinate position and little new business is in sight the balance of this year.

SHARP INCREASE IN BANK EXCHANGES

Total of $39,762,447,373 for October, Unequaled Since March, 1920.

An indication of the accelerated pace which business had struck, through heavier mercantile orders, higher commodity prices and increased market activity, is shown in the compilation of October's bank exchanges at the principal clearing houses of the country, the turnover running to a total of $39,762,447,373. This is the largest monthly record in four and one-half years, or since March, 1920, when the figure slightly exceeded this total.

Heavy increases in October over the month of September were reported in all Federal Reserve districts, with a notable bulge in Minneapolis, where a majority of the flour mills received the benefit of higher grain prices, and in the New York District, which had the immense October interest and dividend disbursements to meet.

New York City's clearings, according to The Financial Chronicle's record, reached up to $21,584,627,234, an increase of 6.7 per cent. over September and 21.8 per cent. over October, 1923. Outside of this city, the total of $18,177,320,139, was 13.7 per cent. greater than September and 6.4 per cent. larger than October, 1923.

October clearings for the United States compared as follows with those of previous months and years:

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT GAINS FOR OCTOBER

Average Daily Production Was 115,239 Gross Tons, Against 108,269 in September.

The American Iron and Steel Institute yesterday issued its monthly report of steel ingot production showing for October a daily production of 115,239 gross tons, against 108,269 gross tons in September. This figure compares with 161,075 tons average daily production in March, the year's busiest month in the steel industry, and with 71,901 tons in July, when the industry was at its slowest pace, and an average daily production schedule of 114,239 tons for the ten months ended Oct. 31.

The report was based on figures furnished to the American Iron and Steel Institute by companies which made 94.94 per cent. of the country's steel ingot production in 1923. The calculated monthly production for October of all these companies was 3,111,452 tons, against 2,814,906 in November and against 3,577,091 for October of 1923.

The following table shows for the first ten months of this year steel ingot production by tons, the number of working days in each month and the daily average output during each month:

REVIVES BUYING OF GERMAN BONDS

ADVANCE IN PRICES HERE

Purchasers Hoping That Measures Will Be Adopted for Revaluing War Loan.

Spurred by the forthcoming election for the Reichstag and renewed confidence in Germany's financial ability, speculators in old German mark securities have again entered the market on a large scale.

Despite the statement of the German Finance Minister, Luther, made prior to the flotation of the $200,000,000 German external loan in this and other countries, that the Government for the present would not undertake any measures looking to the revaluing of the war loan and other mark securities, the bonds in question have risen from 45 to 100 per cent. since the low levels reached at that time. Most of the advance has been within the last week and covers pre-war bonds as well as the German Government or war loan 5 per cent. bonds.

The war loan 5s were quoted by dealers here yesterday at $1,862.50 per million marks, a rise of $500 in a week. North German Lloyd issues have advanced about 25 per cent. in this period, and the German Government 8.15 per cents. of 1923 have risen nearly 100 per cent. Yesterday's advance in the war loan bonds amounted to about $150 per million marks.

Leopold Zimmermann of Zimmermann & Forshay, specialists in German securities, said yesterday, in explaining the renewed speculation, that the election for the Reichstag was scheduled for Dec. 7 and that this presents speculation was discounting the results. The German public was bringing pressure to bear on the candidates for some scheme of revaluation of the mark securities, and doubtless would continue to insist on some return for their pre-inflation investments, he thought. No legislation looking to any percentage valuation would, however, be possible until after the election, he said.

The possibility of a reduction in taxes in Germany, following yesterday's cabled report of the Government having balanced its budget for the first time since the war, would, it is believed, work against any revaluation legislation in the near future.

"The conservative wave that is now sweeping with irresistible force over the whole world has also given new strength and impetus to the revaluation movement in its Germany," Mr. Zimmermann said. "The parties of the Right in Germany are the mainstay of a radical revaluation of all bonds and mortgages; they advocate revaluation even up to 40 per cent. of the original gold value at the time of issue. As soon as the victory of the Conservative Party in England became known, the German exchanges demanded bullish quotations on German war bonds, and still more so when the result of the American election with the unprecedented victory of the conservative part of the American people became known. There seems to be very little doubt that at present the tendency of the German bond market is upward. Of course, there will be fluctuations."

An official letter of the Finance Department of the City of Mainz says with regard to the revaluation of municipal bonds:

"The emergency tax law of the 14th of February, 1924, does not provide any revaluation for the German city bonds. In fact, this law stipulated that a revaluation cannot be demanded until the reparation claims are all settled. The City of Mainz is consequently not obliged by any legal provision to revalue its obligations. It is, however, manifest that this standpoint must result in a hardship and injustice to the bondholder. The City of Mainz has consequently endeavored, taking into consideration her financial condition, to provide for satisfactory compensation and has offered for all loans that were issued until 1920 5 to 7 per cent. of the gold value at the time of issue. At the same time negotiations are being carried on with the financial authorities of the Reich in Berlin to arrive at a basis for revaluation, and it appears that in the near future a settlement will be arrived at for this vexed question."

GERMAN LOANS HELD UP.

Applicants and Bankers Here Waiting for Test of Reichsmarks.

A number of German loans are being held up because of a desire by the German corporations to test the value of the new German currency in the world market before floating new dollar loans, it was learned yesterday. While the financial district was full of reports of numerous pending loans, bankers said, there was no rush to grant them.

The bankers said they wanted time in which to study thoroughly the possibilities of various German corporations which previously had asked for loans, and particularly to see how the payment of reparations by Germany would affect its industries, before they would care to float large long-term bond issues. The German corporations also wished to wait, they reported, to see how well the new national currency would stand up. At par of exchange, a $10,000,000 loan granted today would bring the borrower about 50,000,000 reichsmarks. Should there be a slump in the exchange rates, the borrowers would find themselves later obliged to use substantially more than 50,000,000 reichsmarks to pay off their loans.

Short-term credits will be extended pending a longer test of the new exchange unit.

Beginning March 22, 1923, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

CONSOLIDATED RATES WILL NOT BE RAISED

CURB TAKES NO ACTION

No Effort Yet Made by It to Sound Sentiment of the Brokers.

The Consolidated Stock Exchange will not increase its minimum commission rates, it was indicated yesterday as the result of a canvass of the membership which was made at the instance of the Board of Governors. Hearings held in the last two or three weeks convinced the Exchange officials that it would be unwise to follow the action of the New York Stock Exchange at this time. The Consolidated had advanced its minimum rates in 1919, after similar steps had been taken by the "big board."

The expectation that the New York Curb Exchange would readjust its rates in conformity with the new rates put into effect by the New York Stock Exchange a week ago has not materialized thus far, and, according to John W. Curtis, the President, the matter has not come up in committee. Mr. Curtis declined to say what the prospects were for an increase, but it is known that as in the case of the Consolidated membership there is considerable opposition to an advance which might tend to restrict the business of these exchanges. It was stated yesterday that the Consolidated had benefited from the new rates made effective last week by the New York Stock Exchange, which accounts in large part for the overwhelming opposition to an increase. The Curb membership has not been asked to express its views, and will not, in the course of things, until the proposal is regularly put to them by the Governing Committee. Before the Governing Committee would act on the matter the Committee on Admissions would have to initiate the proposal, as in the case of the New York Stock Exchange, where the procedure is identical.

Another reason for the Consolidated's rejection of the proposed increases was the fact that although members' overhead has increased in common with that of all other brokers since the war, the burden of increased expenses has been relatively small as compared with that of many of the large New York Stock Exchange houses whose wire overhead alone has restricted profits from the handling of customers' transactions. The unit of trading on the Consolidated is ten shares, while it is 100 shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

RAILROAD BOARD UPHELD.

Court Gives It Power to Compel Appearance of Witnesses.

Railway executives were pleased yesterday with the decision of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago upholding the authority of the Railroad Labor Board to compel witnesses to appear before it to give testimony in matters being considered by the board. They declared that if this decision were upheld in the higher courts it would greatly strengthen the power of the Railroad Labor Board and that it would be a damaging blow at the Howell-Barkley bill, which is expected to come before Congress at the next session.

The statement was made by one official that the main contention of the advocates of the Howell-Barkley bill was that it would effectively do the work in which the Railroad Labor Board has failed. Officials declared that the ability of the Labor Board to summon any one to appear before it would help that body in arriving at its conclusions and remove this objection.

The decision of the Federal court, however, does not in any manner give the board the power to enforce its decisions. Instead, the board must make decisions and then depend upon the power of public opinion to enforce them.

CHAIN STORE SALES.

October sales of $3,679,288 were reported yesterday by S. H. Kress & Co., an increase of $694,259, or 23.3 per cent. over the same month of 1923. For the ten months of this year sales totaled $29,529,676, an increase of $4,256,519 or 16.8 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1923.

The United States Stores Corporation reported yesterday for the ten months' period ended last Oct. 25 sales of $27,436,436. The corporation recently acquired three chains of stores operating in Pittsburgh which have been consolidated. Total stores now operated by the corporation were said to be close to 1,100.

Sales of the McCrory Stores Corporation for October amounted to $2,102,413, an increase of $225,161 over October, 1923, or an increase of 11.9 per cent. For the ten months ended Oct. 31, sales were $18,697,089, an increase of $2,135,572 or 17.1 per cent. over the corresponding period of last year.

Livermore Announces That Radio Shares Were Oversubscribed.

Jesse L. Livermore announced yesterday afternoon that the subscription books had been closed on the issue of 75,000 shares of De Forest Radio Company voting trust certificates which he offered yesterday morning at $21 a share. He said that the offering had been tremendously oversubscribed. He did not know what total the subscriptions would reach, he said, but it was many times the amount offered.

Application has been made to list the new issue on the New York Curb Market and trading is expected to start next week, probably Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

List Sweeps Forward Under Sharp Demand for Sterling and Leading Continentals.

In another strong and active market for the European exchange yesterday, which continued to reflect the political developments of last week, sterling, guilders, Swedish kroner and Swiss francs went into new high ground for the year, the last two, in fact, crossing par of exchange. The bulk of the trading was in sterling, which was heavily bought by banks for the purpose of enlarging balances, and by importers to cover future requirements. First-hour profit-taking and some selling of export bills, brought a moderate reaction at the start to $4.56¼, but with the absorption of these bills the rate moved up steadily to $4.58⅜, a gross gain of 1⅝ cents from Thursday's final, and best since late July, 1923.

The recent bulge in the Holland, Swiss and Swedish rates found the supply of these exchanges rather limited yesterday, with the result that spirited bidding for the guilder put it up to 39.86 cents, unequaled since December, 1922; the Swiss franc to 19.30 cents, highest since May, 1922, and Swedish kroner up to 26.84 cents, best since January, 1923.

There was only a fair business doing in the Continentals, although most of these responded to the rise in the leaders. French francs improved to 5.24 cents, from 5.21⅜; Spanish, Denmark, Norway and Belgian bills were higher, but the Italian lire sagged 2¾ points to 4.30 cents. Far Easterns and South Americans were all strong.

In the day's quotations and hereafter, the exchange market's rates for the new German Reichsbank mark, gold basis, will be substituted for the quotations of the old paper mark hitherto published.

COOLIDGE VICTORY SPURRED BUSINESS

RECOVERY IS UNDER WAY

Dun's Sees Pig Iron Production Increase Is Indicative of the Trend.

The commercial reporting agencies in their weekly summaries of business conditions, issued yesterday, report continued expansion and definite improvement in some lines following the election. Dun's Review in summing up the situation, says:

"The result of the national election has had a stimulating effect on financial and commercial markets. There was a quick and emphatic response on the Stock Exchange, where prices advanced sharply on the broadest dealings in many months, and new signs of trade revival have already appeared. With the removal of political uncertainties, some commitments which had been held in abeyance have been released, and increasing inquiries in different lines indicate that preparations for further expansion are being made. The stronger basic conditions which now prevail, with decided improvement in the agricultural situation and a better foreign outlook, give rise to confident expectations, and various statistical measures show clearly that economic recovery is under way. Prominent among these barometers is the report of October pig iron production, disclosing a 17 per cent. gain in the daily average, and the largest total output since last May, and new high records in freight traffic have become of almost weekly occurrence. Although there continues to be considerable irregularity in commodity prices, the main trend in recent months has been in an upward direction, with Dun's Index Number for Nov. 1 at the highest level touched in nearly four years."

Bradstreet's makes the following comment:

"An outpouring of optimistic expression has followed swiftly upon the election, but partly because a good deal of the short time elapsing since then has been devoted to considering its various results, and partly because the weather has been too warm for much buying of seasonable goods; the trade done has been mainly of the broken-week variety. Of definite effects, the most notable have been the active dealings at advancing prices in the stock and bond markets and the reported becoming certainties of many hitherto contingent orders for steel. Other developments have been the cutting of prices of several lines of cotton goods, particularly ginghams, by New England mills, which are said to have been impelled thereto by competition of Southern mills, and rallies in prices of grain from the recent low point. In distributive trade, buying has been conservative, although cooler weather in parts of the Northwest has led to a fair distribution at retail."

HUNGARY MEETS INTEREST.

Pledged Receipts in Quarter Exceed Year's Requirements.

The interest requirements of a full year have been met in three months by Hungary, according to the report of Jeremiah Smith Jr., Commissioner General for that country. The report for September was received yesterday by Speyer & Co., who recently floated in this market a loan for Hungary.

According to the report, receipts from revenues pledged to the service of the loan amounted to 15,100,000 gold crowns in September, or equal to about one-half of the interest and sinking fund requirements of the loan for the whole year. Receipts for the quarter ended Sept. 30 were nearly 46,000,000 gold crowns, or 25 per cent. in excess of annual interest and sinking fund requirements.

BEECHNUT DECLARES AN EXTRA DIVIDEND

Durham Hosiery Mills Omits the Quarterly Payment Due on Preferred Stock.

Evidences of irregularity in the industrial situation were given yesterday in the fact that while one prominent industrial corporation was obliged to pass its dividend because of conditions which had developed in that particular line, another in an entirely different line was able to pay an extra dividend.

The Beechnut Packing Company announced that an extra dividend of 60 cents per share would be paid on Dec. 10 to holders of the common stock on Dec. 1.

Directors of the Durham Hosiery Mills voted to omit the quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. due at this time on the preferred stock. Unsettlement in the textile industry was the cause of this action.

The Vacuum Oil Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of $1 per share and the regular quarterly of 50 cents.

Regular dividends were declared by the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Onyx Hosiery Company on its preferred stock, by the Continental Oil Company on the common and by the May Department Stores on the common and preferred.

Cities Service Bonds Sold.

Dillon, Read & Co. announced yesterday that the $20,000,000 Cities Service Power and Light Company 20-year 6 per cent. secured sinking fund gold bonds have been sold. Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. stated that the books were closed on the $6,000,000 Winnipeg Electric Company 30-year refunding mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, and that subscriptions had been received in excess of the amount of the offering.

ROADS SEEK DELAY ON TRAIN CONTROL

SOME HAVE IGNORED ORDER

Interstate Commerce Commission Can Impose a Fine of $100 for Each Day Over Time Limit.

Some of the larger railroads are preparing to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission for an extension of time for the installation of automatic train control on certain branches of their lines. Their petitions probably will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission about Dec. 1.

More than forty-nine railroads, including most of the large systems in the United States, were affected by the original order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which provided that one section of automatic train control should be installed not later than Jan. 1, 1925. Some of the roads, such as the Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the Chesapeake & Ohio, have practically completed the required installation. Many others are at work on it, among them the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Nickel Plate, the Lehigh Valley and the Southern Pacific. A majority are well along in their construction of a single division of automatic train control. Some, however, will not be able to complete the work on time.

One official declared yesterday that the roads had been working in such harmony with the Interstate Commerce Commission that it was believed the extension of time would be granted. In case the time should not be extended the commission may impose a fine of $100 a day on each road which fails to complete one division by Jan. 1.

Some roads have been released from the train control order. Among them are the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway, and the Western Maryland Railroad. In each case it was understood that the release was based upon the fact that the road's passenger traffic was comparatively light. Other lines have similar petitions before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A small number of railroads in the larger group have made no attempt to install automatic train control. It is believed that the commission will deal more harshly with them than with the roads which have complied with the order to the extent of starting construction.

The total cost to the forty-nine roads of the installation due to be completed, theoretically at least, by Jan. 1 is $50,000,000.

AUSTRALIAN CROPS GOOD.

Commission Here Says Rains Have Produced a Big Yield.

Due to recent widespread rains, Australia is looking forward to a year of unprecedented prosperity in agriculture, according to a cablegram from the Australian Government received yesterday by J. A. Elder, Australian Commissioner in the United States.

"Pasture is ample and thriving," the message read. "Cattle and sheep are in good condition and increasing, and the harvest prospects throughout the wheat belt are splendid. Queensland has received a cotton yield to date of 15,130,000 pounds from 35,373 acres. The estimated wool clip totals 2,030,000 bales, each weighing about 532 pounds. Recent prices of citrus fruits this season in local and overseas markets are responsible for considerable further planting."

COTTON TRADE QUIET PENDING CROP NEWS

A General Evening-Up in Advance of Today's Report Makes for Little Gain.

RISE IS 15 TO 25 POINTS

A general evening up, prior to the Government report, today, produced an extremely quiet cotton market yesterday, with prices up 15 to 25 points at the close. After limited trading for four hours domestic and foreign buying orders of fair volume were executed the last half hour which developed a moderate degree of activity. A prominent Memphis newspaper gave the crop as 12,803,000 bales, or a gain of 34,000 from its previous figures. The average guess of seventy-eight Exchange members was 12,792,000. In addition to the crop estimate by the Department of Agriculture, the Census Bureau will give out the quantity of cotton ginned to Oct. 31 at 11 o'clock.

Following the sharp setback of over quarter of a cent in both American markets the last half hour Thursday, a lower range of prices was due abroad yesterday. But while Liverpool opened lower all loss was recovered later in the session, and this steadiness in foreign quotations influenced trading on this side. Absence of definite selling pressure on one hand and a buoyant stock market on the other maintained a steady tone, with moderate price changes. Reports from many points in the South reflected absence of any disposition to force sales of actual cotton. With an aggregate of 6,000,000 bales already moved from first hands, growers seemed more inclined to wait for values to taken that accept prevailing prices. As a result hedging operations have diminished of late and uncertainty over today's report restricted new business in contract circles. Most of the day's trading took place within 10 points of opening quotations.

Over an inch of rain fell at Oklahoma City, which was the first moisture of importance at any portion of the cotton belt in over a month. With 2 degrees below zero in the Canadian Northwest and as low as 16 above zero in Kansas, conditions indicated a cold wave in cotton territory.

Week-end figures showed 682,000 bales in sight, compared with 475,000 last year, making 5,961,000 for the season, against 6,340,000 last year. Spinners' takings aggregated 366,000, against 340,000 a year ago, making takings for the season 3,174,000, compared with 3,284,000 a year ago. The visible supply increased 331,000 bales, compared with 184,000 during the corresponding week last year, which brought the world's visible supply of American cotton to 3,738,000, compared with 2,925,000 a year ago.

WOOL MARKET STILL SLOW.

Not Yet Stimulated by Election Results.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say of the wool market:

"Confidence in the future of the wool market has been enhanced by the result of the national election, although the outcome had been so thoroughly discounted that the market has not shown the sharp reaction upward which might have been expected in view of the experience in other years. Values nevertheless are slightly higher and the tendency is upward, with certain mills buying this week who last week refused to do so. The manufacturers find buying resistance still strong at advanced prices, but recognize the statistical strength of wool.

"Foreign primary markets are gradually strengthening, and Yorkshire is stronger in sympathy. America is buying steadily in Australia, although England and the Continent continue to take the big weights.

"In the West, contracting seems to have reached a resting place, for the most part, the price level reached possibly having given some pause to the unusually early movement commenced some three weeks ago."

RAILROADS ASK REHEARING.

Western Lines Attack Decision in St. Louis Terminal Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. — Western railroads filed with the Supreme Court today a petition asking a rehearing in the St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association case recently decided in favor of the Eastern railroads.

In two former cases cited, the petition asserted, the Terminal Association had been expressly forbidden to engage as a carrier in the transportation of through freight moving East and West across the Mississippi River and had been restricted to furnishing terminal facilities. Contrady to those restrictions, the petition stated, the court in its recent opinion had authorized the Terminal Association to act as a common carrier.

Should the association avail itself of such authority, the petition contended, it would constitute an illegal combination in violation of the Sherman antitrust act as defined by the Supreme Court in the former cases.

WHEAT CONTINUES ON ITS UPWARD WAY

Gain of Three Cents Lifts the Price Eleven Cents Above Monday's Low Mark.

HIGHER YET AT WINNIPEG

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The wheat market responded in no uncertain manner today to bullish foreign news, part of which bordered on the sensational, and the advance of 1¼ to 3 cents was in the face of enormous profit taking headed by local and Eastern operators who were heavy buyers around the recent low point. The offerings were absorbed in a persistent manner by exporters, cash interests and a new set of speculators, and the finish was at the top.

May touched $1.58¾, or within 1¾ cents of the best price of the season, and is up 10¾ cents from the low of Monday, with December up 11¾ cents during the same period. This advance, however, is small in comparison with the 17¼ cent upturn in Winnipeg in five days and that market acted tight throughout the day and gained 3½ to 3¾ cents.

Minneapolis mills bought wheat in their own market and sold here, closing spreads, and gained 3@3¾ cents. A good part of the selling of wheat here early was privately credited to a local man whose names has not been mentioned as a liberal trader for several years, although before the war he was extremely active.

Liverpool gained 2⅞@3¼d for the day, with London cables claiming Australian and Argentine shippers as the best buyers, and covering sales for forward shipment. The cleaning up of the distressed wheat on ocean passage was reflected by further heavy buying of cash grain by Europe, with purchases for the day of more than 2,000,000 bushels, making 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 bushels so far this week.

Cash wheat premiums were 1 to 2 cents higher, with Duluth No. 1 Northern, now quoted at 20 cents over early Chicago December against 1 cent under on Monday, and 5 cents over was mentioned later. No. 2 hard, c. i. f., was quoted at 3 cents over at the last against offers at 2½ cents over early in the day, with sales at the latter figure.

Private cables from abroad told of estimates of 58,000,000 to 90,000,000 bushels on the Argentine exportable surplus, compared with 110,000,000 last year, and others claim drought and hot winds in Argentina and heavy rains and forecasts for floods in Australia, with intimations that estimates on the surplus would have to be lowered.

What still further the Clement Curtis & Co. statistician, estimates farm holdings of wheat on Nov. 1 at 210,000,000 bushels, or 35,000,000 less than last year, indicating that 67 per cent. of the crop has already been marketed.

"Indications are that the big run of wheat in the Northwest is nearing its end and that when it is out of the way it will be hard to buy wheat," a Minneapolis dealer said late tonight. He also adds that it is difficult to buy hard wheat at the Gulf.

Millers are picking up the spreading wheat in the Northwest and hard Winter in the Southwest, as they are having a better trade in flour.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,787,000 bushels; week ago, 2,449,000; last year, 1,846,000. Shipments exceeded the receipts, attracting much attention.

Corn and oats were dull, with trade largely of a local character, corn gaining 1¼@2¼ cents and oats ⅝ cent for the day. There was a good export business in wheat through in Nov. but the quantities were not given. Futures closed 1¾@2¼ cents higher for the day. No. 2 yellow corn at the last was quoted 1¾ cents over December, a decline of 1 cent for the day in the basis.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 430,000 bushels; week ago, 436,000; last year, 482,000, and shipments, 201,000 bushels; week ago, 583,000; last year, 598,000.

FIFTH AVENUE SHOPS PLAN ART DISPLAYS

HIGH STANDARDS ARE SET

Painters and Architects on the Jury Which Will Judge Merchants' Exhibitions.

Fifth Avenue is rounding out a century of its history and will celebrate with great merchandising and window displays during the week beginning Nov. 15. The curtains of the big stores will go up on displays which are expected to be the finest and most interesting that the avenue has ever shown.

Special awards will be made for the most artistic window displays. These will be judged by an art jury composed of Edwin H. Blashfield, painter; J. Monroe Hewlett, architect and President of the Association of Mural Painters; Bassett Jones, lighting expert; Alexander Trowbridge, architect, and J. G. Rooney, President of the Window Display Men's Association.

Theatrical and sensational displays will be discouraged and judgment will be passed on the windows as works of art. Some of the window displays will be historical, recalling New York's retail trade of a century ago and the progress from 1824 to the present.

The Committee on Window Displays for the Centennial is made up of C. R. Shipley, Vice President of Lord & Taylor, Chairman; S. W. Reyburn, President Associated Dry Goods Corporation of New York, Vice Chairman; associates, Arthur Brentano of Brentano & Co.; John S. Burke, assistant to President of B. Altman & Co.; J. Howes Burton of Burton Brothers; E. H. Fitch, President Abercrombie & Fitch; Irving Hanson, Vice President of H. B. Mallinson & Co.; J. G. Kugelman, general manager of Stern Brothers; S. Kurzman of Kurzman's, F. H. Montgomery, President of Knox; H. T. Pease, manager of Onyx; Angelo M. Saks, Vice President of Saks & Co.; S. V. Silverthorne, merchandise manager of McCreery's; Amos Sulka of A. Sulka & Co.; Edson M. Tucker, a director of Lord & Taylor.

To formulate artistic standards for the windows during Centennial Week, the Committee on Window Displays adopted recommendations as follows:

"It is important that those who have in their keeping the highest standards of the Fifth Avenue section should in their own displays avoid any theatrical or sensational effects, no matter how striking or popular they may prove.

"The displays during Centennial Week should emphasize the fact that art value is in no way affected by period, age or source. Fifth Avenue subscribes to the doctrine that products are to be judged on their merits alone and one of the results of Centennial Week should be to further raise the standard of democratic art so that people of moderate income may find pleasure and satisfaction in form and color as employed in the product of reasonable price.

"The displays should emphasize new merchandise of all kinds, in the greatest variety that will appeal to the cultured taste."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The centre of the disturbance that was over Southeastern Iowa Thursday night has advanced to the upper St. Lawrence Valley. The Pacific Coast disturbance has remained practically stationary, being central Friday night over British Columbia. High pressure prevails off the South Atlantic Coast and an area of considerable magnitude with low temperatures for the season extends from Western Ontario southward to the West Gulf States. During the last twenty-four hours rains have occurred in the Middle and North Pacific States and Missouri, the upper Mississippi Valley, West Gulf States and lake region. Elsewhere the weather has been generally fair. It has become decidedly cooler from the lake region southward to the West Gulf States, and it has become warmer over the Canadian northwest. The highest temperatures of record for the season have been equalled or exceeded as follows: Boston 70, Portland, Me. 72, and Northfield, Vt., 72.

The outlook is for rains in portions of the North Atlantic States and along the Gulf Coast Saturday. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair in the States east of the Mississippi River Saturday and Sunday. It will become decidedly cooler Saturday in the Middle and North Atlantic States and somewhat cooler in the South Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

LEITER WANTS SEAT BACK.

Man Who Tried to Corner Wheat in 1898 Appeals to Chicago Board.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7. — Joseph Leiter, whose attempt to corner the wheat market in 1898 ended disastrously, appealed today for reinstatement as a member of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Mr. Leiter is defendant in litigation pending with a sister, and his brother-in-law, the Marquis Curzon of Kidleston, whose first wife was Mary Leiter, a sister of Joseph and daughter of Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer merchant, whose estate is involved. Joseph Leiter is a trustee of the estate.

Mr. Leiter went into the wheat corner in 1897 on the bull side. At the end of that year he is credited with having had 9,126,000 bushels of wheat which had probably cost him from 80 to 85 cents a bushel. Wheat had sold on Dec. 9 at $1.09. The high price attracted a great volume of grain to the Chicago market.

P. D. Armour is credited with chartering a score of lake vessels, hiring ice breakers and bringing into Chicago 2,099,600 bushels. Big receipts forced the market down to 97¼ cents.

Leiter's more than 9,000,000 bushels were costing him $4,450 a day for insurance and storage. The year 1898 brought a declining market, and then came the Spanish-American war. Ten million bushels were received from Feb. 1 to June 1, and on June 10, when the price ranged from $1 to $1.01 a bushel the Government crop report indicated a record crop. The next day the price fell to 89 cents. Mr. Leiter's loss has been estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

TRACTION INQUIRY LIKELY THIS WINTER

Searching Investigation, Probably by Legislative Committee, Is Expected.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO ACT

Findings May Have Important Bearing on Mayoralty Contest Next Fall.

The belief is growing rapidly in political and legislative circles that a searching investigation, probably by a joint legislative committee, will be made of the transit situation in New York City this Winter. It is suggested such an inquiry is likely to have an important bearing upon the Mayoralty election next Fall, in which it is said to be inevitable that transit in action and failures and the responsibility for them will become a prominent issue.

Governor Smith, before his departure for Albany yesterday, said he had not yet seen a copy of the charges framed by the Mayor and the Board of Estimate calling upon him to remove the members of the Transit Commission. He will find the papers awaiting him when he resumes his duties in the State capital. It is confidently predicted, however, that the Governor will not take any action until after his return from his contemplated rest at French Lick late this month.

When he takes up the case doubtless, in conformity with custom, he will forward a copy of the charges to the Transit Commission, asking for a reply. That commission, even now, is preparing a rejoinder, as promised by Chairman George McAneny when the charges were first made public, which will not only welcome such an investigation as the Mayor demands but which will also formulate counter-charges against the Mayor and the Board of Estimate as those primarily responsible for transit bungling and inaction and will demand a thorough investigation at the hands either of the Governor or of the State Legislature.

Republican State leaders said privately it would make no material difference in plans for a legislative transit inquiry whether Governor Smith saw fit to grant the Mayor's request and to appoint under the Moreland act a commissioner to sift the Board of Estimate's charges of malfeasance in office and culpable negligence of duty.

"The Republican Party," said one such leader, "is responsible for the Transit Commission and we purpose spreading out its record, together with that of the Mayor and his colleagues of the Board of Estimate, so that every one may read it clearly. Such an investigation, I am sure, would produce absolute proof that responsibility for the continuance of New York's transit tangle must be laid at the door of the Hylan Administration for its failure to cooperate with the commission."

With Republicans in control of both branches of the new Legislature and with the Transit Commission's urgent demand for an inquiry united with that of the Mayor himself, it is said, there would be no doubt of the adoption of a joint resolution of investigation. A concurrent resolution to that end could not be blocked by the Democratic members, it is declared, and such an inquisitorial resolution does not need to be sent to the Governor for his approval.

Owing to the Mayoralty election next year, and the fact that the Transit Commission's term of office expires twenty-six months hence, Republicans say it is vitally important that what they consider the facts in the transit dilemma should be thoroughly disclosed, in order that public opinion may compel the city to remove the barriers which have impeded transit relief. Mr. McAneny declared a fortnight ago that, if Governor Smith should not see fit to start an investigation, he and his colleagues would demand that the Legislature assume the task.

DULA ALIMONY PLEA.

Decision Reserved on Wife's Application for $2,000 a Month.

Supreme Court Justice Lydon heard argument yesterday on the application of Mrs. Elise Hinman Dula for $2,000 a month alimony and $10,000 counsel fee pending trial of her suit for spearation against Robert B. Dula Jr., the son of Robert B. Dula, a former Vice President of the American Tobacco Company. Mrs. Dula's separation suit followed an action on her part against the parents of her husband in which she asked $250,000 damages for alienation of affection. When she filed her separation suit last week she caused the arrest of young Dula on a civil warrant, alleging that he was about to leave the State. Her attorney asked yesterday that his bail, which was fixed at $2,500, be raised to $25,000. Justice Lydon reserved decision on both motions.

Outerbridge Horsey, counsel for Mr. Dula, said that the latter had not been outside of this city for several months, excepting when he was sent to a sanitarium for treatment. The condition of his client's health, he explained, was such that he could not go anywhere without being attended by a nurse.

Mr. Horsey also declared that the young man had no property, income or allowance from his father. While the young couple were living together, he said, the tobacco official made his son an allowance of $100 a week, which was paid to Mrs. Dula. The father was well able to provide for his son, the attorney said, but would not "pay one cent to the woman who had sued him and his wife for alienation of his son's affections."

Frederick E. Klein, Mrs. Dula's counsel, told the Court that the couple lived at the rate of $50,000 a year in Tuckahoe, N. Y., until Aug. 30, 1922. Young Mr. Dula's income, he said, was derived from stocks and was sufficient to provide ample alimony to his wife. When the parents decided that her husband should be sent to a sanitarium Mrs. Dula refused to consent. After a discussion, Mr. Dula told his wife that he was going to leave her. He did leave, the attorney declared, and has not contributed to her support since.

OPPOSE STATE ROAD BONDS.

Farm Bureaus Want Restriction on Motorists of 15 Removed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The New York Sate Farm Bureau Federation today declared opposition to issuance of any more State or county bonds for road construction. Funds should be raised, it contended, by licenses, gasoline taxes, personal property taxes and similar sources to provide for the entire upkeep of the highway system and for 50 to 70 per cent. of the cost of new roads.

The Federation was unanimous in voting to allow children over 15 to drive automobiles after a strict road test had been passed and will seek modification of the law at the 1925 session of the Legislature. Members said thousands of country children were prevented from attending school because of the law setting the age limit at 18 and that it was working hardship on farm families.

A resolution was adopted asking the New York State Agricultural Conference Board, which represents all non-commercial agricultural organizations of the State, to make a study of the tax situation and offer recommendations for scientific revision.

Enos Lee of Yorktown Heights was chosen President for a second term. Congressman Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany was re-elected Vice President and E. V. Titus of Glen Cove, L. I., Second Vice President.

THEATRE EMPLOYES FINED.

Accused of Admitting Children to Movies Without Guardians.

Mary Meigs, 19 years old, of 47 East Eighty-first Street, and Abraham Beck, 40 years old, of 1,636 Lexington Avenue, cashier and ticket taker, respectively, of a motion picture theatre at 1,494 Madison Avenue, were fined $100 each yesterday on their conviction by Justices Kernochan, Nolan and Salmon in Special Sessions on a charge of permitting children without guardians to enter the place.

Agent Watson of the Children's Society, who arrested them on Sept. 24 last after they permitted a ten-year-old boy, unaccompanied, to enter, told the Court that both defendants previously had been fined for similar offenses and that there had been nine such convictions against employes of the theatre.

KEEPS SHOPS IN OPERATION.

General Electric Company Will Make Stock Goods During Present Slump.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Announcement came from the General Electric works here today that the company had set aside $2,000,000 to keep departments of the works in operation during the present slump in orders. It was explained that while the company customarily produces only upon order, it has been decided to produce electrical apparatus and appliances for stock, to obviate the necessity of laying off thousands of employes.

The announcement said every department capable of producing goods for stock would be kept occupied, and the stock would be stored in various buildings at the local works. It was predicted the slump in orders would end before the first of the year.

Motorists are now being told that they must pay extra for gasoline in order to stop motor knocks. Tydol users save that extra money. If you use Tydol consistently, it is unnecessary to doctor your gasoline or pay more than the regular price per gallon. Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

* * * *

For years, science searched for the formula of a gasoline that would not knock. For knocking steals power, pounds bearings, racks your motor and leads to big repair bills.

But Nature, the master chemist, had already solved the problem. In underground laboratories, working throughout the centuries, Nature produced a crude petroleum oil that is different from any other. From this crude, it is possible to refine a gasoline having natural anti-knocking qualities.

And best of all, Tydol costs no more than ordinary gasoline. Next time you need gasoline fill up at a Tydol pump—and pay no more than the regular price per gallon.

TYDOL
ECONOMY GASOLINE
For full Tydol economy use Veedol motor oil

Scientific tests prove TYDOL a natural anti-knock gasoline

Knocking in an engine is caused by the gasoline mixture exploding too quickly or too violently. There is no knock if the mixture burns progressively and evenly.

The Midgley Indicator, a remarkable scientific instrument, enables us to photograph the progress of the explosion of a gasoline mixture in the combustion chamber.
